

REAL BALLOONS, NOT TIRES, FLY FAR IN RACING

Annual Contest for Huge Bags Likely to Set New Records

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 30.—(United News)—All eight balloons which swept into the clouds here Thursday on the start of the national elimination race are believed to be still in the air, bobbing like great corks among the clouds somewhere above the United States.

Definite word regarding the whereabouts of the air monsters has been received here concerning only one contesting balloon, the S-29. It was seen over Winchester, Ky., late Friday afternoon, drifting in an easy wind toward the northeast.

Officials here said the S-29 stood an excellent chance of getting caught in a forty-five-mile southwest wind which would drive her almost due northeast across Pennsylvania, New York and into New England. Fear was expressed that the S-29 would not be able to remain in the air throughout the night.

Kentucky Home
Information regarding the location of the other balloons could not be obtained here Friday, but it was believed most of them were over eastern Kentucky.

The pilot balloon which took the air at 4:30 Thursday, landed at Alfred, Tenn., shortly before noon Friday after a 400-mile trip. The Skylark, piloted by W. C. Naylor, carried only 20,000 cubic feet of gas.

The contesting balloons carried 35,000 cubic feet of gas.

Court Decides Ladies May Do as They Do Do

NEW YORK, April 30.—(United News)—The right of a woman to protect those things which she holds sacred, even to the point of killing those whom she believes menace her, was upheld by a judge and jury in court Thursday when Edith Parker Davis, a dancer and model, was acquitted after trial for the shooting of her common law husband, D. Allen Davis, an actor.

The girl was charged with entering apartment of Harry Wagstaff Gribble, a playwright, on July 7 last, and wounding Davis, who then was playing a role in "White Cargo." She called that Davis, Gribble and Melville Anderson, another actor, conspired to mistreat her in revenge for her interference. Two hours after Judge J. F. Mulqueen had told the jury that "a woman—any woman, good or bad—has the right to kill in such circumstances, even if the threat was uttered in apparent jest," the jury returned its verdict of not guilty.

After the verdict was announced Miss Davis became hysterical and collapsed. Later she calmed down sufficiently to pose for photographs.

C. G. F. Wahl, summing up for the defense, told the jury that Davis and two friends enticed the girl to a room for the purpose of subjecting her to humiliating indignities.

"It is a fantastic story that has been told here," he said, "but remember you are dealing with fantastic people."

Wells, Walker and Parker, present day interests, maintain that their rights date from the filing of appropriation notices with the county of Klamath, back as early as 1883 and that these filings are the absolute establishment of prior rights since there was no recording before that time. They are opposed by the claim of modern settlers, who say that their lands received water from these streams before 1883 and that such early usage established a right superior to the lands upon which water filings were made.

Attorneys Manning of Klamath Falls and Cotton of Lakeview represent the thirty plaintiffs, and Attorneys Yaden and Rutenic the defendants.

CANCER VICTIM DOCTOR STUDIES DISEASE TO END

San Francisco Medical Man Hopes to Learn More of Scourge

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—(United News)—A victim of cancer, Dr. A. F. Schaefer, used the last months of his life attempting to gain a knowledge of the disease that would help future generations. Dr. Schaefer, a prominent figure in the medical world for the last 15 years, died Thursday after a year's illness. It became known after his death that newest forms of medical science had been tried in his case and that the patient had kept a detailed record of their effect, his reaction to the various methods and his opinion of their value.

A short time ago Dr. Schaefer offered himself as the subject of

Pelting Paul Told to Fight or Step Aside

NEW YORK, April 30.—(United News)—Paul Berlenbach, light heavyweight champion, must defend his title at Yankee stadium under Tex Rickard's promotion on or before June 10, the state athletic commission has decided. Berlenbach and his manager, Dan Hickey, had been talking of deserting Rickard and fighting Jack Delaney at Ebbets field for Humbert J. Fugazy who holds a contract with the Bridgeport challenger.

While the commissioners were handling Rickard everything he wanted in the way of a Dempsey-Wills match, the board also ordered Berlenbach to fulfill his contract with Tex.

Young Stribling will be given the shot at Paul's title if Delaney does not desert Fugazy, and go back to Rickard.
