TOUGH CONVICTS TO BREAK ROCKS

Warden Has Plan to Divide His Guests Up Into Three Classes

SALEM, Feb. 22.—(United News)—A rock pile where hard boiled and other incorrigibles among the convict population at the state prison here may expend their surplus energies is the latest plan for the penitentiary, according to announcement by Warden Lillie Monday.

Warden Lillie's plan for the operation of the prison contemplates the segregation of the prisoners into three classes. New arrivals will be placed in the class of probationers. Those who show a willingness to work and abide by the rules of the prison will be placed in class I, from which the men for labor in the flax plant and other prison industries will be drawn. These men will be accorded privileges approximating those allowed trustees, although they will not be allowed outside the prison walls.

The probationers who, on the other hand, display a tendency to become "hard boiled" will be placed on the third class, and put to work on the rock pile in the center of the prison yard under constant guard. As an additional punishment, convicts placed in this latter class will be garbed in stripes.

Lillie declares that practically all of the trouble experienced in the prison originates from a few "hard boiled" convicts.
