they might naturally wish to see. THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED: That the Klamath Falls Rotary club, at its regular weekly noon-day luncheon, held August 14, 1925, formally go on record as favoring the dropping of the word "Falls" from the name of the municipal corporation, "City of Klamath Falls," Oregon, and BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That a copy of these resolutions be delivered to the Klamath county chamber of commerce, with the suggestion that this body ask the proper city officials to take whatever steps may be necessary, at their earliest convenience, to endeavor to make the change in name herein recommended.

J. A. Gordon moved the adoption of the resolution. Motion put and unanimously carried. Dated this 14th day of August, 1925.

PROHIBITION IS LOOKED IN FACE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—For the first time, the government is looking this problem of prohibition enforcement squarely in the face. This is the real meaning of the new machinery in which 24 regional directors have been named by Lincoln C. Andrews, the dry chief and whose elaborate checks and safeguards came as a surprise.

During the regime of Prohibition Commissioner Roy A. Haines the formal statements regarding prohibitions were all optimistic. Andrews, in one paragraph of his statement Friday, took notice officially for the first time, of the real situation and then proceeded to outline the government's new machinery, which provides a secret service staff, an array of counsel to aid directors and several former soldiers to advise on coast guard operations against rum runners.

2 COUNCILMEN ARE INDICTED

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 21.—(United News)—Indictments charging city councilmen Charles E. Downs and Joe Fitzpatrick with accepting $2,000 in bribe money for their votes favoring an ordinance were voted by the grand jury here Friday.

The councilmen are specially accused of soliciting and accepting $1,000 each to waive their objections to an ordinance authorizing a moving sidewalk for pedestrians. A third indictment was drawn against Jack Murphy, city hall lobbyist, charging him with being an accomplice.

Downs and Fitzpatrick were suspended from the city council shortly following the announcement that the indictments had been returned against them.

DALE MATTOON IS OUT FOR FAIR PRIZE

Dale Mattoon, the only breeder of purebred Hereford in the county, entered his herd at the fair board office yesterday. Mr. Mattoon is clamoring for competition, and the inkling that the famous herd of Reginald Parsons of Hill, Calif., would come to Klamath to compete this year, awakened much speculation. Animals from both these herds have competed at the Pacific International, but Mr. Mattoon has raised several outstanding animals from his Beau Blanchard the 48th, and wants to see if the strain has improved since last in competition with Mr. Parsons.

Mr. Mattoon has entered eight animals in single entry and two young herds, pair of calves and got of sire. One of his most interesting entries is the aged cow Dorothy Vth, with calf by side. All the animals entered are sired by his herd bull Beau Blanchard the 48th. Mr. Mattoon's home ranch is near Fort Klamath, but for prize and training for the fall shows he has brought his entire herd to the Lawrence Horton ranch, near Olney which is more convenient to reach after business hours.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(United News)—The question of Russian recognition has been brought to the fore again through the forthcoming visit to Russia of three Americans, who in the past have been close students of soviet affairs as well as "eyes" for administration officials.

One of them, former Governor James P. Goodrich of Indiana, was a director in the Russian relief administration and a "reporter" for President Harding. He visited widely in Russia in these capacities and intends to make a thorough study on this trip on which he will be gone two months. He is well known in political circles here.

The other two are William N. Haskell, who was director of the American relief administration in Russia during the famine, and Dr. F. A. Golder, of Leland Stanford university. All three will attend the celebration of the academy of sciences at Leningrad, and that is the ostensible purpose of their visit, although Goodrich also has announced that he will go through the agricultural districts to find out the condition of the people.

Goodrich and Golder sailed from New York Thursday. They will join Haskell in Europe.

RIFF WAR WILL END BY WINTER

PARIS, Aug. 21.—(United News)—Complete victory over the Rifians before winter was predicted by Marshal Pétain after his conference with Prime de Rivera at Algiers. At the conference plans were laid for a crushing offensive which it is expected will end definitely the Rifian menace.

Primo de Rivera pledged 75,000 Spanish and native troops while France will employ an equal number. Both the French and the Spanish leaders believe that once the offensive starts all the dissident movements will collapse, leaving Abd el Krim without an army and easy prey.

Some of the Tsoul tribesmen who have surrendered have declared that Abd el Krim is preparing a formidable movement as a last stand. He has obtained the promise of the Senhadjes and Branes tribes to support his regular forces. Now the rebel chieftain needs only time in which to gather his troops.

In the meantime the French columns continue to clean up the newly acquired territory of the Tsouls. There is little fighting going on and the nights are absolutely calm. The French are allowing their troops a much needed opportunity to rest.

NEW DISEASE IN OREGON BROUGHT TO LIGHT THROUGH K. F. PHYSICIAN

Washington Physical Research Expert Commends Dr. Deitsche For Ability And Perseverance In Running Down Peculiar Malady

A case of Tularemia, an infectious disease, closely related to Bubonic plague, has been reported by Dr. Dietzche, local physician and surgeon. This is the first case of this disease, which has ever been diagnosed and confirmed by laboratory tests in the state of Oregon. As far as is known, the disease is confined to the United States, cases being reported from 13 different states since 1910, the year in which the disease was discovered. The disease has been described since under various names, such as: plague-like disease, deerfly-fever, rabbit fever, glandular type of tick fever, etc.

Tularemia is caused by the entrance of a germ, called Bacterium tularensis into the human body. There are two ways of entrance. Rodents, such as jack rabbits and ground squirrels are hosts for the bacterium and persons who come in contact with the internal organs of these animals, like market men, cooks, hunters, farmers, may contract the disease. More commonly the germs are transmitted by infected bloodsucking insects such as deer or horseflies or ticks.

The onset of the disease is sudden, several days after the time of the infection, with chills and high fever and general prostration.

Patients who contracted the disease directly from the rodents show symptoms resembling those caused by typhoid fever. The insect bitten patients show first a papule, later an ulcer at the site of the bite. At the same time the lymph glands, which drain the infected area, swell markedly and often they form abscesses.

In all cases fever and symptoms of severe illness last from one to three weeks, but a weakness remains for two or three months.

The prognosis is generally good, though several cases were reported which ended fatally.

J. H. Stevens from Summer lake was bitten by a deerfly on his right shoulder and developed all symptoms of tularemia, including an abscess in the right axilla. He is improving steadily and is expected to recover completely within the next few weeks.

In this case the diagnosis has been confirmed by a blood test, made at the Treasury Department, U. S. Public Health Service Laboratory at Washington, D. C. Dr. Edward Francis, who is a well known scientific investigator of this disease wrote the following letter concerning the case of Mr. Stevens: "Serum of J. H. Stevens of Summer lake was found to agglutinate Bacterium tularensis thus confirming your suspicion of tularemia. I believe this is the first case of tularemia from Oregon to be confirmed by serological test, although some suspicious cases have been reported by physicians of the state."

I congratulate you on your diagnosis; it goes to show that these cases can be found when one keeps the disease in mind."

EDWARD FRANCIS, M. D.
Chief Surgeon.

TED LEWIS IS PROHI VICTIM

Operatives of the sheriff's office yesterday at 10 a. m. swooped down on what is now known as the old county poor farm, of which Ted Lewis is the proprietor.

Deputies said they found an empty keg, which smelled of liquor, and several bottles partially filled with moonshine. Three men and a woman, besides Mr. Lewis, were at the farm, it was said.

Charged with possession of liquor, Lewis entered a plea of guilty before Justice of the Peace Ed Kendall. He was ordered to pay a fine of $150.
