German Attitude on Peace of Europe Negotiations to Make Going Hard

LOCARNO, Switzerland, Oct. 5.—(United News)—Germany's attitude toward negotiations to insure the peace of Europe suddenly has stiffened to such an extent that hard going is in prospect for the negotiators who plan to obtain German signatures to arbitration treaties with Belgium, Czechoslovakia and Poland.

Despite the optimism liberally displayed following the opening session of the conference the delegates already have sighted breakers ahead. Germany is disposed to negotiate the Rhineland security pact along the lines of her note of February 9, but regarding all other phases of the conference she plans to demand large concessions.

In exchange for German entrance into the league of nations German signatures to the arbitration treaties and German recognition of the right of foreign troops to cross her soil is provided for in article 16 of the league of nations covenant. The German delegates plan to begin bargaining with demands for the following concessions:

- 1—German mandates over former German colonies.
  - 2—Improved conditions in the Saar valley, in Dantzic and along Germany's eastern frontiers.
- The next meeting of the conference has been postponed from Tuesday morning to Tuesday afternoon owing to the sudden illness of foreign Minister Gustav Stresemann of Germany, who was taken to bed with a sore throat and slight fever. It is believed that the change of climate caused Stresemann's illness.

CITY HELD FREE FROM EPIDEMICS

All epidemics are well under control in Klamath Falls according to Dr. G. S. Newsom, director of the county health unit.

There are now five cases of typhoid fever, but two of these came to the city from other towns, Dr. Newsom said. There are three cases of scarlet fever and the whooping cough, which alarmed some parents for a time, is on the decline.

Every possible precaution is taken to weed out sick children in the schools, and the results have been very gratifying, Dr. Newsom said. He added that he has received co-operation from all local physicians and that they aided materially in curtailing the spread of the sickness.

Cecil Hollinshead is charged in the complaint with assault with a dangerous weapon on Fred Duke and Dean Hollinshead is accused of threatening to show Duke. Both men protested their innocence and were released on bail pending a hearing before Justice of the Peace Kendall.

The men reside in the vicinity of Crescent.

$50,000 MORE IS NEED FOR SEWER

Klamath Falls needs at least $50,000 more in its budget for next year than is permitted by the six per cent tax limitation law, and four times that sum might be needed above the money available if the city is to carry out its necessary sewer program and other programs.

So declared one city alderman last night at the conclusion of the regular council meeting. He said he had hoped to see the people of the city express an opinion on the subject at the time the special ward two election is held, October 28, but added that his colleagues had failed to agree with his plan.

One hundred and forty-eight thousand dollars, approximately, will be available for the special needs for next year unless a special election is held. This sum, it was said, will be entirely inadequate to cope with the numerous expenses which loom as the result of proposed improvements.

The budget committee is at present at work on its allotments for 1926. Whether or not another move will be made for an election is not known.

KLAMATH EMBRACED BY COLD DRIZZLE

A cold drizzle drenched Klamath Falls early this morning. Lights shone dimly through windows down which the rain, slowly, zig-zagged its course. An occasional pedestrian, chin deep in the collar of his overcoat, made his way down the street. It was very quiet.

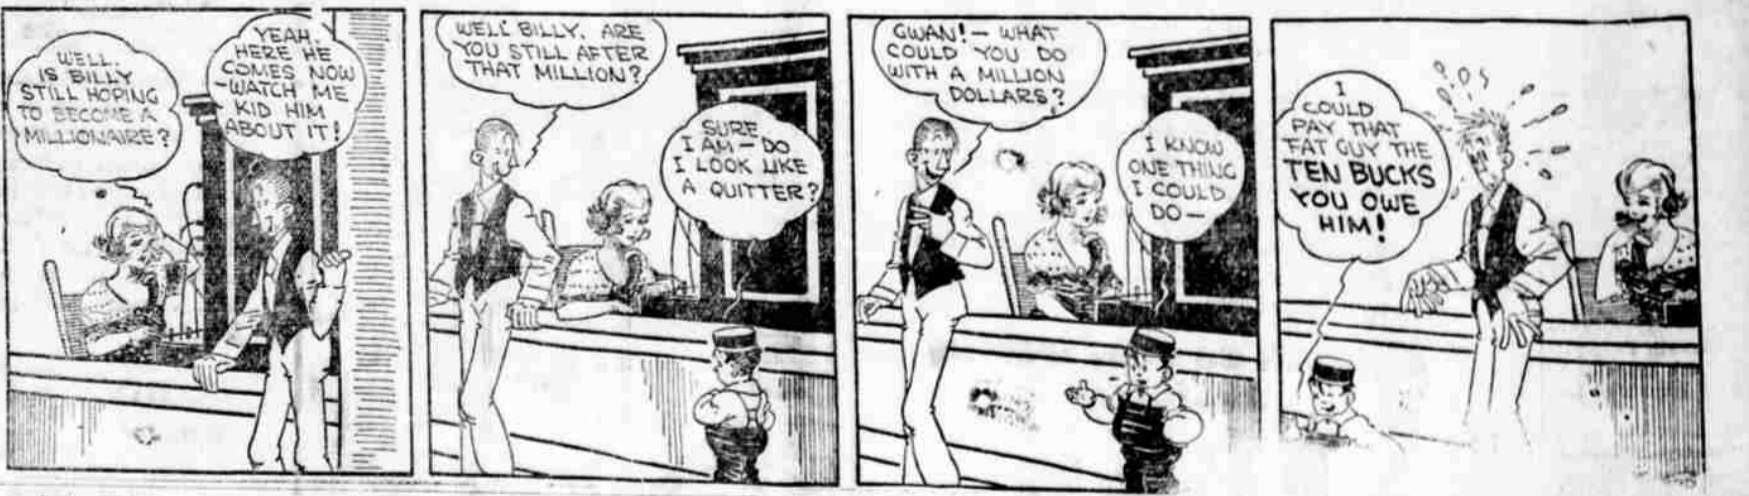

Then, from a blackened sky, came the sound that caused the passer-by to raise his wet face. To peer was useless. The distinctive, almost weird, honk of the wild geese failed to indicate their location. Going from somewhere to somewhere, probably headed for Tule lake the wild geese, not discernible, flapped their way through the darkness toward the points where, soon, they will hear the crack of the hunters' guns.

Hundreds of them are passing over the city nightly now. They are coming from the north, and, far above the city, they wing their way instinctively, and the passer-by dips his hands deeper into his pockets and wonders.
