NEW YORK PLAYS ATTRACT NOTICE

At a time when nearly everyone, including the United States government, is engaged in a discussion of "moral turpitude," a glance at the New York stage reveals this interesting, if you like it, topic in many of its most enlightening aspects.

What with that entertaining but undoubtedly turpitudinous heroine, Iris March, of "The Green Hat," triumphing at one end of the great white way, and "Lulu Belle" flaunting her miscegenous proclivities at the other, it seems hard to realize how a lone countess could have been able to contaminate the populace.

More than 80 per cent of the current productions introduce one phase or another of "moral turpitude" and in many instances there is a lamentable lack of censure.

Among the new productions of the current week is "The Unchained Woman," which is revived, after all these eleven years, at the Princess theater, with Violet Kemble Cooper in the title role. As most who are familiar with drama of the past decade will recall, there is a bride who strayed from primrose path, yet evades deportation, and makes herself a decided nuisance to the other characters.

"The Night Duel," starring Marjorie Ransome, Marjorie is spending her afternoons at the supreme court, where she is co-defendant in a divorce suit brought by the wife of one of her favorite clients.

Seven New Plays. There were seven new productions this week. In addition to those mentioned above, and far removed as to subject, "The Right Age to Marry," with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coburn; "Bunk of 1926," "You Can't Win," "The Wisdom Tooth," by Mark Connelly, and "The Right to Kill," from the Russian of Leo Urvantsov.

Old-Fashioned Comedy. A refreshing, old-fashioned comedy, with practically no "moral turpitude" whatever is "The Right Age to Marry."

"Wisdom Tooth." "The Wisdom Tooth" has seven what the film world calls "flash backs" in the life of Charles Bemis, scenes, some fantastic, dealing with when a senior clerk, who never seemed quite able to strike his gait in a bustling, busy world.

"You Can't Win." "You Can't Win" is a crude play, laid upon Staten Island. It deals with the tribulations of a young man and his sister-in-law who witness a fatal automobile accident and forced to choose between truth and their own nicely ordered existences.

Little Reviews. Studded with bright wit, satire and pleasing tunes, "Bunk of 1926" is the first of the year's "little reviews."

FIRST DINNER DANCE GIVEN THURSDAY EVENING

The first of a promising series of dinner dances for the spring season was given Thursday evening in the dining room of the White Pelican hotel, with many parties holding tables.

The orchestra, Tantalizers, played their new innovation "The Universal Blues," which was composed by their pianist, Dave Garrett, and dedicated to the movie folk in the city.

Including the many tables reserved for the evening a large number dropped in for dancing from eight o'clock until eleven o'clock. The dances will be given during the spring, according to an announcement made last night by Mrs. Weston Kilbourne, on Friday evenings. Dancing during the week, every evening except Friday is enjoyed by the dinner guests from 6:30 until 8:30.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stone entertained for a party of twelve guests. A charming centerpiece of pink cut flowers and ferns in a lovely basket graced the table.

Another party was that at which Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Harlan presided. Covers for four were laid. Miss Viola Dana entertained with a table of six guests. Miss Kitty Barlow entertained for four.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kimball enjoyed the evening at a prettily appointed table.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Peterson and a party of four were among those guests of the evening.

NEW BOOKS RECEIVED IN KLAMATH FALLS

With March winds on the way, and a cozy fire to curl by, the announcement that 25 new books have been received in the Klamath Falls public library offers as a method of diversion that is always new and interesting.

According to Miss Enola Hawkins of the library, there are more books expected, although those received during the past week are the most fascinating of the newer fiction. The books, after they are properly catalogued, varnished and backed, will be ready by the latter part of the week. There are a number who have sought reservations.

Among those in are Among Man's Fancy, McIntyre; Perennial Bachelor, Parrish; Thunderstorm, Stern; Wild Geese, Ostense; Hunter's Moun, Poole; Professor's House, Cather; Great Pandolfo, Locke; Caravan, Galworthy; Christina Alberta's Father, H. G. Wells; Elder Sister, Swinnerton; Early Indian Wars of Oregon, Victor; Green Mansions, Hudson; Wigwam and Warpath, Mearham; History of Egypt, Breasted; One Increasing Purpose, Hutchison; Strolling Saint, Sabatini; Venetian Glass Nephew, Wylie; My Antonia, Cather; Lost World, Doyle; Little Ships, Norris; Ancient Highways and Kazan, Curwood; Women Tarkington; Portrait of a Man With Red Hair, Walpole.

MRS. WILLIAMS IS HONESTESS MONDAY NIGHT

One of the prettiest parties of the week was the dinner enjoyed by a number of the younger set on Monday evening when Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Williams, nee Lulu Hansen, entertained in their home in the McCarthy apartments.

Covers were laid for Miss Ruth Lindsey, Miss Inez Jenkins, Miss Elna Jensen, Mrs. Mary Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Williams.

