GREATER REWARD IS OFFERED FOR SALEM CONVICTS

PORTLAND, Aug. 19. — (United News)—Reward of $500 for the capture, alive or dead, of Tom Murray, Ellsworth Kelly and James Willos, escaped convicts from the Oregon state prison, was offered Wednesday night by Mayor G. L. Baker and Chief of Police L. V. Jenkins of Portland, provided the fugitives were taken within the city limits.

Baker said the money would come from the general fund of the city, and would be paid the captor if only one of the desperadoes is taken, the others getting away.

As suddenly as it flared up Monday night, excitement in Portland over the reported arrival of the convicts has died down again, with officials of the opinion that the trio is far away from this city by now. Likewise, clues seemed to point to the state of Washington, where Murray has connections, and where various reports emanated Wednesday to indicate that the bandits might be in the vicinity of Puget sound, or headed in that direction.

That a number of Portland people would gladly harbor the trio has reached the ears of the police. While running down a "tip" Tuesday, one

LOCAL LONG FELLOWS FORM THEIR ORGANIZATION AT NIGHT SESSION

Long Fellows of Klamath Falls are original, to say the least, and they are passing up the father organization in that they are sponsoring a number of new features in the Tall Men's line which have not been brought up previously by other groups of Long Fellows.

Longer shirt sleeves is one of these and petitions to makers of cars, too short for the length of a long man's knees to make manufacturer the distance from the seat of the inspectors reported he questioned a neighbor near a house which had been "suspected" and he was informed that "they are not here, but I wouldn't hesitate a moment to see that they get help to evade you 'bulls'."

SEATTLE, Aug. 19.—Mr. and Mrs. James Murray, aged parents of Tom Murray, escaped Oregon convict, live on Bainbridge Island, a few miles from Seattle.

They have lived there many years, and reared their family of four children—two boys and two girls. Tom is the "baby" of the family. Day and night the home is watched, a trap is waiting for him should Murray venture home. Police say Murray is the hardest of criminals. Yet they know there is one soft place in his heart—just as every other criminal does, he loves his home, and authorities are confident he will try to make his way home some time.

Rumors of desperate armed men being seen in this vicinity drift to the Murrays' little farm house, and Tom's parents, their hair turning gray with age, look on, towards the distant skyline of Seattle and wonder if their son is now in hiding there—and hoping for his own sake that he won't come home.

A booster for Klamath county and Klamath Falls and every legitimate industry therein—that's the Klamath News to the foot pedals longer, is another.

These things were discussed last night in the chamber of commerce when a number of Long Fellows met to perfect a temporary organization in Klamath Falls.

Everett O. Nord, sales manager of the Munger Service Laundries was elected temporary chairman when he vied with Dr. H. D. Lloyd Stewart, physician and surgeon, for first place in height. Both Nord and Stewart measure six feet three inches in their socks.

The next meeting will be called by Nord with the arrival of by-laws and data from Marshfield headquarters. The affair will be in the form of a luncheon in the chamber of commerce rooms. Every Long Fellow has pledged to bring a Long Fellow.
