

PREMIER COURT PILED WITH LIQUOR CASES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Much about the Volstead act, the tax law and the World war cases heard in the dignified court when it begins its fall term. The docket is jammed with cases growing from these two statutes, now much in the eye, and from the war. Some are freakish in their nature and others may set precedents. The court begins its fall term Oct. 5. The department of justice is preparing the numerous cases the solicitor general will present on behalf of the government.

Interesting at the batch of tax and tax cases, some of which challenge the law from new sources, are a number of cases dealing with German claims for property lost during the war, the decision in which will establish precedent among these are several brought by leading shipping companies seeking compensation for 20 or 25 vessels seized by this government at New York during the war. Among these is the giant Leviathan, formerly owned by the German line which was seized under the American flag. The claims involve millions of dollars.

There are 24 suits to be argued in the court, which seeks recovery of the face value of bonds of the federal government out of Germany now held by the alien property custodian. Holders of bonds now valueless, want the United States to reimburse them out of the United States treasury. Suits likewise involve millions of dollars.

There are also cases seeking payment of debts owed by Germans, outstanding held by the alien property custodian, involving the question of interest, and whether it should be during the period of participation by this government in the war and what rate of exchange should be applied.

WELL-KNOWN LAWYER TELLS HIS SECRET

All His Friends Pleased

For a long time he had appeared worn and nervous, was very irritable, and appeared to be on the verge of a breakdown.

Now he appears in public with ruddy cheeks and a youthful appearance, with the springy step of youth, and his colleagues noticed his quickness in judgment and keenness of vision.

At first when questioned as to the remarkable change, he would only smile, but at last, because of the help it might be to these friends, he told them of Kath, the Gland Tonic.

On account of peculiar ideas some people have of a gland treatment, and fearing ridicule, he had kept silent. He was amazed to learn from his friend, a prominent physician, that gland treatments have been used for years, and extensively in recent years on account of the results of scientific research. Thus his own feelings were fortified, and he resolved to tell his secret, as he called it, to his friends.

He says: "I am very glad that I told my friends of Kath, the Gland Tonic, for a number of my friends who were run-down, nervous, and fagged-out, are now enjoying the best of health, and are in my class in youthful appearance and quick judgment."

Kath the wonderful Gland Tonic, is now for sale by:

Bend Lends a Hand To Northern Lines

BEND, Sept. 2.—Bend is standing by ready to furnish a mass of testimony to the interstate commerce commission on potential tonnage and extent of territory in support of the Oregon Trunk southern extension program. R. S. Hamilton, member of the state legislature from central Oregon told the Bend Commercial club Wednesday.

He characterized petitions, resolutions and delegations giving support as "brass band" methods and said that any such activity would be against the wishes of Oregon Trunk officials.

Belief That Aviators Met Death Gains Ground

HONOLULU, Sept. 2.—(United News)—Belief that Commander John Rodgers and his crew of four men have met death in the tossing waters of the Pacific mounted steadily Wednesday as hours passed with only discouraging reports from the submarines, destroyers and airplanes, which have been searching for a trace of the missing seaplane PN-9-1.

The men directing the hunt for the lost aviators report their positions occasionally to navy headquarters here, but at 12:20 p. m. (Honolulu time) no news that would indicate any success had been received.

The sea south and east of the island of Maui was reported moderating and the wind which has howled dimly over the tumbling waters was said to be diminishing. It is thought that rain was still falling.

The plane tender Arcostock road-locked just before noon that misty squalls of rain was retarding their search. A driving downpour made visibility poor, lookouts on the ships being able to see only a short distance through the heavy weather.

Little Hope Held for Rescue of Aviators

HONOLULU, Sept. 2.—Hope for the naval seaplane PN-9-1 and her crew of five airmen lost in the tropic waters of the mid-Pacific is near end.

At 2 p. m., Wednesday Commander John Rodgers' plane missing almost exactly 24 hours. The last wireless message from the big ship said she was out of gas and must descend to an angry, snarling sea. That was at 2:12 p. m. Tuesday. The navy will not abandon hope for the fliers until many more hours, even days, have elapsed, but from the group of naval vessels and planes which are searching sea not sign of encouragement.

Congress Committee Hears Pleas for Postal Rate Cut

Changes in postal rates are expected to be the result of the special joint congressional committee's hearing in Chicago. Complaints are being made by mailers that rates are too high, but congress is faced by the necessity of increasing the postal revenues to cover the increased salaries granted P. O. employees. The committee is seen in session: (l. to r.) Senator Kenneth D. McKellar, Tennessee; Senator George H. Moses, New Hampshire, chairman; Rep. William H. Grist, Pennsylvania; Rep. C. W. Rappeyer, Iowa. Rep. Thomas M. Bell, Georgia, is another member.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD INITIATION

An initiation will be held at Odd Fellows Hall, 5th and Main Sts. on Tuesday evening, Sept. 1. Candidates are requested to be there at 7:30 p. m. or as soon after as possible. Members of Medford Camp will assist in work. Good refreshments will be served. A30-S2

Here are the names of just half a dozen of the many owners of electric cooking ranges in your own neighborhood.

84,000 other homes here in the West already know the convenience—and the economy—of cooking by electricity. But these are homes you know!

Today these neighbors of yours are gladly allowing us to publish the actual figures taken from their electric bills for the past year. Like ourselves, they want you to know just how economically you, too, can enjoy this better, cleaner, more modern way of cooking.

Compare these figures with your own cost of ordinary fuel. And remember, they include not only the current for cooking, but for all electric lights, and other electrical appliances as well.

In every case these average figures cover the winter months. In summer, when a cool kitchen is so important, the electric bills are even less.

Your dealer has just received a new stock of electric ranges. Make your selection today—on convenient payment terms if you prefer.
