

Lake Boat Is Hobby Klamath Attorney

Scow Being Constructed to Be Summer Home of J. C. Rutenic and C. D. Wilson.

Klamath is going to get the house boat habit if J. C. Rutenic, attorney and collector of Indian relics, has his way about it—and Rutenic is pioneering the way by building a boat in partnership with C. D. Willson, an old timer of the Klamath country.

The Rutenic-Wilson houseboat is to be named the Helix. This name, according to Rutenic, typifies the craft. It is Latin for that species of snail that carries its house along with it on its back; it is built for comfort rather than speed.

Marvelous Body of Water

"Here we have a marvelous lake. And we have failed to take advantage of it. With the opening of the Natron cut-off thousands of people are going to sense the advantages of Lake Klamath for summering, fishing and swimming," says Rutenic, who is an enthusiast. "And on this lake there is not a single houseboat."

"But the summer months are not all. There is the duck season, and a houseboat can be used as a floating lodge. It can be towed anywhere throughout a hundred miles of bays, creeks and rivers.

"The Willamette river near Portland is lined with houseboats that have been built by Portland people. Folks like the water and like to get near it and cities have always been built adjacent to water. When you show people how cheap it is to put a substantial boat in the water on the upper lake there will be hundreds who want to do the same thing.

Mrs. Irma Dixon Named Delegate to Club Meeting

Mrs. Irma Dixon, president of the Klamath Falls Business and Professional Women's club, was elected to attend the annual convention of Oregon Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs at the meeting of the group last night in Linkhaven tea shop.

Mrs. Dixon will leave Wednesday for Astoria where, with Mrs. Lena Dennis, she will represent the Klamath Falls club, one of the youngest in the state.

Mrs. Dennis was also given the power to appear as a delegate from the Klamath Falls lodge. She is in Portland this week attending the Eastern Star grand lodge, and will have the opportunity to be in Astoria during the state gathering of clubs.

COMEDIAN JOINS HANDS WITH GIRL FIVE YEARS OLDER

NEWARK, N. J., June 14.—(United News)—Freckled Wesley Barry, the 18-year-old movie star, was married to a girl five years older than himself late Monday, without benefit of publicity.

The bride was Miss Julia Wood, 23-year-old. They met in a Vanderbilt house at Terre Haute, Ind., where both were playing on the same bill. The marriage was performed at her home by a Presbyterian minister and the only witnesses were Miss Wood's parents and Wesley's mother, Mrs. Harry Eyre, who came to Newark from Los Angeles for the wedding.

Robert Savage Insists He Is Champion Sap of Whole World

Clara Bow, Flapper, Draws Sigh of Relief When Boy Is Declared Sane at His Sanity Hearing in L. A.

LOS ANGELES, June 14.—(United News)—A long, blistering kiss and a bite on the lip, administered by Clara Bow, "flaming flapper" of the screen, were but two of the disturbing things that drove Robert W. Savage, Yale grid hero to attempt suicide for her love.

The other things, Savage's friends revealed at his sanity charges here Monday, were the "soft, California moon," a kiss on the porch and the fact that in the spring a young man's mind gets "kind of sappy."

The former football star admitted that he was the world's greatest "sap" and that he scratched his wrists with a safety razor blade because Miss Bow was slow in returning his love.

The "flaming youth" Miss Bow, was the chief witness at the trial. She was attired in her 1926 flapper costume, a red fur and her regular red hair. Miss Bow was visibly annoyed.

She blushed to match her glowing hair and ruby lips when Gus Patterson, Savage's boy friend, testified that he saw Clara and Robert kissing each other so strenuously on the back porch that he was afraid the hammock would break.

"She kept kissing him so hard," Patterson went on, "that his lips were sore for two days."

While the boy friend was telling all he knew, Savage was gesticulating wildly for him to stop, but (Continued on Page Six)

Boy Scouts Given Play Ground By Power Company

Eagle Ridge tavern and its charming environments of swimming, boating and mountain climbing, is to become a haven for Boy Scouts, according to Bert Blevins, local executive of the scouts, who announces that the California Oregon Power company has turned over the property for a summer camp for the boys.

