

"Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it."—Abraham Lincoln.

Going Forward to Nature

Life Is Becoming More Complex Every Year

"Back to nature" is a popular slogan in many quarters. It is seldom taken seriously.

The "back to nature" people all end up in New York or Chicago.

They go back to nature for two or three days and back to the city for life.

Man dislikes to sleep on the ground.

He does not relish being bitten by mosquitoes and other insects.

Clean beds appeal to him more than a bed of leaves.

Clean, well lighted, well ventilated houses seem better to him than dark, damp, poorly ventilated caves.

Sidewalks and paved streets meet his approval.

Wading in mud does not.

Books, newspapers, schools, libraries, art galleries, etc., attract him.

"All modern improvements" make life comfortable and saves time.

Shall we go "back to nature" or "up to nature?"

What is man's natural state? There are two answers to this.

One school of thought holds that man was always civilized. They hold that savagery is a degenerate state.

They maintain that there is no evidence of a time when man was not civilized. There are many facts that appear to support this view.

Another school holds that man has slowly evolved from a lower form of animal life. They hold that civilization is the crowning result of a man's slow progress and adaptation.

According to this school, man adapts himself to his environment. He is not what he was twenty thousand years ago. He is adapted to the civilized life.

Whichever view we accept, man's present natural state is one of civilization.

To attempt to live like the animals of forest and field would be degeneracy on either theory.

Back to nature in this sense is not desirable. It would mean the destruction of man's achievements during the last few thousand years.

There is no reason to believe this would better man physically and mentally.

In fact, civilization, rightly used, should improve man in every way. That it is abused is not the fault of civilization. Man has himself to blame for this.

With the population of the world as great as it now is, what we call civilization is absolutely essential. Back to a primitive state would mean extinction for half the race.

Civilization is not perfect. It has many glaring defects. In many respects it is top-heavy. It is too complex.

Its vices are many and increasing. Many of its best minds are at work devising means of destruction.

Life is becoming too complex. The human constitution is unable to endure the strain that is placed upon it. The mind becomes bewildered. Specialism becomes necessary. Specialism leads to a one-sided development. Specialists become puffed up. They refer to those ignorant of their specialties as hicks and morons.

Life should become more simple. It must become more simple. Unless it does so civilization will suffer by deteriorating civilized man.

