Elks Program Scheduled for Nov. 19 To Be Entertainingly Diversified

NORMANDY BELL RINGERS

THE Normandy Bell Ringers will appear here soon in a program of unusual interest, featuring a fine vocal ensemble and bell-ringing groups. The Normandy boys carry with them one of the finest sets of hand bells ever made. Their program is one of unusual fascination.

The Normandy Singers and Bell Ringers company which will give the program at the Elks Temple on Thursday evening, November 19, is all and more than its name implies. These four clever young men can sing, they can act and they can ring bells. Their program is a diversified one, and is sure to please every type of person in the audience.

These young men are not only musical, but are musically amusing as well, and there is abundant fun in their program. It is a performance of brilliancy and snap. They carry a set of very fine English bells, and their bell-ringing is a novel feature which never fails to please tremendously.

In addition to the musical features of the program, there are bits of impersonation, character sketches, instrumental features and other "stunts" which keep the audience in the best of humor throughout the evening. This is distinctly an organization of worth. They ring true—and they sing true.

Each member of the quartet has had considerable experience on the lyceum platform, and the company has made a real hit wherever it has appeared. They all possess splendid voices and offer exceptionally good harmony for their ensemble work. Their entertainment will be one of the most enjoyable of the season.

The quartet consists of A. C. Musch, basso and manager; Herbert Abbott, baritone and pianist; Richard Scott, second tenor and Clyde Phillips, first tenor.

Dancing will follow the entertainment and the public is cordially invited.

How To Get a Few Millions

By Archibald Ashcan

I see by the papers there is a lady back in Syracuse got $9,800 for a headache. It says she sued for $50,000 and got the $9,800.

Personally I don't blame her. The last headache I had, I would have sued for $50,000,000, only I couldn't remember where I got it, so of course I lost the fifty million. Oh well, I'll probably have another headache someday.

But what I can't understand is why she didn't sue for fifty million instead of a mere $50,000, like I would have done. It stands to reason if she sued for fifty thousand and got $9,800 or what ever it was, why if she had sued for $50,000,000,000 she would have got one fifth of that which would have been somewhere around $10,000,000,000. I put plenty of oughts on those figures because a guy wants to be sure and have enough. What I mean is that she would have got about ten million.

If that had been me, now, with ten million, I would walk up to the boss and in a casual tone of voice say:

"Boss, how much do you want for your paper?" Then I would write out a check, close the shop—and go out for another fifty.

Of course a lot of money like that has its draw backs. I might buy a big limousine or something and try and climb a telephone pole with it and get hurt or something.

As it is I have a Galloping Goose called a 1917 Dodge, which is hard enough to start when you're sober, and perfectly safe when you ain't, so our telephone poles are safe as far as my car is concerned.

Speaking of cars, while I am as patriotic as any body, I am going to England to live. I see just the other day an instance of where living is cheaper there than it is here. For instance, it says that where it costs $35 to just miss President Coolidge, it only costs five smackers to just miss the king of England. Not that I got anything against Geo. but I would sooner miss him at $5 per than to miss President Coolidge at $35, even if he is my own president.

Personally I think the rates ought to be even.

But speaking of England and to step aside from the question of cars, I see where a feller over there made a costly mistake, by not understanding and also lost his near bride. Not only that but he is being sued for $10,000 for wearing breeches of promise or something like that.

It seems that when he and his Amazon was waiting around for the marriage ticket agent, she says to him:

"Kris won't those twin beds look beautiful, in the apartment which we have been held up for?"

That is where Kris got off on the wrong foot. He called off the wedding right away, simply because, being a single man, he thought she said two beds for twins.

Now he may have to pay $10,000 and have no bed a-tall. It would have been a lot cheaper to pay for five or six beds full of twins than to dig up ten thousand iron men, or else be jumping clear out of your skin every time a cross-looking guy gave you a hard look, for four it was a plain clothes dick.

Putting the YARDSTICK on Progress

THE BUSINESS WORLD has an accurate measure with which it gauges the growing value of securities. It is PRICE.

Since 1922, when The California Oregon Power Company first offered its 7% Preferred Stock for public investment, the price has steadily advanced with each successive issue from $92.00 a share in 1922 to $100.00 a share in 1925, and is now above par.

How the Company Has Grown

In this same period the Company's investments in generating plants, lines, equipment, etc., more than doubled in size.

Its net earnings were over $1,000,000.00 for 1924 as compared with $550,000.00 for 1920. It spent nearly $300,000.00 more (mostly in the communities in which it operates) for operating expenses and taxes.

It paid to Preferred Stock holders approximately $280,000.00 in Preferred Stock dividends in 1925.

The Measuring Stick Goes Up

The announcement of the new issue of Copco Six Per Cent Preferred Stock, to yield 6.52% at a price of $92.00 per share, marks another important advance in the progress of this Company and the communities which it serves.

Any member of our organization will gladly accept your order for shares of the new Preferred Stock. Ask him about it now—and particularly about the Copco Monthly Payment Plan for easy investment.
