AN INDEPENDENT REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER

THE KLAMATH DAILY NEWS

KLAMATH FALLS SATURDAY, AUGU

"Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it."—Abraham Lincoln.

Re-enforcements!

Bumper Crops Real Aid To Farmers

Bumper crops are promised throughout the entire United States, and farmers generally are feeling mighty optimistic. There is good reason to make the farmer feel good, for big crops mean more money—and gold takes the rough edges off of any nature.

The grain crop in Klamath county is figured at a million bushels, and crops of all kinds are huge here.

In the corn belt of the United States a crop of 2,750,000,000 bushels is forecast—the largest in years.

Truly, optimism should prevail and political muddling to lift farmers from the financial mire must give way to harvesting the bumper crops.

A Healthy, Happy Condition

Stability and Prosperity Now Ruling

Payrolls are steady, industries are operating, labor troubles have been forgotten and business is prospering right through the supposedly slack summer months. Money is plentiful for legitimate enterprises. We should be thankful to live in a country where such conditions obtain. We should do our part to perpetuate national harmony, and discourage propositions which tend to disrupt such stability and prosperity. Solid republican rule will guarantee a continuance of this healthy condition.

Both Business And Pleasure

Boosting Builds Cities Bigger And Better

A city booster radiates optimism. The real booster makes each step a forward, constructive one. The pessimist feels that the trend of his city is backward. The booster never feels that way. He is too full of the progressive spirit and knows that where there is a will there is a way and he has found the way, and that way is forward.

People radiating the spirit of optimism and progressiveness are those who build towns into cities and keep the wheels of industry moving at a rapid rate.

Nearly everyone can combine business with pleasure, and it is both business and pleasure to take an active part in the upbuilding and betterment of the home community.

To follow the leaders in city building is a good policy, and most cities lead because they have leaders and the people as a whole stand behind their leaders.

Some cities fail to go ahead, not because they have not good leaders, but on account of the indifference to their city's welfare on the part of the majority of its citizens.

United States Sets The Pace

Tangible Things Valued In America

For centuries, Europe has been the home of art, literature, learning, science, invention and the luxuries of life. But the masses could not generally share these luxuries with wealthy or officially prominent people. It remained for the United States in a short 150 years to give the telephone, electricity, the automobile, pianos, phonographs, modern railroad transportation, insurance, household gas appliances, the camera, and numerous other conveniences, many of which even today are luxuries in Europe, to the poorest citizen in this country as part of his daily life.

The result of America's high standard of living, developed under a system of private initiative and enterprise, is now being felt in Europe. The chamber of commerce of Paris and the French chambers of commerce, at which 140 chambers were represented, have adopted resolutions urging the French government to transfer the government-owned telephone service of France to private enterprises. Press reports declare that this movement in favor of private ownership has found support among trade associations throughout France.

You couldn't raise the hopes of some people with a derrick.

Re-Enforcements

The Best of Advice

By CLARK KINNAIRD

WASTED MAN

The key to the age may be this, or that, or the other, as the orators so willingly describe; to Emerson the key to all ages is—Imbecility:

Imbecility in the vast majority of men at all times, and even in heroes in all but certain eminent moments; victims of gravity, custom and fear.

"This gives force to the strong—that the multitude have no habit of self-reliance and original action," he concluded.

• • • •

So few men develop their natural faculties to the extent of their capabilities, that those who do tower above the masses like Gullivers among Lilliputians.

No one knows how great men can be because the common run of men are so obviously underdeveloped.

• • • •

Who shall set a limit to the influence of a human being?

Emerson, meditating upon this question, observed that there is not yet an inventory of man's faculties, any more than a bible of his opinions.

"There are men who by their sympathetic attractions carry nations with them and lead the activities of the human race.

"And if there be such a tie that wherever the mind of man goes, nature will accompany him, perhaps there are men whose magnetisms are of that force to draw material and elemental powers, and, where they appear, immense instrumentalities organize after them."

• • • •

Life is a search after POWER; and this is an element with which the world is so saturated that no honest seeking goes unrewarded.

"A man should prize events and possessions as the ore in which this power is found; and he can well afford to let events and possessions and the breath of body go, if their value has been added to him in the shape of power," Emerson opined.

"If he has secured the elixir, he can spare the wide gardens in which it is distilled.

"A cultivated man, wise to know and bold to perform, is the end to which Nature works, and the education of the will is the flowering and result of all this geology and astronomy."

A mountain of salt in Algeria, 800 feet high, and a mile wide at the top, is to be mined for commercial use.

With a new implement, round tins, such as those used for shoe polishes are easily opened without denting them.

Commercial aviation has been provided for Sweden by two companies that are developing a number of air routes.

Children's Pictorial Cross Word Puzzle

Running Across.

Word 1. What the man in the picture is using.

Word 4. The claws of a bird of prey.

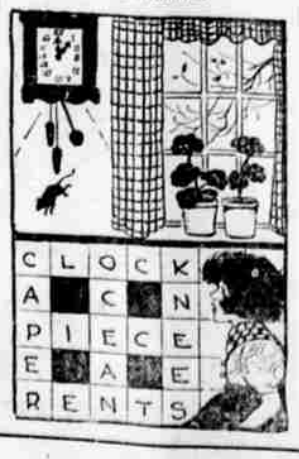
Word 5. A symbol. The flag is the national ——."

Running Down.

Word 2. A warning of danger.

Word 3. A long weapon, like a spear, used in ancient times.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED.



Dinner Stories

Night was approaching, and it was raining hard. The traveler dismounted from his horse and rapped at the door of the one mountain cabin he had struck in a five-mile stretch of traveling. No one came to the door.

