

KELLY AND WILLOS CAPTURED LIVE BY SURPRISING POSSES

MIDWATER, Wash., Aug. 22.—United Press—Ellsworth James Willos, escaped Oregon convicts, were captured by authorities about 5 o'clock this afternoon, while they were eating in a ravine between this city and Mid-water men were surprised by a posse, and surrendered without bloodshed. The convicts will be taken back to the penitentiary tonight or tomorrow to await charges of the slaying of two penitentiary guards.

Deputy Sheriff Tom Murray, was captured today at Centralia, and is now back in confinement at Salem.

The capture was made by Deputy Sheriffs Christofferson, Rexford and Constable Gloss, all of Portland, after 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Portland officers had gone to White Salmon, Wash., following word that the party had broken up there Friday afternoon after searching barns, houses, ravines and gullies for a distance of forty miles they came upon the convicts. They closed in on the two men, and then covering them with their rifles ordered the escaped men to throw up their hands.

In the case of the arrest of Murray, no resistance was offered by either Kelly or Willos.

The capture of Willos and Kelly ended the hunt for the two men who escaped from the Salem penitentiary on the night of August 12, when J. M. Holman and John Sweeney, prison guard and Bert "Oregon" Jones, convict, were killed. The two men were doomed to hang.

ROTARY ADOPTS RESOLUTION TO CUT FALLS OFF

Unanimous approval was given by members of the Rotary club of Klamath Falls in support of the adoption of a resolution to drop the Falls from the city's name.

The resolution was drawn up by J. A. Gordon, Wilson Wiley and W. O. Smith.

Plans now under way are to obtain the support of the chamber of commerce, Kiwanis club and other civic bodies and luncheon clubs in order to appoint joint committees to wait upon the city council to receive legal action in the granting of the change in the name.

Following is the resolution as presented to the club at their weekly luncheon yesterday:

WHEREAS, There exists within the boundaries of the city of Klamath Falls, Oregon, a rugged and tortuous canyon, bearing today little resemblance to its once majestic appearance, through which formerly rolled the entire volume of the waters of Upper Klamath lake, and

WHEREAS, In the happy days, now forever past, these turbulent waters, known as Link river, first roaring over large boulders, then murmuring along, over a course of more than one mile, were the scene of many a sportsman in pursuit of piscatorial pleasures, and

WHEREAS, With the onward and upward march of industrial progress, and with the passing of the covered wagon, the Bucket of Blood, the antelope and the water snakes, these laughing waters, too, have become but a pleasant memory for the pioneer to muse over, and

WHEREAS, With the thought and hope of Uncle Sam that "the desert shall be made to blossom as the rose," eminent engineers early discovered the feasibility of diverting the waters from Upper Klamath lake, a natural reservoir, and utilizing them for the irrigation of agricultural crops on vast areas extending to the California border; that, as result thereof, millions of dollars have been expended by the United States in the construction of an extensive irrigation system, known as the "Klamath Project," a massive intake has been installed on the margin of this lake, a short distance above the head of Link river, through which 1500 second feet of water rushes, forming a new course, and on a new and more useful mission, but greatly diminishing in volume the waters of Link river, and

WHEREAS, A giant hydro-electric power plant now towers above the rocky river bed, once occupied by white cascades; a mighty dam of concrete and steel now stays the remaining flow of waters that once carelessly tumbled along calling to the sea; vast railway systems impatiently vie with each other to be the first to further transform the physical appearance of this former par-excellent trout stream, with steel rails and terminal facilities, and

WHEREAS, Even now, and for some time past, our newly acquired neighbors and friends, unfamiliar with the sentimental traditions of Link river, frequently raise the pertinent and logical point: "Why the 'Falls' in Klamath Falls," and

WHEREAS, The word "Falls" in the corporate name of "City of Klamath Falls," Oregon, having long since fully served its usefulness, and now being more or less an incongruity, owing to changed conditions, and, not desiring to be placed in the position of bringing disappointment to the many new citizens we soon hope to welcome to our city, by a failure to be able to exhibit to them the water falls

2ND WARDERS TO ASK COUNCIL FOR SPECIAL ELECTION

Scores Want Recognition in City Council; Many Possible Candidates Ready To Come Out

Not for long is the second ward to be unrepresented in the Klamath Falls city council.

