

Christ is Hailed as King by Multitude

Million Pilgrims of All Creeds Fall to Knees as Final Climax to Religious Pageant

MUNDELEIN, Ill., June 24.—(United News)—As a blazing sun dropped down over the rim of the western prairies the mightiest throng in the history of christendom hailed Christ as their king.

A million pilgrims from all parts of the world fell to their knees in the grounds of St. Mary's-of-the-Lake seminary, which had been drenched by a passing rain and hailstorm, while a million voices raised the hosannas of a million hearts. It was the final climax of the twenty-eighth international eucharistic congress, the crowning glory of the western world's greatest religious pageant.

As far as the eye could see the hills were a mosaic of pilgrims which seemed to ripple like the waters of a breeze-swept lake as the words of the papal legate brought them to their knees in waves of rising and falling colors.

Marched Five Miles
Five miles these prelates, priests and pilgrims had marched in procession of the blessed sacrament, singing their Latin hymns through rain and hail and with lightning and thunder flashing and rumbling above.

Now they had come back drenched and bedraggled and were standing before the altar of God. A celestial light gleamed behind their tear dimmed eyes. Their reflexions were a tribute to the body and blood of Christ under the appearance of unleavened bread which Cardinal Bonzano raised high above his head in its ostensorium of ruby

Kiwanians Given Lesson With Wire By C. F. Newsom

Kiwanians went to school for an hour yesterday at their weekly luncheon held at the White Pelican hotel, and took a long lesson in telegraphy. Their instructor was C. F. Newsom of San Francisco, division commercial manager of the Western Union, who explained the mechanism and workings of the automatic telegraphing machine.

The address of Newsom was highly instructive and interesting, and following the remarks a demonstration of the automatic typewriter that sends and receives messages, was given.

The Kiwanis club members were told of the needs of the Sixth street viaduct for Klamath Falls in a few brief words, and it was the consensus of opinion that the bond issue should carry at the special election to be held on next Tuesday.

McPherson Kidnaping Puzzle to All Officers

Officer Says Clothing of Woman Purchased Less Than Three Weeks Ago; Range Rider Says No Such House Described Exists Within 40 Miles

DOUGLAS, Ariz., June 24.—(United News)—Authorities investigating the alleged abduction of Aimee Semple McPherson admitted themselves puzzled tonight over information concerning clothing worn by the evangelist on her desert trip.

Deputy Sheriff Morris, in charge of the sheriff's office for this section of Cochise county, reported that the clothing worn by Mrs. McPherson when she was brought to Douglas was purchased less than three weeks ago on American soil.

Because the evangelist says she was kept drugged and in a dazed condition officers do not expect she will be able to clear up this mystery. When kidnapped Mrs. McPherson, according to her detailed story, still wore her wet bathing suit. This occurred at Ocean Park, Calif., May 18. Deputy Sheriff Morris asserts the clothing in which Mrs. McPherson was held captive was not purchased until about June 2.

Failed to Find Men
Captain of Detectives Herman Cline and Deputy District Attorney Joe Ryan of Los Angeles, accompanied by rurales and other American authorities, conducted a vain search into the arid wastes twenty miles beyond the Douglas border line late Thursday for the two men and a woman reported seen near the beginning of Mrs. McPherson's desert walk on the Mexican side near "Niggerhead" Mountain.

After an independent investigation of Mrs. McPherson's story of her abduction, Sheriff J. P. McDonald of Cochise county, returned to Bisbee Thursday afternoon.

He said he had been unable to find the shack in which the evangelist declared she had been held captive. He said also that he had failed to discover evidence that she had walked more than seven miles.

Woman's Story Doubted
"I doubt that Mrs. McPherson walked 15 miles in that desert country, as she claims," he said. (Continued on Page Five)

Youngsters Tell Of Setting Fires Just For Pleasure

The fire department responded three times yesterday to quell grass fires. The first two were on North Tenth street, and the third was on Sergeant avenue, and all three were in close proximity to homes.

Chief Keith Ambrose made an investigation in the time and ascertained that young boys had applied the matches that caused the blazes. Then he did a little more sleuthing and learned the names of the youngsters. Later he called on the parents of the boys and laid the matter down in forceful terms. The boys confessed and promised never to sin any more.

Woodsheds are handy in the vicinity of the city where the youngsters reside, and Chief Ambrose says he heard a lot of walling emanating from the backyards as he took his departure.

"Caution should be exercised," said Chief Ambrose last night. "The humidity is low and a little fire may rapidly develop into seriousness. Parents should warn their offspring of the grave danger to life and property that lurks from the setting of fires in a spirit of playfulness."

Wasn't Hi-Jacker After All; Boggs And Craft Scared

Nostree, Oak Boggs, truck driver of the Klamath Falls fire department, and Lee Craft, member of the city health department, were not speeding when they passed through Chiloquin last evening, but they were getting close to the danger line.

Boggs and Craft had reason to be excited. They had been fishing on Wood River and had caught the limit, and when they neared Chiloquin they spied a fellow on the corner with a 20-gallon hat that looked everything in the world like a desperado. They passed him thinking he was a hi-jacker, but close scrutiny developed it was none other than Louie Polin who was doing an advertising stunt for the big Fourth of July celebration to be held in that city.

Valuable Timber in Wake of Bad Fires

Blaze Has Been Raging in Vicinity Keno Since Last Tuesday; Other Fires Reported

At a late hour last night a hastily organized crew of fire-fighters numbering about 30 men, were rushed from here to the fire line near Keno where a big forest fire is reported out of control. A truck load of men left the city about midnight in response to another call for more volunteers by the Klamath Forest Protective association. Wind that sprang up at nightfall had fanned the flames until control was out of the question. If it continues until morning the fire may eat its way into the heavy timber south and west of Keno.

