

JOHNNY DUNDEE DECIDES RETURN TO FIGHT GAME

Former Featherweight Title Holder To Meet California Fighter

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Johnny Dundee featherweight champion of the world by right of conquest and direct succession, has decided to reclaim the title he waived a year ago and enter the ring at 126 pounds as defender of the coronet in a bout with Babe Herman on October 5.

The Dundee-Herman fight has been hastily substituted for the abandoned hostilities between Harry Greb and Jimmy Slattery, as the principal assassination of the charity show on behalf of the Jewish maternity hospital. The Polo Grounds will be the scene of the outrage and James J. Johnston, Dundee's old manager, who is promoting the show is sponsor for the news.

Thus Herman, a Portuguese fruit farmer from the prune arbors of California, will have three chances at the featherweight championship within five months against two holders of the same title. He recently boxed and defeated Louis Kid Kaplan in Waterbury, Conn., but was deprived of victory by a draw decision. He now has a date to fight Kaplan again on December 18 in the new Madison Square Garden.

Dundee relinquished the championship about a year ago, one year after he had won it from Eugene Chiqui because he could be easily reduced to 126 pounds, the weight for the class.

The New York fight commission then held a very successful tournament here in which Kaplan clearly won.

The situation is rather complex, however, for Dundee apparently has the right to call himself champion again and to defend the title if he can make the weight, to do which he will probably have to shave himself three inches deep all over.

Pirates Just About Cinch Pennant; Take Pair From Brooklyn

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The Pirates have taken the national pennant race almost beyond the Giants' reach Wednesday, taking two games from the Dodgers and increasing their lead to 6½ games with only 13 games to play. The Giants who have 14 games remaining beat the Reds 2 to 1 in a single performance in Cincinnati.

The Pirates winning score in the first game was 5 to 3, and in the second 6 to 2.

As matters stand, the Pirates may lose almost half of their remaining engagements and still tie the Giants even though the latter win all of theirs.

If the Pirates win seven and lose six, their figure will be .510. The Giants will have to win 14 straight to achieve that total.

Another way to reckon the matter is that the Pirates can afford to lose five more games than the Giants, and still win.

In the American league the contest is even looser. Even if the Athletics should win all of their remaining 16 games, the Senators could tie them by playing little better than .500 ball.

The Senators and Tigers were rained out Wednesday and the Athletics halved a double header with the White Sox, winning the first 4 to 1, and losing the second, 6 to 2.

St. Louis and Boston, two games postponed.

Detroit at Washington postponed, rain.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

Five years ago this time the Cleveland Indians were headed for the American league flag—and the first big league pennant Cleveland ever boasted. Manager Spahrer was awake to the one weakness of the pitching staff. He needed a good lefthander. Big Walter Mails was brought east from the Pacific Coast league, where he had been leftbanding them to death. Mails pitched marvelous ball that fall, and if he cannot be credited with winning the pennant for the club he can be given a generous share of the credit. He won seven straight games beginning with the first game he pitched.

Now the Pittsburgh Pirates fans have hopes that "Red" Oldham will prove another Mails before the season ends. Manager McKechnie had been struggling along with but one southpaw, Emil Yde, until Oldham was purchased from the Des Moines club in the Western league. And Bill knew that his staff was under a handicap against lefthand batters as a result of this paucity of port flingers. So he got Oldham.

Red is no spring chicken. He was with the Detroit Tigers as far back as 1914 and had cut his eye teeth at that time. He started with Johnstown in the Tri-State league back in 1911. The Phillies looked him over the next spring, but sent him to Trenton before May 1. He won 37 and lost 28 games there in the two years he labored before he moved up a notch. Providence in the International league grabbed him after the 1913 season and after he had won 14 games and lost but 7 with that club the Tigers bought him. The rest of that year he spent in the bull pen with the Tigers and worked out with them the following spring, only to be shunted to Minneapolis and then Buffalo. The Tigers recalled him August 17, that same year, and at the close of the season sent him to the San Francisco club in the Pacific Coast league.

The war interrupted his baseball activities until 1919, when he returned to duty, this time with Portland, where he became one of the busiest pitchers in the league, breaking into 67 games winning 21 and losing 25 of them. Then came his return to the Tigers.

For four years he hurled with varying success for the Detroiters. He seemed a jinx to the Cleveland club, baffling them any time he stepped into the box.

When the 1924 season rolled around Oldham refused to report and was suspended. Eventually the Vernon Pacific Coast league club bought him, and then sent him to Des Moines when he failed to get going. When the jolly Buccaneers bought his release from the Des Moines outfit he had just won six straight ball games.

When Del Pratt, veteran St. Louis, New York and Detroit infielder, was given his unconditional release some months ago most big league fans proceeded to forget about the star, quite naturally. All sport is fickle that way.

But Pratt himself decided that all baseball wasn't going to forget him. Offered the job of managing the Waco, Texas, team, making its debut in the Texas league, Pratt accepted, although he knew that he faced a tough job in his debut as a manager. The material he had on hand as a nucleus of a team consisted of what players the team took over from the Galveston club.

Pratt started in, however, and within a few weeks had a fairly good ball club in operation—good enough to hold around sixth place and give the leaders some real opposition. Pratt took himself to second base and the clean-up position in the batting order. He proved to be the main spring of the club's attack, and his timely hitting helped win him public favor. The club has drawn well all season.

Now he has been engaged to run the club another year.

BIG DEER ARE KILLED BY 2 KLAMATH MEN

Two of the finest specimens of deer to be brought into Klamath Falls were trailed in yesterday by N. D. Ginsbach and Stanley Lyons, who spent the past two days hunting in the Howard Bay district.

Both deer were black tail bucks, one a 12 point, the other an 8 point. According to Ginsbach the largest bucks weighed in at 342 pounds and was one of the prettiest he had seen in all his hunting season experiences.

Betting Is Even On World Series

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—"Even money and take your choice." This is the deposed view of New York gamblers on the impending world series between the Pirates and the Senators, as credited for publication by J. S.
