RECEPTION GIVEN BY PILCHER CO. PACKS NEW STORE

Thousands of City Folk and Shoppers Pass Through New Business Home

Thousands of visitors, packing the aisles of the new Pilcher company store, visited the opening night of the latest addition to Klamath Falls' business district. From seven o'clock until nine o'clock last night attention was drawn to one of the smartest stores in this city.

A. A. McDonald, manager of the Klamath Falls branch, welcomed the guests at the door, as did Mrs. McDonald. Cigars for the men, and brilliant red carnations for the women, with a five-piece orchestra providing music for the occasion, made the evening complete.

Those who had not planned previously to attend the affair and chanced in passing to glance at the smartly arranged windows immediately changed their minds and became one of the throng that surged through the aisles.

Frocks, gowns and the dainty things that make up the costume of the smartly gowned woman, held their own on one side of the store. On the other the men's department is located with a complete line of furnishings for the well groomed gentleman.

Flowers in abundance from neighboring merchants and other business houses of the city were placed in conspicuous display in order to illustrate the good will which is accompanying the entrance of the Pilcher chain of stores.

TOM TRACEY FIGURES AS STAR IN RAID

and Knowles became parties.

"We've got to stage a raid tonight," McBride confided to Tracey. "It's absolutely necessary, and we need your help. Do we get it?"

It is not on record where Deputy Sheriff Tracey declined to assist a brother officer in difficulty, and he assented. By a circuitous route, McBride led him and Officer Knowles to the residence of Mrs. Newcomb. Tracey knew not where he was.

There were guests in the Newcomb home. That was certain. There was laughter.

Knowles, followed by Tracey, made his way to the rear of the house. He peeped through a window. And then, suddenly, he shouted:

"They're pouring it out!"

Deputy Sheriff Tracey became active immediately. Through the back door he went and into the presence of the woman who had requested him to be her guest. He stood as if frozen.

Deputy Sheriff Tracey was something more than dumbfounded. He leaned silently, staring at Mrs. Newcomb.

The secretary to the county fair board played up. Dramatically, as might the woman heroine at the conclusion of a 10-20-30 cent melodrama, she said:

"Tom Tracey, you have tipped me off."

There were at least three or four tears in her voice. It was all very effective.

Deputy Sheriff Tracey said not a word aloud. Any muterings which may have come from his lips shall not be set down here. Beaten, he walked into another room.

Later, as many have already been determined by the good guessers, Tracey learned what proved to him to be a very pleasing truth. It had been a phoney raid.

The three officers and other guests were seated at dinner over which Mrs. Newcomb presided. It was a very pleasing evening.

Yesterday, however, it was different. McBride and Knowles told all. And so it came to pass that persons approached Mr. Tracey and said:

"Oh, by the way, Tom—didn't you participate in a raid—"

And the tobaconnists looked upon Deputy Sheriff Tracey as a good customer and spoke of him as one who tends to make the business of cigar dealing profitable.

How Robert M. Koenig Found Remedy for Pimply Skin

For years my skin would break out every once in a while—and ointments did very little to help me.

I read a doctor's article stating that pimply skin usually comes from the stomach—and bowels not getting rid of the poisons.

I tried Carter's Little Liver Pills for a few days—and since that time my skin is smooth and clear. Now I tell my friends the right way of getting rid of a broken out skin—and also of steering clear of sour stomach and sick headache. Carter's are all you claim for them.

CONSUL ORDERED TO PROBE DEATH

Mexicans Deny Robbery of Atlanta Broker, Dead From Attack

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 6. — (United News)—The state department at Washington today ordered an investigation into the death of G. M. N. George, wealthy resident of Atlanta, Ga., who died in the county hospital here after he was believed to have been beaten, robbed and drugged on the streets of Tiajuana last Thursday. George was lodged in a Mexican jail in an unconscious condition where he remained over night. The following morning, when he failed to recover, he was brought here, but died without recovering. Medical aid could have saved his life, officials here say.

The investigation was started today by H. C. Von Struve, American consul at Mexicali, who local officials say, reported that a demand will be made upon the Mexican authorities at once, as to the Mexicans in failing to give medical attention to George after he was thrown in jail.

"The story that George was robbed and beaten is absolutely untrue for there were no signs of violence or blood drawn," the chief of police of Tiajuana said today. "In his pocket were found several travelers' checks, some signed, a few keys, an Elks membership card, a return ticket to Mexicali from San Diego. This man was not robbed," the police chief said.
