Paul Clagstone Says Nation's Prosperity is Here Permanently

Western Manager of Chamber of Commerce of U. S. Compliments Organized Labor and Urges Budget System for Business Men; Is of Opinion Lumber Men Should Have Help.

The United States will continue to enjoy great prosperity for a long period, and the peak of our industrial success has not yet been reached.

This was the gist of the address made yesterday noon at the weekly luncheon of the Forum of the Klamath chamber of commerce by Paul Clagstone, western manager of the United States chamber of commerce, and who maintains offices in San Francisco with complete jurisdiction over eleven states.

Mr. Clagstone was fresh from a visit to Washington, D. C., where he had been in conference with the officials of the national organization, and with which the Klamath chamber is affiliated. He is thoroughly versed in the inner workings of the parent chamber, is fortified with facts and figures, and is possessed of a fund of knowledge pertaining to industrial activities that places him in a position where he can offer advice and suggestions that will be fruitful of results if individual communities, through their local civic societies, will only follow his teachings.

Talks on Budget Problem
Mr. Clagstone explained that the chamber of commerce of the United States favored the movement for the adoption of the budget system in the business conduct of the United States, and laid particular stress on the endorsements given the chamber by General Lord, present director of the budget, and General Dawes, former director.

"General Lord recently stated," said Mr. Clagstone, that in 1921, the last year free from budget control, that the government spent $5,115,927,889.34, while in 1924, the third budget year, the sum of $3,048,677,965.34 was expended, thus effecting a saving of $2,191,252,994.94. It will be noticed that in the three years of the budget, expenses of the government were reduced over two billion dollars, while General Lord has declared that more than half of this amount is directly due to the pruning of executive estimates by the budget bureau."

Mr. Clagstone explained how essential the budget system was in all lines of business, and explained in detail how economies could be practiced and savings effected if they will only resort to the conduct of their business along the plans outlined.

Interested in Lumber
Of special interest to the lumber industry the remarks of Mr. Clagstone were extremely timely. "Lumbermen," he continued, in quoting Andrew H. Phelps, field manager of the national chamber, "naturally want to know what the chamber is doing to help them in their particular problems. One

Council Adopts Paving Program Which Includes Large Sections

Bids Will Be Called for and Contracts Awarded That Work May Start in July on City Improvement

Blueprints and specifications of seven paving units, which will call for an expenditure of more than $250,000 this summer, were passed last night by the city council during an adjourned regular meeting.

Approximately 69 blocks will be paved this summer with the passage of the seven units last night. With the paving unit described as Main street from Spring street to the government canal, the total number of blocks to be completed this year reaches nearly 70.

City dads hope to call for the bids soon and have the work well underway during July. Completion of the projects is hoped for by November 1.

With the improvement of these districts new residential sections, as well as business blocks, will be created. Sections of Klamath Falls, now almost inaccessible during the winter because of the mud and

Southern Pacific Terminal Work Is To Start At Once

The Utah Construction company, holders of the major contracts for construction of the Southern Pacific yards in Klamath Falls, yesterday ordered lumber and supplies from the Lakeside Lumber company for immediate delivery.

Delivery will begin today at the site of the main construction camp, just off the main right of way of the Southern Pacific between the city limits and Pelican City.

Other contractors are here figuring on the construction of the concrete roundhouse that will be built about opposite Wantland street, in the railroad yards.

Miss Ruth DeLap Charming Bride of Ralph Turner

Miss Ruth Marie DeLap, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. DeLap, pioneer residents of Klamath county, became the bride of Ralph Turner at high noon Wednesday at the family residence on Eldorado street.

Only members of both families were present at the wedding. Rev. A. F. Simmons read the ceremony. Miss Octavia DeLap was her sister's only attendant, and Scott Warren of this city was best man.

The bride wore a frock of poudre blue with a heavy hem of silver lace. Her sister was gowned in peach silk.

Shortly after the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to 21 guests. Mr. and Mrs. Turner left for the valley and will be at home next week to their friends on Vine street.

MARSHALL FIELD GETS REAL SCARE FROM OLD CRONIES

Marshall Field of the New City laundry, who is now sporting a new Packard roadster, was yesterday informed in stentorian tones over the telephone that he was under arrest for parking on "the west side of Fourth street."

He was ordered to report at the court house at once. Fields did. He spent a half hour looking for "Shortie" Foster, traffic officer, constables, deputy sheriffs and other law enforcing officers.

Finally someone whispered to him that there was no ordinance forbidding him to park on the west side of Fourth street, and about the same time a bunch of his friends gathered him in for a farewell party.

Field is leaving for Eugene sometime this week.