Residents of the district, aroused following the council's refusal to hold, voluntarily, a special election at which to select an alderman, yesterday declared that they will go before the city fathers and demand that their district have a voice in the city's affairs.

Mystery surrounds the identity of the individual who will step up and declare himself a candidate. Several persons have been mentioned by those interested in the politics of the second ward, but no name has been put forth publicly.

Action Underway "There are no petty politics governing my actions, but I feel that our district should have a voice in the council, and I am willing to back any move to see that we get representation," declared Dr. J. H. Carter, dentist, whose home is in the second ward. "I believe that every public-spirited citizen of the district in which I live will be willing to go down the line to see that we have a councilman." Dr. Carter added that, while he himself may not have time to circulate a petition demanding a special election, he will be behind any such move.

Many Behind Move C. H. Daggett, another prominent resident of the second ward, expressed himself along similar lines. Although he pointed out that, with his many other duties, he will not have time to circulate a petition demanding an election, at the same time he will be actively interested in any move which will have for its purpose the securing of representation in the council from the ward of which he is a resident.

H. N. Moe, another resident of Ward No. 2, who was reported to be interested in the move for an election, was out of the city yesterday.

Many Possible Candidates O. L. Carter, of the second ward, said that it was possible he may be a candidate for councilman from his district, but added that he would be unable to do any active work toward securing a ballot on the question.

A. J. Lyle, manager of the Klamath General hospital has been frequently mentioned as a possible candidate. As yet he has not thrown his hat in the ring, however. Roland Wright is another possible candidate. To date, however, he has remained silent as to whether or would announce his candidacy.

2nd Ward Wants It The problem regarding the representation of the second ward presented itself to the council last Monday evening. Several weeks ago Merle S. West, councilman from the second ward, tendered his resignation with no comment. At the last meeting of the aldermen, it was suggested that a special election, as provided by the city charter, be held, but a motion to that effect received no second and died a natural death.

At the present time it appears that, if the second ward wishes to have a voice among the aldermen, it must formally present a petition demanding a special election, the cost of which will be approximately $500.

The general attitude of the council, at its last session, seemed to be to the effect that, if the second ward wishes to be represented it will take enough interest to petition the council for a special ballot.

Dentist's Steno Will Aid in Prosecution For Wife's Murder

Young's Trial Takes Turn As State Brings Out New Evidence

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 21.—(United News)—Mrs. Dorothy Leopold Mahan, formerly office assistant to Dr. Thomas W. Young, was brought to the stand Friday to tighten the state's noose about the neck of the dentist, accused of the cistern slaying of his wealthy wife.

In faltering testimony she admitted she had spent several week-ends at the Young murder cabin with her mother and other guests, and that dancing and parties were held above the cistern where Mrs. Young lay entombed under several feet of cement.

Girl Was Tricked Facing her trying ordeal with a grim, determined smile, the young woman told how she was tricked by Dr. Young so thoroughly that she refused to believe he was responsible for Mrs. Young's death, even after he had been arrested and jailed.

"He explained his wife's long absence so convincingly," she said, "that even after he had been indicted I championed him."

A gripping cross-examination of the young woman will be made by the defense in an attempt to prove she is incompetent to testify against the asserted slayer.

Step-Son Against Dad A boy who once lovingly stroked the hair of Dr. Young, will be used by the state Tuesday to weave together the strands of the gallows rope, when young Charles Patrick Grogan takes the stand against his step-father.

This boy, son of Mrs. Young by a previous marriage, and heir to a million dollar estate, left by the late "Ripe Olive" Grogan, was to have been the next victim, according to the state.

The youth, who is 18 years of age, will be asked to testify concerning the dentist's eager efforts to become his guardian.

Helped Fill Hole He is also expected to testify that his step-father ordered him to pour the cement into the cistern, which sealed his mother. Young Grogan at a coroner's autopsy, said he was hurried to the Young cabin at Beverly Glen and then asked to help in making a concrete base for the newly built cistern.

After he had poured a wheelbarrow full in the hole, he said, his step-father laughed so that it frightened him.

