"Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it."—Abraham Lincoln.

City Managers

Proposition Same as School System

No happier illustration could have been chosen to acquaint the people of Klamath Falls with the proposed city manager form of government...

Tell them that they would elect a council, the members of which are subject to recall, just as they would elect a school board.

The people have more faith in the efficiency of their school systems than in any other branch of government.

It is no reflection on any member of the present city council to let it be said that Klamath Falls' affairs may easily be placed upon a higher plane of efficiency.

Rushing the Drives

Where Assistance Is Appreciated

There is such a thing as a newspaper getting behind a proposition and then getting ahead of it. In other words, all the publicity a newspaper can give a movement will be of little avail unless there is organization back of that movement.

"The newspapers are rushing us," the head of a local organization told reporters who had come in for news.

Surely, the newspapers are vitally interested in every worthy cause undertaken. They do not lose sight of any endeavor until it has run its full course and been put over the top, if possible.

The women of the city have demanded a light at the postoffice. Why so modest? Why not get behind the proposition of new street lights and getting the wires off Main street?

Dinner Stories

A gentleman whose travel-talks are known throughout the world, tells the following on himself:

"I was booked for a lecture one night at a little place in Scotland, four miles from a railway station. The chairman of the occasion, after introducing me as 'the man who's come here to broaden our intellects,' said that he felt a wee bit of prayer would not be out of place.

"O Lord," he continued, 'put it into the heart of this man to speak the truth, the hale truth, and naething but the truth, and gie us grace to understand him.' Then, with a glance at me, the chairman said, 'I've been a traveler myself!'"

The parson was trying to illustrate to the class of small boys what was meant by moral courage.

"Supposing," he said, "twelve boys were sleeping in a dormitory and one said his prayers. That would be moral courage." The boys quite understood.

"Now," he went on, "can any one give me an example?"

"Yes," answered the lad in the back row. "If twelve clergymen were sleeping in a dormitory and one didn't say his prayers, that would be moral courage."

The line at the ticket window was very long and very mixed. A stout coarse man amused himself during the long wait by whispering sweet nothings to a very pretty girl who stood next to him.

"I wish you would leave me alone!" she said angrily.

"All right, all right, my dear!" said the plump one. "But don't eat me!"

The girl looked him up and down scornfully.

"You're in no danger of that," she replied. "I'm a Jewess."

Publishers Column

Why is it that a publisher is always flattered when he knows that another publisher is reading his paper?

An editor likes to know that a style he is setting is followed. A reporter is greatly complimented when the other reporters ask who wrote the story that is the child of his brain.

Yep, that little compliment made us not mad at anyone for at least a whole minute. Perhaps the obvious reason for this weak point for flattery is sufficient. The men who are themselves engaged in editing and publishing are necessarily the most discriminating critics.

The gauge of an editorial writer's ability is the frequency with which he is quoted by other newspapers and by the news digest. It takes time for a newspaper to build a reputation for having powerful editorials.

Oregon has newspapers which are respected for their editorial opinion throughout this country. The Portland Oregonian is quoted throughout the nation more frequently than is any other newspaper in the West.

But The News, as we said, goes to an editor's desk every morning. We are modest. That pleases us immensely. We find ourselves quoted occasionally. That also brings our little bow. Thank you.

Empty glass tobacco jars make very interesting looking and very convenient containers. With soaking, the paper is easily removed from the glass jar, and scalding water and a dry towel will polish it beautifully.

ANSWERS TO JOAN'S MAKE HER DECISION

AN OLD MAN

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have decided to keep the thing I have been doing. It surely disgusts me. comments by T. M. Thirty." Everyone has their own opinion, and I press mine. The man young (single men) all "the bunk." Under the name readers, I am for a husband, nor do I am perfect. There is nothing. We all have to do the other hand, I have who take an active part in the business world, and all alike. They do sensible girl. If you do pet, etc., you are all opinion. If you don't the above, you are all other words they call old-fashioned. I agree Thirty" that nice girl wish to be entertained ner which he states.

the majority of the people are looking out for themselves. I have pointed in love, but I and such is not the case. are the fellows that girl that does not elaborate entertainments meet them. I have line of work, now along with my present position, and I have any more love. T. B. calls such girls. PUTS "TED BILL"

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have decided to write a girl in her last letter such a fellow as you of all, I do not count a gentleman. Such a makes the girls sick to them. If a girl has a man to keep his company, certainly isn't worth the girls do not give or expect from their men friends them the big head, and Mr. Bill has a very serious such. Also Mr. Bill is such a wonderful dancer so why kick about the girls can't be expert dancers a great deal depends on kind of partner you have with. It seems to me I expected all his young boys to entertain him. We don't believe in leap thinking is if the style were the man to do the entertaining not the woman's place. conclusion I wish to state, much rather prefer to be "ly Girl" than to have a court as Mr. Ted Bill.

This column is open to all from Ted Bill, whose letter has been the cause of comment.
