UNDER SHERIFFS PURSUE BANDIT

Officers Coldtrail Colo-Bandit, Cattle Rustler and Bad Man

MONTROSE, Colo., March 10.—(United Press)—Two deputies of the sheriff's force of Montrose country are "somewhere" in Dry Creek basin tonight where they went to search for Ed Williams, alleged cattle rustler, funfighter and "bad man."

Although the men left here Friday and have not been heard from, little anxiety is felt for Under Sheriff Roy Rostcap, and Deputy Clyde Williams. They are as handy with rifles as the man for whom they are searching.

Williams, convicted last January of stealing cattle, was granted a new trial. He was released on $1500 bond. It was thought he had disappeared until he turned up Thursday at the ranch of Richard Freal. There Williams is alleged to have precipitated an argument with the rancher over a horse belonging to him which had been on Freel's range. A fight followed and Williams shot Freel in the wrist and then beat him into insensibility.

Addresses Labor.

Delegates from all the labor unions were present last night, presided over by Mr. R. Morrison and E. F. Duffy and Upton's remarks were received with general favor owing to the fact that he has represented this district in the state senate for the past six sessions and knows the needs of Oregon.

"The right of organizations to bargain collectively in order to bring about better living conditions and a living wage is now recognized as one of the fundamental rights of mankind," said Upton. "No longer do the prison doors yawn for labor organizations that unite the members of their craft in law abiding organizations to bring about a better and a mutual understanding in the joint partnership of developing industry," he continued.

"Oregon needs a governor who will recognize the fact that it his duty to see that laws are administered with the same economy and efficiency that is expected from the head of a business enterprise."

Assails Governor.

"The governor could, if he were attending to business instead of spending his time making campaign speeches away from his office, correct the existing abuses in the administration of the workmen's compensation act and particularly the justifiable criticism that the family physicians of injured workmen are hampered and interfered with and the care of the injured corralled into the hands of a few political proselytes.

ROBBER KIDNAPS BUSY PHYSICIAN

Man At Point of Death Must Wait Until Dr. Is Released by Thief

THE DALLES, March 10.—(United News)—With a patient waiting in a serious condition to be transferred from Grass Valley to The Dalles, where a ruptured appendix could be removed, Dr. C. L. Poley of Grass Valley Sunday night was kidnaped by a bandit at the point of a gun at the door of C. E. Field's garage and forced to drive the hold-up man to a point several miles in the country and away from the direction of The Dalles.

Despite Dr. Poley's entreaties regarding his patient, the bandit, who had been surprised in the act of robbing the garage, would not release him until a secluded spot had been reached, where a parked car awaited the robber.

Dr. Poley then sped back to Grass Valley, and without waiting to notify police of the occurrence rushed his patient over more than fifty miles of curving canyon road, arriving shortly after midnight, when a successful operation was performed.

WHAT HO! ROYAL STABLE ON FIRE

Incendiarism or Short Circuit Endangers Prince's Prized Chargers

LONDON, March 10. — (United News)—Fire in the stables of the Prince of Wales' Devonshire farm in Princetown did considerable damage Tuesday, although all of the prince's horses were saved.

The fire was the tenth mysterious blaze on country estates of prominent Britishers within the last few weeks. Among several totally destroyed were the historic mansions of Sir Philip Grey-Egerton, Earl Grey, Lady Kenyon, Lord Hillingdon, Sir Thomas Gooch and Madame Sarah Grand.

Modernizing old houses with electric light systems is believed responsible for the fires, although some fire insurance underwriters believe incendiarism was the cause in some instances.

YOUNG RICH TO GET LIFE TERM

Jury of Farmers Decides Young Battle Creek Man Is Guilty

MASON, Mich., March 10. — (United News)—A jury of farmers here has decided that the ultra-modern ways of the college co-ed have not lowered her morality.

Even though she admits that she occasionally sips wine, rolls her stockings, pets and smokes cigarets, she is still entitled to chivalric treatment by her male escorts, the jury held.

The verdict came late Wednesday in the form of a decision finding Arthur C. Rich, wealthy young Battle Creek sportsman, guilty of a criminal assault on Miss Louise King, his companion in a golf course petting party last May 25.

Rich's attorneys had claimed that the pretty co-ed's conduct and mode of dress invited his advances, but the jury of farmers, three of whom have daughters of their own, threw the argument overboard.

Out 25 Minutes.

The jury deliberated only twenty-five minutes. Immediately after it had reported Judge Charles B. Collingwood sentenced Rich to a life term in prison, which is the penalty for criminal assault under the law of Michigan.

Rich, whose father is a wealthy Michigan steel manufacturer, seemed prepared for an adverse verdict, but he winced noticeably when the judge imposed the full penalty. He fainted earlier in the day at the mere mention of imprisonment by one of the prosecutors in his closing argument.

Miss King, who, in addition to pushing the prosecution of her traducer, has sued him for $100,000 damages, seemed pleased with the verdict, despite the fact that it probably will defeat her plan to collect any damages.

Was Retrial.

The hearing here was a retrial, the first at Battle Creek several months ago, having ended in a disagreement and dismissal of the jury. It stirred up so much sentiment in Battle Creek, however, that the case had to be brought to Mason on a change of venue.

Probably more than any other case of its kind in recent years the trial of young Rich brought to the fore many of the problems of youth that are bidding for the attention of educators and sociologists.

Governor Groesbeck sent Assistant Attorney General O. L. Smith here to head the prosecution after the case had attracted state wide attention through the prominence of the defendant and the nature of the questions raised by the charges.

Will Appeal.

William Barnard, chief of the defense counsel, indicated he would appeal.

During his closing arguments Barnard delivered an attack on the ways of modern girls. Rich had every reason to suspect that Miss King was immoral, he said, because she wore flimsy clothes and yielded readily to the youth's love-making.

Barnard also cited Miss King's admission that she occasionally sipped wine and smoked cigarets as evidence of her "alleged impurity."

Miss King, Rich and another couple had gone for an automobile ride on the night of the attack. When Miss King was returned to her dormitory at the Battle Creek college her face was badly bruised and her jaw had been fractured.

On the witness stand she testified that Rich struck her in the face with his fists. Rich's defense was that she became intoxicated and fell down.