White Man Says He Murdered at Request Wealthy Oklahoma Man

Relates of Many Crimes to Assist Rich Uncle in Securing Fortunes of Osages in Oklahoma

PAWHUSKA, Okla., June 9.—(United News)—Choosing a dramatic moment when the capital of the Osage nation swarmed with the five civilized tribes of the west in annual pow-wow, Ernest Burkhardt, a white man, confessed Wednesday that he participated in the "reign of terror" which sent 20 wealthy Osage Indians to their deaths in 1922.

As though a part of the picturesque pow-wow program itself, Burkhardt called a sudden halt in the proceedings of Judge Jess E. Werten's court, where he was on trial and entered a plea of guilty to the murder of W. E. Smith, his Indian wife, and a servant girl.

Murdered at Request
The triple murder, he said, was committed at the request of W. K. Hale, his uncle, who is known as "king of the Osage hills," and who has been named as ringleader of the plot to slaughter wealthy Osages for their head rights.

This unexpected turn in the trial involving the Osage "king" seemed to raise the veil of mystery for the first time on the record of murders which followed the redskins' rise to wealth, after prospectors struck oil on his land.

Hale already has been indicted by the federal government, but has not been brought to trial. He was

Standard Liked By Local People As Investment

H. B. Fairchild, district sales manager of the Standard Oil company of California, arrived in Klamath Falls yesterday from his headquarters in Sacramento, and personally delivered certificates of stock in the company to the local employees of the corporation.

Recently an allotment of shares in the company was set aside in the interest of employees only, and the issue was promptly subscribed, which checks the faith those associated with the concern have in the merits of this prosperous industrial enterprise.

Mr. Fairchild congratulated the employees on their becoming stockholders in the company, and discussed the object of the plan and its success, dwelling particularly on the point that the primary purpose had been to give the employees an opportunity to become stockholders in their company, and that they were now part owners in their own business. The thrift feature and its effect on the individual employee was also pointed out.

Mr. Fairchild and party left shortly after the presentation on their return to California, going by way of Malin and Fall River Mills, which stations will be inspected on their return trip.

Will Open Tourist Highway Junction

Tourist Bureau of Southern Oregon Will Expound Possibilities of Klamath County.

Klamath county is assured of constructive publicity and a consistent program of development through the action last night of the board of directors and representative stockholders of the Southern Oregon Tourist Bureau, with the naming of Ben H. Stevenson, newspaperman, to manage and operate the Klamath-Pacific highway junction tourist bureau project.

Public spirited citizens of Klamath county on March 1, of this year, organized a corporation and leased for a period of ten years a six-acre tract at the highway junction. This property was shown to be admirably adapted to the purposes for which it was acquired.

The principal purpose of the project was to install a permanent Klamath county exhibit at an advantageous point where the many thousands of automobile tourists entering Oregon from California could be shown the great opportunities offered in the Klamath country.

Was Originator
The idea for such a project originated with Stevenson. He has been one of the most active members of the boosters' organization in developing the plans.

The directors of the bureau have been equally enthusiastic as to the good work which could be accomplished through the medium of the bureau. They have improved the property and given their time toward getting the full plan in operation.

Lumbermen of Klamath county were among the first to see the constructive value of the project. Their offer was substantial. They have furnished selected Klamath pine

ENGINEER HAYDEN VISITS KLAMATH

B. E. Hayden, former engineer in charge of operation and maintenance of the United States reclamation service project in Klamath county, was in Klamath Falls for several days as a witness in the hearing of Charles W. Eberlein.

Hayden has made his home in Denver, Colo., for the past few years and departed for home yesterday. He last served in Klamath Falls with the U. S. R. S. in 1914, and expressed great interest in the subsequent growth of this district.

GOLD OF WHITE MAN SEARS DEEP IN OSAGE FIBRE

PAWHUSKA, Okla., June 9.—The white man's gold has seared deep into the fibre of the Osage Indian nation.

To watch members of the tribe rolling into the capital here is to see the gnawing effects of wealth. At the pow-wow Wednesday night one huge brave with his blanket, driving an expensive automobile, sped up the main street. Both he and his squaw wore blankets, feathers and paint.

They got out of the automobile and entered a "chill parlor." After each had eaten two dishes of chili they bought ice cream cones, went back to the car and drove to the amphitheatre where the hysteric dance was held by a huge bonfire.

Harmony Exists In Republican Party Ranks of Klamath County

Hearty Support is Given Steiwer for Senator and Patterson for Governor

The republican county central committee held a rally and organization meeting last night at the court house, giving hearty support to the national and state ticket, with particular stress on Frederick W. Steiwer for senator and L. L. Patterson for governor. W. W. McNealy was elected chairman.

A formal motion was passed to endorse the republican ticket, this being merely a formality, for after some discussion as to the advisability of some of the county candidates, Chairman McNealy held that it was the duty of the county committee to endorse its ticket. While Steiwer and Patterson received the outspoken support of the two dozen committeemen present, the word "support" was left out of the motion of endorsement.

