WINE BATH NO NEW THING FOR DAINTY MODEL

Mama Says Girl Used Dad's Brandy for Dip to Make Her Tall

CHICAGO, May 27.—(United News)—Joyce Hawley's wine bath at Earl Carroll's February morn party in New York was not an altogether new experience for the charmer.

Joyce's mother recalled in an interview that her daughter developed a desire for alcoholic tubbings at the tender age of nine years.

It seems that Joyce believed an occasional wine bath would make her grow tall and maybe it did, because as her mother phrased it, "she tall girl now."

Papa Is Rough
Joyce's father, Tony Cavelas, is a butcher and her mother is a plain Lithuanian woman. The parents were found living in three rooms in the rear of a small meat market and grocery on the west side.

You enter the home of the captivating Joyce by a flight of creaky stairs, stepping carefully to avoid the chubby little hands of numerous Lithuanian children, who make the stairway their playground.

Several of these are Joyce's brothers and sisters.

But to get back to Joyce's earlier tubbings, the ones which probably gave her confidence in herself when she accepted Mr. Carroll's offer, Mrs. Daugelis said Joyce really prefers brandy.

Brandy Dip
"When Therese (Daugelis, family name) small girl she used to take her pa's brandy and pour it in her tub when she take a bath," the mother said. "Maybe she start taking wine bath early, huh? She say she think that make her grow tall."

The big, good natured Lithuanian mother is sure "that girl" has brought disgrace to the family. "Therese lazy," she said while sluicing the noon dishes in the kitchen sink. "No work. She always do nothing. I not see her since eight months. She make us lots of letters and telegrams about this. Why she do it? That make fool out of me."

Papa Daugelis can see nothing wrong in what Therese has done.

"She good girl, have good time," he said. "Good big joke. I laugh and laugh. Lots people laugh with me."

White Pelican Theatre Taken; to Re-open With First Run Film

The White Pelican Theatre, closed for nearly a year, is to be reopened within a few days. G. G. McPherson, experienced theatre man has obtained a three years' lease on the building and furnishings and is now renovating and redecorating. Mr. McPherson was in the theatre business for some years in San Marcos, Texas, and has also been engaged in the telephone and lumber business in Oregon.

"It is my intention to offer high class pictures at the lowest possible price" said Mr. McPherson yesterday. "The White Pelican theatre is within easy reach of a very considerable population at the present time, which will increase with the development of the railroad terminal facilities. I am sure that with the attractions I shall offer, the White Pelican theatre will acquire a very respectable sized patronage." Mr. McPherson is very well impressed with the business prospects in Klamath Falls.