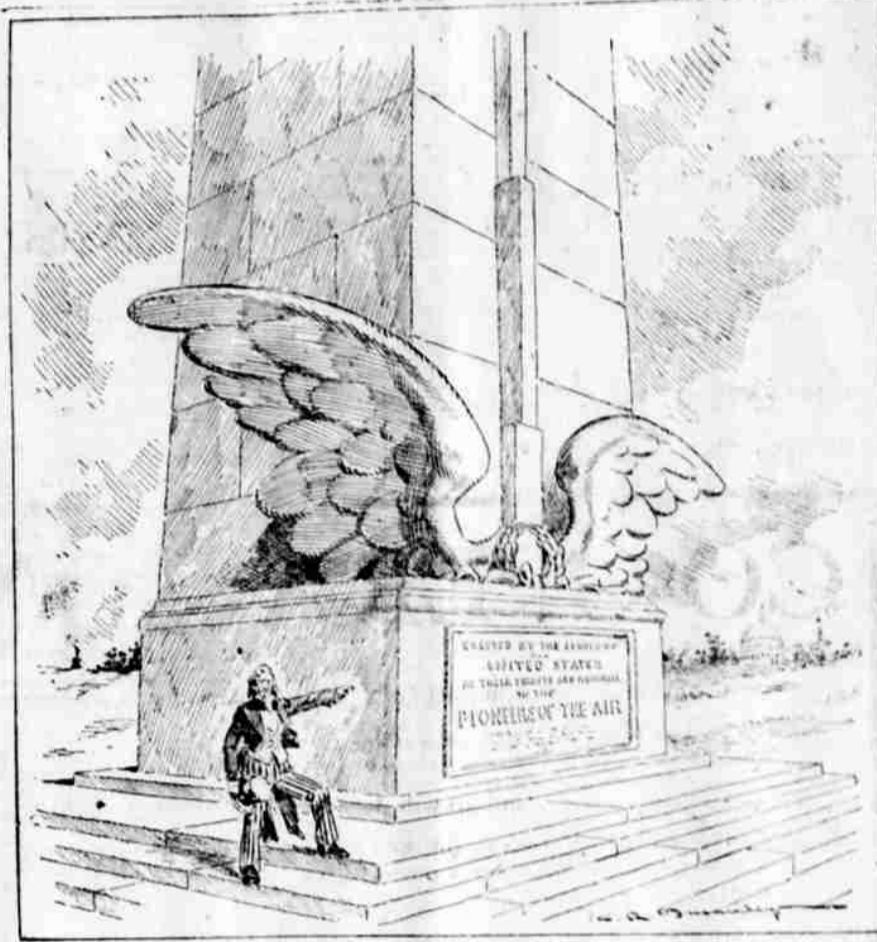

General Andrews, the new prohibition head, says he will try to dignify the prohibition enforcement business, and he wants $50,000 a year men to put the thing over. That would be fine. We'll take one of those jobs at $50,000 a year, as that is a trifle more than the printing business pays us.—Creswell News.

"Reggie" Vanderbilt has died. He inherited $15,000,000 and lived a life of ease and gaiety. He is dead at 45 years of age, at a time when most men are entering upon their greatest usefulness. There is no evidence to show that Vanderbilt used his money in any public movement or for the good of society. His passing leaves no void.—Albany Democrat-Herald.

When the first effort was made to discard tails, doubtless there were reactionaries who objected strenuously.

The issues in this state seem to be bond issues.—Albany News.

This Should Be Done

Dinner Stories

A little son of Italy 12 years old came to his teacher in a New York public school and asked if he could not have his name changed.

"Why do you want to change your name?" the teacher asked.

"I want to be an American. I live in America now."

"What American name would you like?"

"I have it here," he said, handing the teacher a dirty scrap of paper on which was written: "Patrick Dennis McCarty."

When David Lloyd George, ex-British premier, was a young country solicitor in Wales, he was riding home in his dogcart one day and came upon a little Welsh girl trudging along so wearily that he offered her a ride. She accepted silently, but all the way along, although he tried to engage her in conversation, he could not get her to say anything more than a timid "yes" or "no."

Some days afterwards the girl's mother happened to meet Lloyd George, and said to him smilingly, "Do you remember that my little girl rode home with you a short time ago? Well, when she got home she said: 'Mamma, I rode home from school with Mr. Lloyd George, the lawyer, and he kept talking to me, and I didn't know whatever to do, for you know Mr. Lloyd George charges when you talk with him, and I hadn't any money.'"

The mother heard a great commotion, as of cyclones mixed up with batteringrams, and she hurried upstairs to discover what was the matter. There she found Tommie sitting in the middle of the floor with a broad smile on his face.

"Oh, mamma," said he delightedly, "I've locked grandpa and Uncle George in the cupboard, and when they get a little angrier I am going to play Daniel in the Lion's den."

As the celebrated soprano began to sing little Johnnie became greatly excited over the pestilential of the orchestra conductor.

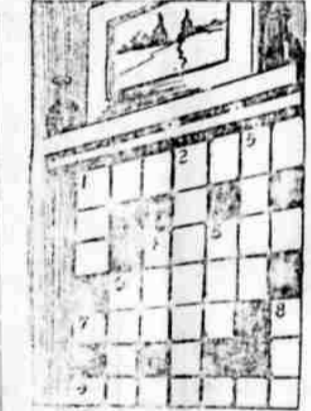

"What's that man shaking his stick at her for?" he demanded indignantly.

"Sh-h! He's not shaking his stick at her."

But Johnnie was not convinced. "Then what in thunder is she hollering for?"

Even a sense of humor may exist in excess. There is a case of a British soldier who was sentenced to be flogged. During the flogging he laughed continually. The harder the lash was laid on, the harder the soldier laughed. "What's so funny about being flogged?" demanded the sergeant. "Why," the soldier chuckled, "I'm the wrong man."