Big Tujunga Forest Fire Under Control

PASADENA, Calif., Aug. 21.—(United News)—Considerable relief was felt here Friday when word was received that the Big Tujunga forest fire ten miles north of here was under control except at one small point.

Between 700 and 800 smoke begrimed men, most of whom have small burns to show for their efforts, are still battling the blaze by back firing tactics.

The Pasadena water shed over which a menace has hung since the flames broke out Tuesday, was declared out of danger Friday night.

The exodus of campers from the mountain resorts toward which the fire was beating at a speed of one mile an hour, was stopped by forest rangers, who explained there was no longer any need for alarm at these points.

GENEVA, Switz., Aug. 21.—Eventually the United States will enter the league of nations, Colonel House said here today.

MAHAFFIE, I. C. C. HEAD OF FINANCE TO HOLD HEARING

Applications Of All Roads To Be Conducted In One Survey At Portland In October

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(United News)—The Central Oregon railroad controversy in all its phases will come up for hearing at the court house in Portland on October 5, before Charles D. Mahaffie, director of finance of the interstate commerce commission.

An order to this effect was made public by the commission today. Five proceedings are set for hearing at the same time, the application of the Oregon, California & Eastern for extension of its lines from Sprague river, heading the list. Next comes the Oregon Trunk railway's application for authority to construct from Bend to Klamath Falls via Sycan river, and Central Pacific's request for building from Klamath Falls to Cornell, Cal. Last in the procession are the Southern Pacific applications for permission to acquire control of the Oregon, California & Eastern and the Nevada, California and Oregon, the latter the Lakeview line of Charles Moran.

The listing of all proceedings for this round up signifies the desire of the commission to take the entire situation into one survey, which is also the expressed wish of the parties.

The pleadings have represented them as inter-dependent as to the Southern Pacific and the Lines it has agreed to acquire, and the big battle is expected to come over the proposed invasion of Klamath Falls territory by the northern lines, as represented by the Oregon Trunk application.

Salvation Army Lass Will Tag You Today In Humanity's Name

Today the girl on the corner will ask you to buy a tag. And if you do—

Tomorrow, perhaps, the stranger will sink past you on the street. He won't ask you for the meal he needs, or for money to help his family which hasn't had enough to eat. Probably he won't care to solicit your aid, but even so, you may be responsible for the fact that he and his family have a new start.

For the girl on the street today will be representing the Salvation Army, and it is the business of the Salvation Army to seek out those who have been visited with misfortune. If, today, you buy the tag which the Salvation Army worker asks you to buy, you may tomorrow help the man who is really deserving.

According to Captain Hopper, local officer in charge, the quota for Klamath county is $5,583, and every effort is to be made to raise that sum.

The budget includes an appropriation for the completion of the building recently erected here.

GET ON YOUR GLAD RAGS TAKE IN THE BIG BASEBALL GAME AT WEED TOMORROW ROUND TRIP, $4.14 TRAIN LEAVES AT 9:30 A. M.

EDITOR KILLS BYSTANDER IN HOTEL LOBBY ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Aug. 21.—(United News)—Carl C. Magee, editor of the New Mexico State Tribune, Albuquerque shot and killed J. B. Lassiter of Santa Fe, in the lobby of the Meadows hotel in Las Vegas, in firing two shots at Judge David J. Leahy, who had attacked Magee and knocked him to the floor. Lassiter, a bystander, rushed forward to drag Leahy from Magee, who had been beaten to the floor. Leahy was kicking Magee. The editor pulled a .25 Colt revolver from his pocket, and as he was lying on the floor, fired two shots. One struck Lassiter in the neck, causing his death a few moments later. The second shot struck Leahy in the left arm. Magee is being held in a hotel room pending investigation, and a coroner's inquest Saturday morning. Leahy is the judge who sentenced Magee on three occasions for contempt of court. BACK TO SHACK NORTHAMPTON, Mass.—President Coolidge came back last night to the little $32.50-a-month house in which he lived while getting his start in law and politics on one of the most venerable errands known to married life. He is visiting his mother-in-law, Mrs. Elmira Goodhus. With Mrs. Coolidge, the president drove down dusty Vermont and Massachusetts roads into Northampton.
