

MICKEY WALKER IS PARDONED

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(United Press)—After two years of an involved controversy with the New York boxing commission, during which he was suspended once and was within two hours of another suspension, Mickey Walker, the world's welter weight champion, signed articles today to defend his title against Dave Shade, the California challenger, in the Yankee stadium on September 29.

Walker's suspension was lifted to permit him to meet Harry Greb in one of the feature bouts that was staged for the benefit of the Italian hospital fund, but he was forced to sign an agreement to accept Shade's long standing challenge.

Kearns To Go Ahead and Sign Jack—Jack Don't Recognize Him

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15.—(United News)—If it will spread any cheer in his life to do so, Jack Kearns may sign articles, for Jack Dempsey to fight a den of petulant wild cats, a battery of buzz saws and the United States marines simultaneously in one ring.

But Dempsey won't pay any attention to the arrangements because he concedes Kearns absolutely no right to make matches for him.

This was the champion's calm rejoinder Friday to the announcement of Kearns before that he, Kearns was ready to sign Dempsey for a fight with Harry Willis.

"I'm sitting on the driver's seat," Dempsey said. "I don't care what the New York boxing commission does. The commission means nothing in my life or my business. I'm going to fight Willis, but I'm the one who is going to arrange the match, not Kearns or the New York commission. They aren't kidding me. I'm 21 and I can make my own contracts. Kearns had me sign a contract when I was younger, appointing him my manager but I haven't got a copy of it and Kearns won't let me have a look at it. My lawyers say such a contract is illegal and if Kearns gets me sore I'll contest the contract in court. All I recall about it anyway, is that I promised to give him 1-3 percent of my earnings. Well, I'm willing to give him his cut if he behaves himself.

"If Kearns signs me for a match with Willis and I like the bargain I may go through with it, but if not I'll just ignore it."

Can These Old Boys Stand Strain?

The failure of lovable old Walt Johnson to return to his usual form has thrown the pitching burden of the Washington club on the shoulders of Marberry, Zachary, Coveleskie and Ruetter. Zachary hasn't been pitching in his usual form. Ruetter and Coveley are being overworked. If one of them should crack kiss the Nats, chances good bye. Can they stand the gaff?

and Young's sacrifice fly. Cox made the first run for Chicago in the eighth inning with a homer into the leftfield upper stands. He has hit safely in 15 games. Vance's single, Mitchell's sacrifice, Wheat's pass and Fournier's single sent in the winning runs in the ninth inning.

Catcher Ray Luebke, signed by the Yankees for service next season with whatever Miller Huggins collects in the way of a pitching strike between now and then—thought he was going to break into the majors last spring, but all he got out of his first chance was a nice long ride and half a dozen interesting talks from Florida real estate men. And oh, how interestingly they can talk!

Luebke was signed by the Philadelphia Nationals, but was sent back to Grand Island in the Tri-State league, after a brief tryout at Leesburg, Fla.

He first drew attention as a backstop while catching Saturdays, Sundays and holidays for an Omaha semi-pro team, The Waterloo, Ia., club in the Mississippi valley league gave him his first real job in 1922. The end of the season found Rochester seeking his services. He joined the international league outfit the following spring, only to find himself handicapped in his efforts to make good because of a hum throwing arm.

He alighted with the Grand Island team of the Tri-State league, and it was his work there that drew him the brief trial with the Phils.

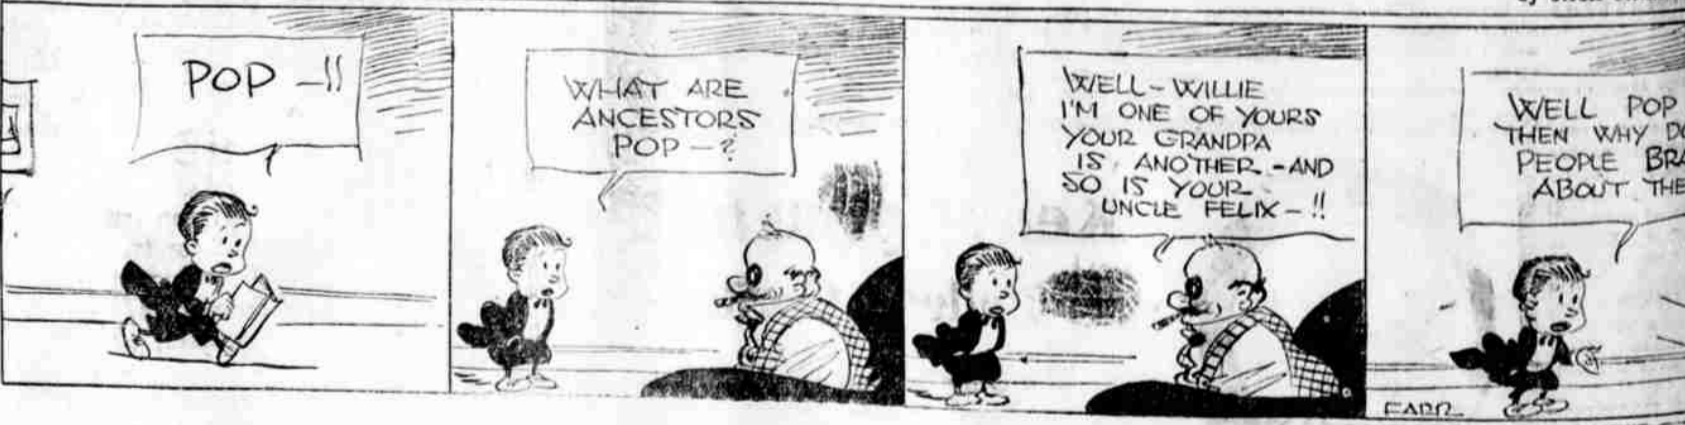

When he returned to Grand Island after his tryout his arm grew stronger, but the league grew weaker and when it busted up Luebke was out of a job. He hooked up with Omaha in mid-season last year, and wound up with a reputation as a catcher and a fair batting average. To date this year he has hit close to .400 mark, and has drawn more attention by his backstopping.

Luebke's father is a butcher and Luebke did his first receiving over the telephone. Roy got so he could