Blevins and a representative of the Samaritan company expect to leave today for the resort where a survey of the surroundings will be made to determine the proper procedure to follow that Boy Scouts may be assured of their summer outings.

Announcement of the departure of the various patrols for the new camp will be made from time to time.

Redding Pastor May Be Called To This City

Rev. Dan W. Thurston, pastor of the First Baptist church of Redding, Calif., for the last five years, is a visitor to Klamath Falls, and Sunday preached at Emanuel Baptist church. He will again occupy the pulpit next Sunday.

During the next few days Rev. Thurston will look over the field here, and there is a possibility that he will be asked to accept the pastorate in this city of Emanuel Baptist church. Enthused with the possibilities (Continued on Page Five)

Fish, Game Meeting Attracts Sportsmen

Problems Worked Out By Representatives of Oregon and California That Are Agreeable.

Full co-operation of the California fish and game commission was promised Oregon by Mark Greene, executive secretary of the California body, at a joint meeting and dinner of the commissions of the two states last night at the Klamath chamber of commerce.

Greene and N. D. Scofield, director of commercial fishing with the California commission, are being made acquainted with the problems of the two states, and are being shown over southern Oregon as guests of the Oregon commission. They leave today for Crater, Diamond, Crescent and East lakes, with the best wishes of the Klamath Sportsmen's association, whose guests they were here.

The session of the joint commission began Sunday at Copco dam. It has always been the contention of the Oregon commission that fish hatched at the Fall creek hatchery should be planted above the dam, since it was impossible to build a fish ladder. The California members agreed that this could be worked out satisfactorily.

Study Flood Problem

Yesterday the commissioners made a trip around Lower Klamath lake to study the re-flooding problem. The California commissioners (Continued on Page Two)

Louis Stiles Is Injured By Fall From Freight Car

Falling from a box car while loading logs at the Strahorn spur at Swan Lake, Louis Stiles, aged 57, years, suffered injuries of an undetermined nature yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Stiles was severely injured but it has not yet been ascertained whether they are of an internal nature or not.

The injured man was rushed to the Klamath General hospital where he was made as comfortable as possible, and an X-ray examination will be made this morning to determine the extent of his wounds.

Stiles is employed by the Ewauna Box factory, but resides at Swan Lake with his wife and three children.

Veteran of Civil War Is Called to Eternal Reward

When death closed the tired eyes and stilled the weary heart of Moses Frasier, aged 86 years, one of the few remaining veterans of the Civil war closed a life of great activity and usefulness. Death occurred yesterday morning at 4:10 o'clock.

Moses Frasier had been a resident of Klamath Falls for 19 years and with his dog, Grip, always by his side, has been a familiar figure on the streets of this city.

Born in Concord, New Hampshire, he lived there until he reached manhood and with the call to arms he promptly enlisted with the Union army and fought with General U. S. Grant for four years. He was wounded at the battle of Vicksburg, and Colonel Humphrey, his commanding officer, cited him for bravery and he was made a sergeant.

Besides his widow, Melissa Frasier, deceased is survived by two daughters, Mrs. J. H. Silva of this city and Mrs. Edward Thompson of Sacramento; one son, Sidney Frasier of Gridley, California; five (Continued on Page Six)

MISS LEAVITT IS NEW MEMBER NEWS BUSINESS FORCE

Miss Maybelle Leavitt, one of the best known and most popular young ladies of this city, has accepted a position in the advertising department of the Klamath News, and entered upon her new duties yesterday morning. Miss Leavitt will work with Mrs. Lynn Zimmerman, better known as "Zim," advertising manager, and they promise to make a team that will have no equal on the coast.

Miss Leavitt is an experienced newspaper woman, and has had experience in both the advertising and reportorial lines, and she brings to the News a fund of information that will be of unquestionable value.

Mexican Narcotic Sale Investigated By U. S. Officers In This Locality

Man Convicted in California Believed to Have Agents at Work in This District; Arrests Expected

Marihuana, a narcotic weed with an effect ranging from deep sleep to driving its devotees amuck, is being introduced among the Indians on the Klamath reservation, according to federal officers who are investigating.