Robert B. Kuykendall, state committeeman, asked for instructions as to the state chairman, but it was the sense of the gathering that he

Klamath-Ashland Road To Be Oiled And Guards Built

There will be 1200 feet of guard rails built at dangerous spots along the Klamath Falls-Ashland highway within the next few months, according to officials of the state highway department.

It has been the plan of the highway department to build guard rails on this highway and several accidents during the past few weeks have spurred the department to action. The cost of guard rails is estimated at $1.00 a foot.

C. C. Seeley is warning motorists that they must proceed slowly while they approach to Klamath Falls are being oiled during the next two weeks. There will be three applications of oil. If, while the oil is fresh on the road and the surface slippery, motorists speed and expect to use their brakes, accidents are certain to happen. Cars will skid and turn around on a freshly oiled road if brakes are applied suddenly, warns Seeley.

Holstein Dairy Herd Is To Be Sent to Klamath

More than a hundred head of Holstein dairy cows, most of them thoroughbreds, will likely be brought into Klamath county from Glendale and Eugene within the next few weeks, according to County Agent C. A. Henderson, who has just returned from these points after inspecting the herds.

There is one herd of more than 100 dairy cows at Eugene, which must be sold because of the burning of a barn. About half of these are pure-bred and the rest are half grade. There are seven pure-bred cows at Glendale.

Oregon Convict is Believed Murderer of Unknown People

Frank Williams, Convicted of Slaying McLeod in 1914, May Have Committed the Crime and Burying the Bodies on Southern Edge of Lower Klamath Lake; Crimes Similar.

The finding of the bleached skeletons of a man and a woman near the cabin of an abandoned homestead on the southern edge of Lower Klamath lake is believed by the authorities to be another crime traceable to Frank William Hudspeth, alias Frank Williams, now serving a life sentence for the murder of Allen "Scottie" McLeod in the same neighborhood where the skeletons were found.

Local Educators Planning Novel Vacation Period, Summer Months

Four from Klamath and Four from Medford to Make Tour of the United States by Automobile

When four Klamath Falls teachers join four Medford teachers for a trip throughout the United States, the Balsiger Motor company, from whom the local girls bought their Ford sedan, will have a map of the United States drawn on their windows. Every other day when the girls reach another step in their journey they will wire Elmer Balsiger. A miniature Ford will show the progress of the girls.

At Grants Pass the dealer who sold the Medford teachers their Ford, will do likewise, only on opposite nights the girls will wire the valley dealer.

The Klamath Falls teachers are Miss Anna Mae Johnston, Miss Hazel Noble, Miss Rena Gore and Miss Frieda Kjack. The Medford teachers are Miss Gertrude Parker, Miss Margaret Scott, Miss Mabel Wahl and Miss Davis.

They are planning a trip that will embrace San Francisco, Los Angeles, Tia Juana, Mexico; El Paso, Juarez, Mexico; New Orleans, Florida, up the Atlantic coast to Washington, D. C., Boston, Philadelphia, New York. There they will stop for a week and then continue to Niagara Falls. The travelers have relatives in Michigan, Chicago, Minnesota and Iceland whom they will visit before entering on the last lap home. They will return by way of Yellowstone national park and Portland.

Boer War Veteran
The McLeod case was particularly brutal. McLeod, a veteran of the Boer war, was a likeable bachelor homesteader. Williams had insisted on working for him on his homestead, located about three miles to the south or south-east of the lower marsh lands. It was shown in the statement before the court by John Irwin, then district attorney.

When McLeod disappeared from his cabin the suspicions of the neighbors were aroused. Two of them arrived at the McLeod place on a Sunday night to buy potatoes.

Campfire Groups Will Hold Joint Meet on Friday

A joint meeting of five major campfire groups from Ashland, Jacksonville, Klamath Agency and Klamath Falls has been called for 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, June 11 at Pinehurst, where Campfire girls and their guardians will have the opportunity to hear Miss Mary Squire, editor of Every Girl's Magazine, official publication of Campfire.

Miss Squire, enroute to Stockton to attend a national convention, agreed to stop in Ashland. Klamath Falls girls wished the opportunity to hear Miss Squire, and Pinehurst was agreed upon as a central meeting place.

Five groups from Klamath Falls with nearly 80 girls and their guardians, five groups from Ashland and one each from both Jacksonville and Klamath Agency will make an excellent representation for southern Oregon.

J. Hirvi, of the Hirvi Baking company, has donated to the Campfire girls bread for the sandwiches to be served at a 5 o'clock supper. Members of the Kiwanis club of Klamath Falls have offered free transportation for the girls from the local groups.
