

STARKEY HAS NAIL HAMMER WALLOP READY

Will the Starkey "nail-hammer wallop" be wallop enough to administer the sleep dope to Dotsen? This is the question the dopers are debating on, and most of them are of the opinion that it will.

Starkey is confident that it will, and so are the admirers of the fast-mixing carpenter—if it ever finds a vulnerable spot on the Dotsen fighting machine.

Starkey has been following his training routine—a thing highly distasteful to all fighters—with a grimness of purpose that is self-explanatory. The local man is not over confident; he does not underestimate Dotsen and knows that he has a grueling contest before him. He is preparing for it with a thoroughness that promises a warm reception to the Portland fighter when they meet in the Scandia ball arena on June 22.

Both men have been working to harden themselves for the approaching fray by doing their prescribed workouts, and in addition going several rounds with their training partners every evening.

Onlookers thought they were going to be treated to a real fight last night when Starkey entered the ring with an unknown from Montana, who began rushing the local man with a savagery that left no doubt of his sincerity. The affair ended abruptly when the Kid put a hard right to the stranger's mid-section which left him gasping and weak. The visitor went another tame round with Starkey and then declared that he had enough. He turned out to be Bob Wilson, the former Johnny McCoy, who was a familiar sight in Pacific coast rings a few years ago.

Johnny said that he had retired from the ring and admitted that his condition was "pretty soft."

Manager Silverstein said last night that he had just about completed negotiations for a full card, and stated that he would have something new on the fight menu that would be a real treat to the fans, although he refused to reveal just what the treat would be.

"I won't be at liberty to announce it until I have made all the necessary arrangements," he said, "but I will make it public sometime this week."