As he stood on the doorstep the water from the eaves trickled down his collar. He rapped again. Still no answer. He could feel the stream of water coursing down his back. Another spell of pounding, and finally the red head of a lad of twelve was stuck out of the second story window.

"Whatcher want?" it asked.

"I want to know if I can stay here over night," the traveler answered testily.

The red-headed lad watched the man for a minute or two before answering.

"Ye kin for all of me," he finally answered, and then closed the window.

A well known contractor went into the tailor's, donned his new suit, and left his old one for repairs. Then he sought a cafe and refreshed the inner man; but as he reached in his pocket for the money to settle his check, he realized that he had neglected to transfer both purse and watch when he left his suit. As he hesitated, somewhat embarrassed, he saw a bill on the floor at his feet. Seizing it thankfully, he stepped to the cashier's desk and presented both check and money.

"That was a two-dollar bill," he explained, when he counted his change.

"I know it," said the cashier, with a toss of her bland head. "I'm dividing with you. I saw it first."

Only the front of a check is embossed by a new protective device, the back being left smooth for endorsements.

Shears to clip fruit and a bag to catch it, have been mounted on a pole by an Iowa inventor to save tree climbing.

Of English invention is an electrically driven hydraulic crane of considerable power, that can be operated by one man.

Heart and Home Pro

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

She Married "To Get a H

The girl who deliberately marries "to get a home" cannot expect much to come of her married life. No marriage, like no business, can be much of a success where a partner goes into it simply to gain something for himself, regardless of the other.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My mother died when I was four years old. I have never seen my father. I lived in an orphan's home until I was nine years old, when I was taken out by an aged lady who died six years later. Then an aunt, my only living relative, paid my way through a church academy for girls. Because of a siege of mumps and pneumonia I did not get to finish the last term and graduate. I returned to my aunt's and began working in a restaurant. I met a fellow who did not smoke, drink or gamble. I was sure he was my ideal. And after six months' friendship, we were married. One year and a half later our only child was born. He has never cared a snap for her. She is the very image of him. He has seldom taken her on his lap or tried to amuse her. She dislikes her father and I have tried to reason with him, but he won't listen. As she is eight years old, she understands things. She often says, "Mother, when I get bigger, we will go far away. Dad will never find us." He was good to me the first two years after our marriage. I can truthfully say now that I do not love him, and there is no other man in view. If I had a divorce I wouldn't marry the best man on earth for love or money. My husband never reads a paper, doesn't go anywhere, even though we have a car. I drive the car, and if I go away from home two afternoons a week he rages. "You use too much gas!" We haven't decent clothing and hardly enough furnishings in our home. I had to ask his employer for part of the wages to buy us food and clothing. He has several sisters who have mistreated me, and so has his mother. I have poor health. I have been through one severe operation, and have endured [illegible] crazy. I want [illegible] with shorter hours, but he won't [illegible] he has, and we [illegible] on his salary and pay $25 a [illegible] What I want to [illegible] a divorce and [illegible] I would put her [illegible] home and pay her [illegible] one would get her [illegible] go to work and [illegible] ried for a home.

"I married [illegible] the cause of [illegible] You could hardly [illegible] the heart of a [illegible] not love. After [illegible] years he probably [illegible] the fact that you [illegible] and since then [illegible] drifting along, [illegible] anything to better [illegible] not caring [illegible] Your financial [illegible] surprising. To [illegible] his salary; you [illegible] clothing or house [illegible] yet you are entitled [illegible] and operate as an [illegible] an honest effort [illegible] and I believe you [illegible] responsible.

• • •

MRS. W. T.: [illegible] kind letter, thanks [illegible] good advice I pre[illegible] trouble.

• • •

MRS. M. W.: [illegible] are like yours. [illegible] confide in the [illegible] their business af[illegible] fairs is not the [illegible] dence. I am sor[illegible] ing that this [illegible] sively their own [illegible] the women do.

In prospect[illegible] devoted to the [illegible] raises more wh[illegible] barley than any

---

A stand for [illegible] polishing outfit [illegible] angle that perm[illegible] person seated [illegible]

STEP-WORD PUZ

(PATENT APPLIED FOR)

Copyright, 1925, King Features Syndicate, Inc., Great Britain [illegible]

(Reproduction of this title "STEP-WORD," or of the design, including [illegible] in any way forbidden, except by arrangement with the King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

By ARTHUR WYNNE

Originator of the Modern Cross-Word Puzz

It will take you just 12 steps to go from ARMY to NAVY. Each step must make use of the definitions given below for your guidance. Can you work out this puzzle. Can you solve it? Most of the definitions have something to do with either the army or the navy, or both, so if any of your friends among the ex-service men may be of some assistance to you in finding the correct word to be inserted on each step. Only one letter is to be changed on each step. The solution to yesterday's puzzle as the solution to yesterday's puzzle is published herewith, including [illegible]

The solution to today's [illegible] appear tomorrow, together [illegible] step-word puzzle which [illegible] as a reminder that the [illegible] son is drawing [illegible] —from STRA[illegible] BY—in 19 [illegible] you can solve [illegible] waiting for [illegible] tions, [illegible] appear

Solution to yesterday's Step-Word Puzzle— SKIRT to WAIST— in 21 steps

DEFINITIONS:

1—Weapons
2—What the gunner does before he shoots
3—Ratchet rings on capstans
4—Solid projections [illegible] bows of war vessels
5—When the gun [illegible] sticks and won't [illegible]
6—Vibrations caused [illegible] sions
7—Sailors
8—To [illegible], as a [illegible]
[illegible] ring into rubber
—Every ship and vessel [illegible] ment has one
11—Central part of a ship resembling the [illegible] of a ship