INTEREST WAXING KEEN ON PLAN TO GROW CITY TREES

Expert Located at Chamber of Commerce Rooms to Give Advice to Residents

Interest continues strong in the tree planting program sponsored by the Rotary club, advanced further by the Woman's Library club and headed up under the Klamath county chamber of commerce, which body recently unanimously endorsed the plan to beautify Klamath Falls by planting various trees through the residential districts.

Following out this scheme the various bodies, including all civic organizations, secured the services of a tree expert in the person of J. T. Farley, a recognized authority on trees, Mr. Farley is now situated at the chamber of commerce where he can be seen at any time each morning, except Sunday.

Mr. Farley, who is an expert, is ready at all times to give advice to those seeking to beautify their home district. He will tell those seeking his advice the kind of trees to plant, the care necessary and when and where to plant any particular kind of trees that will grow in this climate.

Members of the tree planting committee of the chamber of commerce announced that in event there is anyone who cannot see Mr. Farley in the morning, word left for the committee will be handed over to that body for attention. Orders for trees can be placed either with Mr. Farley or the committee.

During the past few days women of the city have been canvassing the residential districts and report that home owners and others are vastly interested in the scheme and are taking to it enthusiastically.

Obligations Owed To Commonwealth

There is a debt you owe to your home town but whatever the bill is, none will be presented to you for payment. If you do not realize the size of it, nobody will try to tell you. You know what the town has done for you, and you should know better than anybody else what you ought to do for the town.

Two questions may serve to bring the issue home to you. When your wife and children were critically ill, was it the doctor from the city who pulled them through?

You never even thought of calling him. Your first thought was of the home town doctor, and he saved the lives of your dear ones. When you lost your job, who gave you credit and tided you over the winter?

It certainly wasn't the store in the city that advertises "bargains" for the country shopper. The merchant of Klamath Falls stood by you then, as he has for others, and as he will again some time when the emergency arises.

If these things have not happened to you, they have happened to your neighbors, and you know about them. Mere money cannot pay for disinterested service such as the doctor and the merchant render under the circumstances. And these instances are not cited with the idea of wakening a feeling of obligation toward those individuals who render us signal service on extraordinary occasions, but they are brought up rather with the view of making every man, woman and child realize his partnership in the community and his responsibility in that partnership which means so much to him.

The doctor and the merchant are not the only men toward whom others in the community owe this obligation as a self-sustaining entity. They are simply given as examples of how the proposition works out. Happiness and contentment bring about also a rich social life. You get together with your neighbors during moments of relaxation from your day's toil and enjoy intercourse with them. Clubs and organizations unite you in bonds that hold you together for one purpose or another.

A score of other things might be mentioned, but space forbids. There are the material things that minister to the comfort and well-being of the people. Among them are paved sidewalks, corner lights, police protection, and a fire department; electric lighting for the home, water, sewer and similar improvements and conveniences.

The stronger the community spirit the more of these there are. The taxes you pay settles the bills for the things already acquired; the weight of your cooperation with the progressive leaders assures other improvements in the future. Be a home town man all along the line—patronize home town merchants exclusively.

News Gets Picture Flashes of Series

Today The Klamath News is showing the first action pictures of the world's series baseball games to have been run in Klamath county newspapers.

Through superior service The News was able to secure first the camera flashes of the internationally-known stars at work. No expense was spared in rushing the pictures to Klamath Falls. Part of the distance they were carried by airplane.

None of the pictures was posed, the figures having been caught in action by newspaper photographers.