The potent weed is used chiefly by the Mexicans and with a heavy influx of them into the country as railway section workers, it is believed that the marihuana has been introduced here by some of them.

A Mexican named Albert Sanchez was recently arrested by the federal men near Toppenish on the Yakima reservation. He had planted an acre of the weed, and had been reaping a rich harvest when discovered. Sanchez is alleged to have been convicted in Sacramento, Calif., by the California authorities of violation of the state anti-narcotic law. An effort is being made to trace an alleged agent of his who is now in Klamath county.

Most of the marihuana used by the Mexicans comes either from Mexico or from southern California, according to the officers. Usually it is planted secretly, along fences, or in isolated spots. Many Mexicans smoke or chew it.

Flag Day Exercises Largely Attended

Large Audience Greeted Rev. Petelle, Speaker of Evening, Who Delivers Forceful Talk.

Rev. M. L. Petelle, newly elected pastor of the First Christian church of Klamath Falls, spoke last night to a large audience in the Elks' Temple who gathered to attend the Flag Day exercises at 8 o'clock.

"Americanism" was the topic chosen by Rev. Petelle and he used his subject to excellent advantage in observance of Flag Day.

"In the observance of Flag Day we Americans must remember and respect the steps that made it possible for us to be citizens under the American flag. We must remember that men fought and died that the flag might be preserved and in this day it is our duty to our country and to our flag to stand by and uphold the ideals for which they stand," Rev. Petelle said.

Francis R. Olds, exalted ruler of the Klamath Falls Elks lodge, was chairman of the evening.

The impressive Flag Day service was aided in its solemnity by a number of musical numbers contributed by the First Christian church quartet and Yellie Pruitt, soloist, Larry Simpson's orchestra also furnished several numbers.

Although there was an excellent attendance last night, other activities scheduled for Monday evening had made the guests less in number than last year, according to a member of the lodge.

Klamath Growing As Permits Issue To Build Homes

Two first class houses and four other buildings will soon be under way, according to the June building permits, six of which were issued yesterday from the office of Lem L. Gaghagen, city clerk.

Burge W. Mason will build an $8,000 house on Ewauna street, Ewauna heights, according to the permit. R. E. Wattenburg is the contractor.

Miss Bernadine Hannon was given a permit to construct a $1700 house on Reclamation street.

Other permits included E. E. Magee, $250 garage on E. Main and $800 addition to house on Home street.

George Biehn, $1500 addition to house on Pine street.

Sarah A. Smith, $25 building on Canal street.

Canby Memorial Unveiled Midst Solemn Services

Captain O. C. Applegate, veteran of the Modoc War of 1873, and Oregon's state commander of Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Peter Sonchin, aide of Captain Jack, were the outstanding figures at the unveiling of the monument to General E. R. S. Canby. Rev. Thomas and other heroes who were killed at the peace commission massacre, at the scene of the tragedy, Sunday morning.

Captain Applegate, who served under General Canby at the time of the massacre, spoke to the hundreds gathered in the lava beds Sunday from Oregon and California.

In broken English and with a trembling voice, Peter Sonchin, in his own words, recounted the tragic affair when Canby and his followers were slaughtered by the warring Modocs.

Mrs. Catherine V. Gloster, member of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, a resident of Alturas, unveiled the monument which will dedicate forever the spot where the brave American soldiers fell. (Continued on Page Six)

THIS TROUT SAID TO BE DADDY OF THE WHOLE BUNCH

By far the prettiest fish that has been pulled out of Klamath waters this season is the rainbow trout, weighing 15 pounds, taken from Rocky Point, by Paul Dalton and Byron Hardenbrook Sunday morning.

The speckled beauty was on display Monday in the Palace meat market and caused much comment as to the fight Dalton and Hardenbrook must have had when they took the trout from the water.

According to Dalton, who got the first "bite" from the rainbow, he used an Art Leavitt guaranteed hook.