AFTERNOON AT BRIDGE IS ENJOYED

Mrs. S. P. Miller entertained at her home in the McCarthy apartments on Thursday afternoon with a delightfully appointed bridge tea. Two tables were in play with honors going to Mrs. H. C. Miller and Mrs. David R. Vandenberg. Mrs. O. L. Williams assisted Mrs. Miller during the tea hour.

place of the celebration will be announced later, according to Camp-fire guardians.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETS AT RICE HOME

Garbed in the costumes of American Indians, Mrs. Syd Evans, Mrs. George Grizzle and Mrs. N. H. Drew greeted the guests on Thursday afternoon at the A. I. Rice home, when Mrs. Rice was hostess with Mrs. Fred Fleet and Mrs. William Horbelt to the Missionary society of the First Presbyterian church.

"The American Indian" was the topic of the afternoon, and ably discussed by Mrs. Poindexter of Willamson river, who is familiar with Indians of both North America and South America, having spent several years on the latter continent.

Exhibits were arranged in one corner of the room, obtained from the homes of Klamath Falls residents. Refreshments for the afternoon consisted of parched corn and apples. There were more than 35 guests present. There was also a musical program enjoyed during the afternoon.

AUTOMOBILE SHOW TO ATTRACT SOCIETY

There are automobile shows held in the colosseum in Chicago. And there are automobile shows held in the famous resorts of the south. Yet none can create more interest, comparatively speaking, than the automobile show to be put on April 15, 16, 17 and 18 in Altamont auditorium, under the auspices of the Northwest Regional Auto Shows for the season of 1926.

Ten girls, including the five Novak Vaudettes and five well trained mannequins, will add zest to the showing of the latest things in automobiles. The affair is not to be half done, for every automobile dealer in Klamath Falls has signed the four-day contract, and has rushed his spring numbers in order to display the latest in his line.

The shows are now completing a schedule in Bellingham, Wash. From there they will go to Eugene, Corvallis, Pendleton, Walla Walla, Lewiston, Idaho, and then to Klamath Falls. They are contracting at present to appear in Medford April 7 to 10 inclusive.

A. A. U. W. MEETS MONDAY EVENING

On Monday evening members of the A. A. U. W. club of Klamath Falls met at the home of Mrs. R. E. Wattenburg on Pine street. Plans were laid for a card party and tea to be given in the American Legion building on the thirteenth of March, Saturday, Mrs. Avis McConnell and Mrs. Gordon Dixon are in charge of the affairs. Proceeds from the affair will go into a fund for scholarship rewards.

J. P. Wells, superintendent of public schools, spoke during the afternoon on intelligence tests and their uses and results. He also gave the women the tests in groups.

A letter was read from E. L. Elliott, district attorney, asking support from the American Association of University Women in (ae city in the campaign for law enforcement. Mrs. J. R. Shaw was named as chairman to assist Mr. Elliott. Mrs. Shaw will set her four assistants. Guests of the evening, not including the regular members were Mrs. Wayne Akers and Mrs. Harry Ackley.

P. E. O. CANDY SALE IS SUCCESSFUL

The candy sale, sponsored Saturday afternoon in the Reckard auto terminal by members of P. E. O., was successful beyond their expectations. More than $25 was taken in during the afternoon, when Mrs. Syd Evans, Mrs. H. W. Bathiany, Mrs. R. C. Grossbeck and Mrs. J. I. Beard presided over the booth.

HAPPY HOUR CLUB SURPRISES MONDAY

Mr. and Mrs. George Humphrey were most pleasantly surprised on Monday evening when a number of friends, the greater part members of the Happy Hour club, called for a house-warming. The Humphrey home was completed just before the holidays on Pine street.

Guests who called on Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey included Mr. and Mrs. J. Keller, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Propst, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Templar, Miss Alice Templar, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Emmitt, Mr. and Mrs. William Beck, Mr. and Mrs. Rhinehart Mostenbacher, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Cox of Algoma, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sandell and Miss Sandell, Mrs. Jennie Hurn and Mrs. William Stelmetz.

MRS. McPHERRON ENTERTAINS MONDAY

The third of a series of Valentine parties was given by Mrs. W. H. McPherron at her home on Wantland on Monday evening. The evening was spent in "500" with high score going to Mrs. F. X. Beck, second to Mrs. Victor Palmer, and low to Mrs. Louis Stein.

The McPherron home was tastefully decorated in cut spring flowers and heart designs were in evidence.

GARMENTS ARE FLUFFY AGAIN

"We are bringing woman back into her kingdom this spring," said Jean Patou, the designer, in discussing the new styles.

"She must give up the masculine garb of her brothers. Every tailored costume, dress or evening gown is intended to give an impression of youth and this is possible only with fluffy clothes.

"Taffeta itself is a hard cloth, so we combine it with filmy silks. Any pastel color will do, but there is a preference for lilac tints.

"Embroidery in light, rich designs is coming into favor this spring and summer. Beads are being abandoned, but pretty effects still are being obtained with flat spangles.

"In general our styles tend to deceive age."

American buyers are here in large numbers. During the next few weeks the dresses for American women who buy imported goods will be shown on the models selected and sent across the Atlantic.

FREMONT SCHOOL OPENED FRIDAY

Fremont school, one of the most elaborate school buildings in the state, opened to the public on Friday afternoon with a fitting ceremony and program, of which Mrs. Leslie Rogers was chairman.

Piano solos from Mrs. Russell A. Austin and Mrs. Fred Cofer were well received as were vocal numbers from Mrs. Francis R. Olds, and Mrs. Elizabeth Sanders. A reading by
