

INDUSTRY BODY OF C. OF C. GETS DOWN TO WORK

The new industries committee is getting under way with an industrial survey of Klamath county. Data is being compiled which will be bound in loose leaf form for the use of the committee. When the survey is finally completed it will be submitted to the board of the chamber of commerce to be printed for distribution.

In making the industrial survey of the county, the committee points out that such a survey will not be used to the disadvantage of the industries already located here. On the contrary it will serve as protection, by showing to those concerns planning to locate in Klamath that certain fields are already well supplied with firms doing business here. There are, however, many opportunities for manufacturing and jobbing firms that are not represented here at the present time. Klamath will become a great distribution center. Already large concerns are taking up with the chamber of commerce the practicability of locating plants in this community.

The new industries committee will be busy working on the survey for a number of months. However, as the data is gathered together, it will be tabulated and made ready for use in loose leaf binders. An industrial survey is necessary to any community that is interested in attracting new manufacturing and jobbing concerns.

HOUSE TALKS ON ARMISTICE HISTORY

like had not been arranged. And the succeeding cabinets, he believes would have been compelled the next spring to grant Germany a peace more favorable than she obtained in Versailles. Col. House bases this belief on the fact that the German army was well fed and still able to fight, and that by shortening their line the Germans might have held out until spring.

The German collapse occurred behind the lines, among the civilian population, he explained, and it was due to President Wilson's often expressed war aims, which were sent into Germany and Austria by the allies, as propaganda.

Seven years ago Col. House watched the last act of one of the world's greatest tragedies. Since 1914 he had been moving between the United States and the old world as personal representative of President Wilson and the results of months of careful diplomatic preparation were being realized as the pens traced the armistice signatures that day in 1918. Col. House sat on the supreme war council at Versailles in 1917. He gathered data for the peace that was to come. He was a member of the American peace commission and finally, he was a member of commission appointed by the peace congress to devise the covenant for the league of nations.

Today, Col. House is the same retiring Texas gentleman, who astonished the world a few years ago by his great ability to remain silent during a period of much talk. In one of his rare reminiscent moods, Col. House recalled the circumstances of his hurried journey to Paris in 1918 "when the crumbling process had begun."

ARMISTICE DAY TO BE OBSERVED HERE

on the local field between the Al-turas men and the Klamath team. Although this game will not count in league schedules it is expected to be one of the most interesting of the season.

The afternoon, for those who are not athletically inclined, will find "As No Man Has Loved" playing at the Pine Tree theatre. This is a war picture especially contracted for by the Legion. Carrying out still further the spirit of the day, a booth of the Red Cross will be detailed in front of the theatre.

At two different halls, two orchestras will take care of the evening's entertainment. At Scandia hall and at Altamont, where Galloway's orchestra holds fall away, there will be music enough to keep the feet of even the oldest vet moving.

Armistice Day! When a holiday filled every moment with activity and happiness is now, today, ready for the greatest celebration of all time.

WASHINGTON OBSERVES DAY
WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Armistice day will be observed here by a few minutes silence at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Government departments will suspend work for this brief period. President Coolidge will lay a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier, who was buried with striking ceremonies at Arlington on Armistice day, 1921 and ceremonies also will be held at the tomb of Woodrow Wilson in Washington cathedral.

The White House suggested that all business houses throughout the country observe the brief silent period at 11:00 o'clock. Such observance, it was explained should be entirely voluntary and should not interfere with nor take the place of exercises planned in various localities.

In an Armistice day statement, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, declared that great progress toward peace had been made in the seven years since the Armistice was signed. Green said that the Locarno conference "constitutes evidence that the good will of nations can develop the ways of peace and laid the foundation for cooperation and confidence between the countries of central Europe."

NATION AT PAUSE

LONDON, Nov. 10.—All London and most of Great Britain is preparing for the country's most somber moment of the year when the nation pauses for two minutes communion with the war dead at 11 a. m. Armistice day.

A pilgrimage of women to the cenotaph in central London will mark the opening of Britain's observance of this day of mingled mourning and rejoicing. By tens of thousands the women, many of them still in the black garb of sorrow, many with young children, for whom the pilgrimage will be a joyful trip to "see the soldiers," will converge to meet other women who will have arrived in crowded excursion trains. These women from the provinces will stand for hours from dawn until mid-morning waiting to participate in the memorial to nearly a million men from Britain, the dominions and India, who were killed in the war.

Detachments of the army, navy, air force and veterans organizations will march through the throng at 10 a. m. to form a hollow square around the plain white stone cenotaph in the center of White Hall, just a step from Downing street.

CHEST DRIVE TO FUSE ALL BODIES

last year's drive 80 families and $900 in cash were used in the work of the chest during Christmas and the winter months. In Miss Fricke's report, the increase of families in the city shows a necessary demand for more ready cash, and the enlarged number of families to assist during the winter.

Another phase of the drive this year which will have its initial try-out shortly after Thanksgiving, is the appointment of a manager who will serve for a month with pay in the interests of the chest.

Headquarters will be opened the day after Thanksgiving, November 27. The place to be announced by the chairman later. Boxes will also be placed on the streets, and donations will be received at any time following the opening day.

Andrew Collier served as temporary chairman to open last night's meeting.

The organizations represented last night were Kiwanis, Rotary, chamber of commerce, American Legion, Elks, Masons, Woodmen of World, Knights of Pythias, Methodist church, Episcopal church, Knights of Columbus, Baptist church, Presbyterian church, Salvation Army, Library club, Business Women's club, Mills Addition Parent-Teachers' association, Odd Fellows, Eastern Star, Christian church, Christian Science, Lutheran church, Central Labor council, Seven Day Adventists.

DIRIGIBLE PROBE MAY START AGAIN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(United News)—Re-opening of the navy's investigation of the wrecking of the dirigible Shenandoah has been ordered so that Mrs. Zachary Lansdowne, widow of the commander of the airship may be questioned regarding charges at the Mitchell court martial trial that efforts were made by naval officers to induce her to give false testimony.

Counsel for Col. William Mitchell charged during the court martial that a naval officer tried to persuade Mrs. Lansdowne to repudiate her statement after the disaster, that her husband had protested against making the flight because of storm dangers.

Correspondence brought out in the Shenandoah inquiry revealed that the ill-fated dirigible commander had protested that the trip would be dangerous because of September storms in the Ohio region, but that the navy department insisted that the flight be made so as to avoid disappointing several state fair crowds desirous of seeing the big airship.

RETROSPECTION

On this anniversary of the conclusion of the direst conflict in the history of all time and of all nations it is time for retrospection.

Battle scarred villages and farms have smoothed away their bruises and the ever alleviating hand of Nature has returned them to productiveness and peacefulness in aspect.

Enmity and enviousness of the warring nations have melted away into the spirit of the natural brotherhood of man and faith and hope and charity spread an aura of humanity and benevolence throughout all Christendom.

All is returning to normalcy—all except the shattered shell-shocked bodies and the bereft minds and morale of the unfortunate heroes.

To them, then, is due all deference and reverence on this day—the first to respond, yet the most futile to restore and recompense for an imperishable service.

Commemorating the ending of the world's greatest struggle, the members of this association, representing all lines of business, announce the closing of their stores at noon today.