Klamath Youth Meets Death in Motor Accident on State Highway

Car Swerves Near Malin and Wilford Brookfield Suffers Injuries That Prove to be Fatal

Wilford "Happy" Brookfield, aged 26, one of the best known, and most popular young men of Klamath Falls, is dead, and Miss Juanita Howard and Miss Dorothy Jackson, George O. Solterback and Leslie Hinch are suffering painful injuries, as the result of an auto wreck at 1:20 o'clock Sunday morning at the curve on the Dalles-California highway, just as Malin is entered.

Brookfield, who was driving his Hudson coach, is reported to have been traveling at a speed of about 50 miles an hour, and he failed to make the sharp turn, the car swerving and leaving the left side of the road. It turned completely over three times. He was thrown clear of the car, sustaining a deep cut on the left side of the head. Death is supposed to have been instantaneous.

Misses Howard and Jackson received bruises about the body, but neither were seriously injured. Solterback, who is employed at Stone's grocery in this city, received severe cuts on the right hand, while Hinch, an employe of the California Oregon Power co., was badly bruised and shaken.

As soon as the occupants of the Brookfield car could gather themselves together, Miss Howard went to a telephone at Malin, and when she failed to get response she came to this city and notified Deputy Coroner Joyaux, who responded, and immediately removed the body of (Continued on Page Four)

Law Observance Must Begin With Teaching Child

"The only way we can get at the root of the evil in disguise of law observance is to reach the child, the growing boy and girl in their various activities. Teach them in school and in the splendid institutions of the Boy Scouts and Camp-fire groups," said A. W. Schapp, assistant district attorney of Klamath county, who spoke before the Business and Professional Women last night during their June banquet at Linkhaven.

Schapp chose as his subject, "Law Enforcement," and discussed the manners of combating with the law-breaker of such small cities as Klamath Falls.

"Is this only a flurry or is it (Continued on Page Four)

Trade Journalist Spending Time in Klamath County

E. O. Sawyer, Jr., of San Francisco, one of the most aggressive publishers on the Pacific coast, has been visiting in Klamath Falls for several days. He and his associates control a chain of leading trade journals, including the Western Baker, Western Plumber, Western Canner and Packer, and the Pacific Laundry Journal.

The system under which they operate gives them decided dominance in their field, and Mr. Sawyer has proved himself a thoroughly capable executive. His friends here are hoping that the lure of Klamath county will induce him to play hockey a little oftener.

Council Desirous Building Viaduct

Effort to Be Made to Get the Proposition Before Voters At Election June 29.

Every effort is to be made by the city council to get the proposition of a bond issue of $30,000 for either an under-head or overhead crossing at Main street over the Southern Pacific tracks before the people at the special election June 29, together with the $62,000 bond proposal for the Sixth street viaduct.

The amount of both propositions is to defray one-half the cost, the railroad paying the other half.

It was discovered that there was not sufficient time when the ordinance calling for the Main street improvement was brought before the council for its third and final reading last night. Notices must be posted for thirty days and fifteen days must elapse before the final passage and date of the election.

Charter in Conflict

Only fourteen days can be squeezed in between last night and the election. The charter and an ordinance covering bond election is in conflict, however, and the fact that the bonds are to be voted by the people were factors on which it was thought possible to get the bonds passed at this election.

City Attorney J. C. Carnahan last night drafted a telegram to the firm of Teal, Winfree, Johnson and McCulloch, asking their advice about the legality of the $30,000 issue. Dr. Soule said that Klamath Falls residents would themselves buy the bonds to further the Main street improvement.

"I will not be heartbroken if we (Continued on Page Six.)

School Teachers Start on Journey of Long Duration

With a white pelican, emblazoned on the back of their Ford sedan, four Klamath Falls school teachers set off bright and early Monday morning for a trip from Klamath Falls to New York and back. At the junction of the Klamath Falls-Ashland and Pacific highways, they were joined by four Medford teachers who, in a similar Ford as theirs go, are going to enjoy the same trip.

Those from Klamath Falls were Miss Anna Mae Johnston, Miss Freda Kjack, Miss Rena Gore and Miss Hazel Noble. According to friends it is Miss Kjack that is the real mechanic should any of the queer things that Fords often do, happen.

The Medford teachers included Miss Gertrude Parker, Miss Davis, Miss Margaret Scott and Miss Mabel Wahl.
