

EXPEDITION OFF FOR NEW GUINEA

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20.—Bound for the jungles of Dutch New Guinea, the Stirling-Smithsonian pygmy hunting expedition will leave San Francisco by steamer Saturday.

Five men are in the party, which is headed and, for the most part, financed by Matthew W. Stirling of Berkeley. They plan to be absent for a year, as months will be required for the trips to and from the territory to be explored.

The airplane and equipment, which includes tear gas bombs and grenades, were loaded aboard the President Van Buren Friday. The plane an all metal affair, will be used to make access to the interior less difficult, while the arsenal is being carried along because of the possibility of conflict, with the savage natives.

All specimens and biological data obtained will be turned over to the Smithsonian institute. B. K. Peck, photographer and second pilot, has a share with Stirling in financing the expedition and will care for the pictorial end. A motion picture outfit is among the ten cameras being taken.

H. H. Hoyte, will pilot the plane. A. E. Hamer, is the mechanic and Stanley Hedberg is historian and manager for the expedition.

Stirling, formerly an instructor in anthropology at the University of California is confident that his trip will prove a success.

"Our plane has a cruising radius of 700 miles," he said, "and therein lies our hope. The jungle itself is impossible to penetrate. Snakes hang from alternate trees. It rains 325 days of the year. Tropical fevers are deadly, especially there, just below the equator.

"But with the plane we hope to overcome these difficulties and get directly to the scene of research."

Two other expeditions in search of the pygmies have failed. Stirling believes that his plane will enable him to find these elusive, primitive creatures who have defied all attempts to study their race.

JACKSON IS HELD FOR WOMAN'S DEATH

Dr. G. S. Newsom, Ike Jackson, and L. L. Truax, physician. The testimony of Miss Jackson was taken at the hospital, where she is confined.

The formal report of the jury stated that the deceased "came to her death by means of crashing her skull as a result of an automobile accident; said automobile being driven by Ted Jackson, while he was under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

There were three persons, Ted Jackson, driving; Mabel Lower, and Josephine Jackson in the front seat, and we believe the said Ted Jackson responsible for the accident, and that the matter should be further investigated by the grand jury of Klamath county."

The coroner's jury comprised H. M. Bagby, R. F. Amick, M. B. Barnes, Ed Bloomington, F. S. Wolfe, and B. S. Grigsby, foreman.

Ted Jackson insisted from the beginning that he was not the driver of the machine which was demolished in the wreck. Officers who investigated, said the car zig-zagged fully 75 feet before it was virtually demolished.

antees 300 Elks in five years they will endorse an Elks lodge there. It is for this reason that the Klamath Elks are exerting every effort to assist their brothers in the extreme southeastern part of Oregon.

Perry O. DeLap was exalted ruler when the Lakerew members of the Klamath Falls lodge visited here in 1923 and it was Mr. DeLap who first made the move to endorse the Lakerew lodge.

Frank T. Wrightman, former district deputy and past exalted ruler of Salem lodge was then district deputy and he favored the instituting at Lakeview of an Elks lodge. Mr. Wrightman will deliver the Elks memorial address in the Pine Tree theatre Sunday, December 6, at 12:00 o'clock noon on the subject "The Creed of Fraternity."

Mr. Wrightman will be remembered in Klamath Falls Elksdom as one of the most forceable speakers to ever grace the platform here.

Those making the trip to Lakeview this morning include Charlton S. Currin, exalted ruler, W. W. McNealy, O. L. Larson, Oliver W. Spiker, Linn W. Nesmith, Elbert S. Veitch, O. D. Mathews, Jack Cove, Otto Lorenz, Byron L. Hardbrook and John R. Crenshaw.

BRITAINS QUEEN MOTHER IS DEAD

months from the moment of Alexandra's death England will be in mourning. Popular mourning, while perhaps ephemeral, is sincere. Flags throughout the country are at half mast. Theatres were depopulated Friday night, and restaurants and night clubs were subdued. When the death was announced in the theatres and movies there was sobbing after a minute's silence. The home secretary requested the lord mayor to toll the great bell of St. Paul's cathedral, and soon its ponderous gong sounded over the city.

Radio broadcasting was suspended for 49 minutes after the announcement of the death, and broadcast of a hymn and prayer. The entire program of Saturday will consist of special religious numbers.

All official gatherings in London but one were cancelled. That which went on was the dinner at the Savoy to honor Austen Chamberlain, negotiator of the Locarno treaties. A minute's silence and a toast in empty glasses followed the request that the diners' sympathy be extended to the king.

Since last winter Queen Alexandra has been in retirement at Sandringham, retaining her town home, Marlborough house, but not visiting it. A calm routine of drives and teas with intimates, and the frequent visits of her children and grandchildren filled her days. She had time, too, for memories.

ed out of a closet and with Fineman's assistance made her a prisoner. They held her for more than two hours, she charges.

The following day Fineman visited District Attorney Keyes, who refused to issue a complaint against the actress on Fineman's charge that she had endeavored to extort a contract from him under threat of making public two alleged assaults against her.

Keyes refused to issue a complaint because of insufficient evidence presented by Fineman. Miss Udell asks $100,000 actual and $100,000 and exemplary damages on the attack charges; $15,000 actual damages and $100,000 exemplary damages on the imprisonment complaint.

For loss of possible earnings, as the result of a nervous breakdown resulting from her experience, she asks $50,000; for medical services, $500 and $1,000 counsel fees.

Fineman at a late hour Friday declined to make a statement.

DEVIL'S DRUMSTICKS

ARMAGH, Ireland, Nov. 20.—"Girls who dance turn their legs into devil's drumsticks," declared the Rev. W. P. Nicholson, in a revival sermon. He condemned movies, tobacco, cards and dominoes.
