

FAMED HILLCREST HERD IS ENTERED IN KLAMATH FAIR

Word was received yesterday by the Klamath county fair board that the famous Hillcrest herd of Herefords, property of Reginald Parsons of Hill, California, will be brought to the Klamath county fair this year.

Herdman Bayless of the Hillcrest Farms phoned the fair board yesterday morning asking if 15 stalls might be reserved for the huge white-faces. The animals insured for many thousands of dollars will arrive by manifest freight next Wednesday and a group of interested livestock men are sure to be waiting not only to extend the glad hand to the visiting herdsman but to size up the newcomers. The only breeder of purebreds entered for this year's competition to date, is Dale Mattoon of Fort Klamath. Mr. Mattoon has been lamenting the fact that to date he has had no competition. Mr. (Buck) D. O. Williams is a breeder of the popular white-face but has never seen fit to enter the local show. With the coming of the Hill herd, it might be that a nice little triangular show for Herefords could be staged at the coming fair.

The Hillcrest herd have won repeated championships at the Pacific International and several years were taken to Chicago for the International.

ALASKAN FISHING VESSELS IN U. S.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—One by one, sailing vessels of the Alaska fishery fleet have arrived off the Golden Gate and been towed to anchorage by puffing harbor tugs.

Men along the waterfront commented mournfully on the lack of real sailfomen, with ability to bring in their commands unaided.

The Star of Peru, spurning offers of help, drove in by the heads Wednesday, a brisk west wind bellying her topsails and heeling her far to starboard. She wheeled gracefully past Meigs wharf and then dropped her hooks as the crew scrambled aloft to make her snug.

3 FIREMEN HURT IN ENGINE CRASH

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 27.—Three members of the Sacramento fire department, including Terence Mulligan, second assistant chief, were injured; two of them more or less seriously, this afternoon when Mulligan's automobile and engine No. 2 collided at Ninth and N streets. At the time of the accident the firemen were rushing to a small fire in a woodshed in the rear of an apartment house at Eighth and Q streets. Mulligan is suffering from an injured back and possible internal injuries. The other injured firemen are Carl Wonderly, 35, injuries to back; E. Rehn, 22, severe bruises and abrasions.

To Graft Klamath Wild Plums With Southern Species

When a bugologist asked you where he could find an untamed specie of prunus, domestica of Europe, hortulana or Americana, one of the specie of flacourtia or perianium, would you, without raising a well groomed eyebrow tell him wild plums were found on the Skillet Handle, or with veracity call up the "bug-house?"

For Wednesday afternoon, into the chamber of commerce walked one bugologist, oh, we beg your pardon, we mean an entomologist, no, not that, either. We mean a dignified horticulturist, one W. F. Wight, a professor from the plant industry department of Stanford university, who was seeking the home of the Klamath native wild plum.

Not in the least did he bowl Mrs. Leah Smith over. On many times has she been demanded to point out the way to the Klamath "Falls."

But Professor Wight obtained what information he could in regard to the long list of names, and is now on his way to Skillet Handle, where he will take back with him several of the wild plum plants, to be used in crossing with the tame plum in his laboratory in Stanford university.

Another cross will be attempted by the professor while in the Klamath country, and that is with the mountain lilies that are known throughout the coast for their beauty, as found only in the Klamath country.

Chiloquin Leaps To Front in Big Bounds of Late

Chiloquin is coming into her own. Boasting a payroll that will put the Klamath immediate payroll into shame, she is blossoming out like a real city should, and will soon make a name for herself in a way she that has not done in the past.

A new $8,000 dance hall is being erected in the business district of the city of Chiloquin.

The city fathers, if they are burdened with such, have given authority to twenty home builders who now have as many homes under construction, to be finished long before the first snow flies.

And that isn't half of it. Chiloquin is having a new home for its newspaper, the spokesman of the people, and in more ways than one, "the home of the brave."

A. C. Glenger, well known business man of Chiloquin, made a brief visit to Klamath Falls yesterday afternoon.

According to the visitor, the town is booming like no other town in Oregon has for some time, and it will not be many Indian moons before the squaws on the reservation are chatting over their coffee with a Chiloquin newspaper on their knee.

Yea, verily! Chiloquin is coming into its own!

Plebiscite Deprives 30,000 of Homes in Poland

The League of Nations has been asked to aid 30,000 German fugitives who fled or were sent out of Poland because, it is alleged, they voted for Germany in the plebiscite held to determine the sovereignty of important territory, formerly German. The fugitives are living in a "primitive Ellis Island" at Schneidmuhl, on the German border, as shown.

35 New Orleans City Officials Indicted

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 27.—(United News)—Walter Cohen, comptroller of customs, and L. A. Meraux, sheriff of St. Bernard parish, together with 32 others, including four former members of the New Orleans police force, and two deputy sheriffs, were indicted Thursday by a federal grand jury.

Cohen and Meraux were charged with conspiracy and liquor smuggling, as were most of the others. Cohen is accused of granting freedom of the port to the Rita, a speedboat allegedly used for rum running. The grand jury also disclosed the payment of $19,000 to Pat Needham, federal prohibition "under cover man." The money was to have been used in an attempt to bribe O. D. Jackson, regional prohibition director. At the time Needham is said to have obtained the money Jackson was state prohibition director.

TONG WAR IS FEARED IN CHI. CHINATOWN

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—In the obscure Chinese colonies of mid-west cities, where gay lanterns hang over the marble-topped tables of chop suey parlors, on the fear of the tong war spread.

In Chicago, where there has been one killing, 24 Chinese are in custody. Special police squads guarded Chinatown on the receipt of word that fifteen gunmen of the Hip Sing tong were enroute to this city to carry on the warfare here.

INDIAN TRIBES IN CRAZED POW-WOW

GALLUP, N. M., Aug. 27.—Under the light of a hundred camp fires, the greatest pagan spectacle ever staged in America was re-enacted Thursday night, when four ancient Indian tribes united in their sacred tribal dances and ceremonies. Three thousand red men, encamped on the hills near here for the fourth annual pow-wow of the southern tribes, lived again the savage days when tomahawk and flint arrow were the undisputed rulers of New Mexico. While venerable chieftains of the Hopi, Navajos, Tesques, Cochitans, Zennis, Apache and many other tribes, met in solemn council to recount the tales of wars and hunting, bucks and braves swayed by the resonant boom-boom of the tom-toms.

Mexican Shot To Death For Wanting Education

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 27.—(United News)—Antonio Robles was shot to death because he believed in education, according to the Mexican authorities who are seeking his slayers.

Robles was a member of the Huichol tribe of Indians, who live in the state of Calisco. The tribe is hostile to the ways of civilization, and particularly abhor education.

Inspired with a desire to purge his tribe of illiteracy, Robles established a school and refused to stop teaching, when warned to do so. Finally the tribal council tried Robles. He was convicted of treason to the tribal customs. The penalty, which was carried out, was that Robles should be shot to death.

FORMER K. F. MAN DIES IN TALENT

Announcement of the death of Robert B. Purvis of Talent, Oregon, was made yesterday afternoon, coming as a shock to his many friends who knew the deceased while he made his home for two years with his uncle, O. A. Stearns of Klamath Falls.

Robert Purvis, son of Mrs. Armina Purvis, died Monday, August 24, in a Medford hospital. Burial was held in the old Stearns' cemetery on Wagner creek, by the side of his father and grandfather, who were buried years ago in the same plot.

The man, a nephew of O. A. Stearns of this city, made many friends while a resident for several years in Klamath Falls, who will mourn his death.
