OPERA STARS REHEARSE BEFORE THEY BROADCAST

The terrors of broadcasting for the first time are not confined to amateurs. A performance in a radio studio, without the inspiration of a visible audience and with dead acoustics so different from the concert hall, is just as baffling for the great stars. Therefore, to accustom them to these new conditions, they are required to have a dress rehearsal. There is so much volume to a piano or 'cello or violin energetically played that there isn't the noticeable difference in tone in the broadcasting studio. But the voice as a rule sounds weak and unnatural to the singer.

These rehearsals also give the radio operators an opportunity to determine what is known as the microphone balance of sound. That includes the position and distance of the singer from the microphone and some indication of the volume of tone.

The day preceding the broadcasting of Mme. Louise Homer's recital in New York she spent two hours in the radio studio. Her singing of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," the next to the last number, proved that one more great artist had been heard to as good advantage over the radio as in the theatre.

OKLAHOMA SEEKS $200,000 FOR STATION

The eyes of the radio world are focused in Oklahoma during its campaign to finance a super-power radio broadcasting station in a way never tried before. The fans will be asked to contribute $200,000 cash to build a super-power station at Bristow.

It is not a stock-selling proposition. While they call it a membership plan," it is nothing but an outright donation on the part of every fan who comes in. Memberships will cost $10 each, and the fan may buy as many as he wants.

Wilkins Indicted By Grand Jurymen

To Ed Wilkins, of Klamath Falls, goes the doubtful distinction of being the only individual against whom the Klamath county grand jury, in its session which closed yesterday, returned a true bill.

At least Wilkins' was the only case made public. Five secret indictments were returned, but no information regarding them will be divulged until the principals are apprehended.

Wilkins, the indictment charges, forged a check for $30 on November 4. It was made out on a check from the First National bank.

Reports circulated about the court house that the final report of the grand jury would be very startling, proved to be without foundation.

Buying CHEAP GLASSES Is Poor Economy

They are made by molding the glass (not grinding) and the surfaces are naturally uneven, like a bottle. They distort the rays of light, cause pain and discomfort and injure the eyesight.

Our prices for fitting and furnishing ground-to-order glasses are reasonable and consistent with the value of such services.
