

Indians Are Justly Indignant.

Consider Reputation and Good Name Injured

A delegation of about twenty residents of the Klamath Indian Reservation were in town yesterday afternoon, quietly talking to friends among the business men of the city in protest against the reports of lawlessness and drunkenness that have been circulated recently concerning conditions on the reservation following the recent ruling of Circuit Judge Leavitt declaring state courts without jurisdiction over Indian offenses committed on the reservation. A meeting of other residents of the reservation was being held at Chiloquin at the same time to consider means of protest against what they believe to be a libel and slander on their reputation and good name.

Somberly, without bitterness or heat, but with deep earnestness they expressed their pain and resentment at what they feel to be an unmerited aspersion upon their people. Knowing well the general sobriety and industry of most of their number, their pride in their nation has been deeply injured by this latest aspersion, so little warranted in actual fact.

Those who have been instrumental in making a mountainous story of outrages out of a molehill of petty offenses, which would have passed unnoticed as part and parcel of the run of daily events but for the unwarranted appeal broadcasted throughout the country, have a heavy moral accounting to make before justifying themselves in the eyes of our friends of ancient American lineage. No unseemly act will mark the expression of that resentment only a calm and dignified reproof. But in their breasts there burns a smouldering resentment, in their eyes there speaks a new doubt of the white man's sincerity.

Registration Is a Civic Duty.

Next Wednesday the Last Day

It is the civic duty of every qualified voter in Klamath Falls to register his name at the court house on or before next Wednesday, April 21, in order to be able to vote in the Oregon state primary election coming on the 21st day of May. So far only about three hundred voters have registered in Klamath Falls. At least two thousand should register before a reasonably large proportion of the voters of the city can exercise their privilege as citizens to make the important preliminary choices that will largely determine who will be selected as the people's representatives in Klamath County and the State of Oregon next November.

Further, it must be urged that registration is necessary in order that the important municipal questions coming before the citizens of Klamath Falls at the same time may be properly decided by a full representation of the voting strength of the city.

The importance of the municipal question or questions coming before the voters of the city cannot be overstressed. The adoption or rejection of a new city charter is before us—a city charter that presents the city manager form of government, a change that merits the very serious consideration of every citizen of Klamath Falls. No citizen who takes pride in the growth and progress of Klamath Falls, and who has a real interest in its destined development, can afford to refrain from taking an active interest in this question action on which has had such important effects on the welfare of many American cities.

Another question of interest to the city voter that may be on the ballot on May 21st is that of a referendum to set aside the ordinance passed by the city council to vacate certain city streets. The measure is yet to be placed on the ballot, as petitions in circulation for its placement on the ballot have not yet been turned in. The referendum concerns what may mean an important industrial development for the city, and it, too, deserves careful consideration by each voter.

Voters who are resting secure in the belief that former registrations give them the right to vote in the election on May 21st are likely to incur considerable trouble in voting. The city has been redistricted since the latest previous registration. Whereas the city had ten precincts it now has twenty-one. All citizens whose districts have been reassigned are now obliged to register again. It is best to register and be on the safe side, as there are very few voters in the city whose precincts have not been changed.

Civic duty is such an intangible thing to some that we are tempted to try to estimate in dollars and cents what the adoption or rejection of one or both of these city measures may mean to each voter. That it will mean dollars, and perhaps hundreds and even thousands to the average citizen is capable of actual demonstration. But to place this reminder on too material a basis, let us repeat that it is the duty of every voter of Klamath Falls the privilege of every voter who cares a snap for the development and progress of our city, to register on or before next Wednesday.

BUSINESS WOMEN HONOR BIRTHDAYS.

Members and guests of the Business and Professional Women's club of Klamath Falls, whose birthdays fall during the spring months of March and April were honored on Monday evening at the April dinner party of the group held in the dining room of the White Pelican hotel.

A pink angel food cake formed the centerpiece of the honor table, with pink candles and place cards completing the prettily arranged table. Those who sat at the birthday table were Mrs. Loomis, Mrs. Grace Stewart, Mrs. Esther Dunivan, Martha Upp and Cordella Cantrall.

A business meeting in the sun parlor followed the dinner. The club decided to actively sponsor Mrs. Harwood's group of camp fire girls. The "Oregon Business Woman," the maiden magazine effort of the Oregon Business and Professional Women, is now in the hands of Klamath Falls members. Much interest is now being manifest in the state convention at Astoria on June 18, 19 and 20. It is hoped that a large delegation will represent Klamath Falls at that time.

On the program of the evening was a book review by Mrs. Malda C. Harwood, on John Erskine's "The Private Life of Helen of Troy." Mrs. Harwood's personal touches were much enjoyed. Mrs. Esther Dunivan sang very delightfully Gounod's "Quando al te Lieto"—"When to Thy Vision" and "April Girl" by Fairland.
