Who Wins the Most Applause?
AT THE baseball game—the great American national sport—who is it that the teeming thousands cheer; the player who does the consistent work or the one who makes the grandstand play? The latter of course. But the public is just as ready to acclaim another player the next minute. After all, it is the consistent worker that really counts—the one who can be depended upon. In the end, the public appreciates it.
We have no unusual sales here. We give the public the benefit of the lowest prices and honest values at all times, and we are gratifyingly at it.
