CHILDREN
NEED GLAND
NOURISHMENT

Most children today are victims of gland deficiency, and are therefore listless, backward in their studies, and sullen and discontented.

In large institutions for children where they are under the constant supervision of capable medical examiners, it was found that many children were suffering from gland deficiency.

Experiments with gland extracts were made and the change in the disposition of the children was marvelous. These results were made known to the public by the newspapers, and many thinking parents became interested in the treatment.

One mother says, "I had become very much interested in the articles on the gland treatment for children. Our son is ten years old, backward in his classes, lacked concentration, and seemed to lack the strength to play as his playmates did. I decided to try a gland treatment, and Kath, the Gland Tonic, was recommended by our druggist. The results were wonderful. We now have a robust, active boy, well up in his classes, and a leader in all the games. I regret that we often misjudged the boy, when his physical condition only was the cause."

As a stimulant and tonic for children, Kath, the Gland Tonic, has no equal. For sale by:
