ST. VALENTINE'S DAY BRINGS THE MEMORY OF OTHER DAYS

Do you remember the first Valentine sent to you over the initials of a sweetheart, or just a scrawled question mark? Sunday, February the fourteenth, is St. Valentine's day. The shops are filled with frilly paper things, the more sedate hearts of tinted card board with a heart hidden somewhere and a verse something like this: "If I had fifty million hearts, And all of them were mine, I'd send them in this envelope To you, My Valentine."

"I wish I had time to—"

How often do you wish you had time to do things that the work of your house keeps you from ever "getting round to?"

Why not use our "Rough Dry" service? Everything washed and dried, and flat work ironed—only the lighter pieces left for you to iron when you have time.