Hundreds of acres of virgin timberland in Klamath county are being threatened by forest fires which broke out near Keno Tuesday and have been burning unchecked despite the efforts of over 50 fire-fighters to curb the advance of the flames.

Men from the Klamath Forest Protective association have been battling with a fire in Bear valley which is reported to be burning in the direction of heavily timbered areas of south Klamath county. No timber has yet been destroyed, according to word received here last night, and it is hoped that with the coolness of the night (Continued on Page Five)

Baby Eagle Will Spread Wings on Sunday Afternoon

At the special meeting Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock of Klamath Falls Aerie No. 2090, Fraternal Order of Eagles, when a large class of candidates will be initiated, to be followed by the installation of officers recently elected, the Yreka, California Aerie of Eagles will send a large delegation to this city to take charge of the ritualistic work and confer the second degree upon the candidates. The Yreka delegation will be in charge of the installation exercises.

Three teams of ten men each, under Captains Thomas Sheehan, Roy Rowe and Percy Twombly, have been busy enrolling the candidates for some time and a fair number of applicants have responded.

In securing the class a contest is being staged between the three captains, and the two losing teams will be required to pay for supper for all members of the three teams at some future date.

At the Sunday session the regular entertainment committee of the local Aerie will provide refreshments and lunch for the visitors. All visiting Eagles are invited to attend the meeting.

The Klamath Falls Aerie of Eagles was instituted on April 25, and has a membership at the present time of 180. The charter is still open to all who wish to join, but will soon close. Anyone wishing to become a member of the organization is advised that there is yet time to join the baby class that will spread their wings on Sunday afternoon.

WATCH FOR GRASS FIRES IS WARNING OF CHIEF AMBROSE

Fire Chief Keith Ambrose has appealed to the parents of children requesting that they caution the little ones against causing grass fires. Owing to the low humidity fires spread rapidly, and it is believed if the children are informed regarding the seriousness of the matter that they will never think of causing a conflagration. Caution should be the watchword during this dry spell.

Western Farm Relief Scorned by Congress

Efforts to Pass Measure That Would Assist in Marketing Surpluses, Failed to Secure Support of Southern Democrats; Another Attempt Will be Made for Relief

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(United News)—Congress has turned down western farm demands for drastic relief legislation, an act that may have far reaching political consequences for the administration.

By a margin of six votes, 45 to 39, the senate Thursday defeated the Haugen farm relief plan, designed to aid in marketing surpluses, assisted by funds from the treasury. The house rejected the bill some time ago. It was opposed vigorously by the administration forces.

Great Demand For Wildcats at Last Found in Klamath

A Ready Market Evidently Exists for Bobcats if Caught Young Enough to be Tamed. One Experience

"For heaven's sake discontinue that want ad of mine that is appearing in The News," called Austin Essendorf, salesman for the Klamath Valley Motor company, over the phone yesterday morning.

"Great guns," continued the irate salesman. "I am dead tired of answering the phone. Never realized that so many people wanted to invest their surplus wealth in wildcats."

"Looks to me like wildcatting would be a pretty prosperous game after all, providing the demand for these animals would be steady. Fifty dollars for a tame bobcat—wildcat—is not so bad. I had two of them and could have sold 15 of them instead of two if I had only had a wildcat ranch."

Are Very Playful
The bobcats that were in the possession of Essendorf were captured about six weeks ago. They are extremely playful and will crawl all over a person, and at this writing are perfectly harmless, but those familiar with their traits say that as they grow older they will gradually begin to exhibit signs of viciousness until it will become necessary to keep them in captivity.

But we are ahead of our story. What we wanted to imply, or as (Continued on Page Four)

Cattlemen Will Discuss Problems Of Much Interest

Cattlemen from all sections of Southern Oregon and Northern California will be in Klamath Falls, June 30, when the California Cattlemen's association and the cattle growers of this part of the state will hold a business session at chamber of commerce headquarters.

All cattlemen of Klamath and adjacent counties and those interested in cattle raising, are urged to attend this meeting, as representatives of the California Cattlemen's association will be present and explain the cooperative marketing plan.

Plans will be discussed at the meeting relative to the coming fall marketing season, with a view to preparing a workable program for this territory. There will be considered the formation of a marketing committee, composed of representatives from each section of this territory to assist in every manner possible in the sale and movement of cattle during the coming season.

GET JOB IS SLOGAN OF JUDGE TO IDLE

Bert Davis, colored, and John Burnett, who have long puzzled local officers as to their exact source of revenue, must go to work. The two men were picked up yesterday by police and haled before Justice R. A. Emmitt on a charge of vagrancy. Both were found guilty and assessed a fine of $20 and costs, which they were unable to pay.

Not caring to throw an additional burden upon the county, Judge Emmitt released the men on their own recognizance with instruction to get a job. They also were ordered to report to the justice court on July 10 and pay their fines.

Millions Gallons of Beer Are Sold

General Andrews Says He Can Dry Up Nation in Six Months With Assistance

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(United News)—Although the government is spending $28,000,000 a year on prohibition the amount of high power beer going into the illicit market probably runs into the hundred millions of gallons annually, according to General Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury, in charge of federal enforcement.

He revealed, in recent testimony before the house appropriations committee, which was made public Thursday, the degree of illicit activity and corruption, that caused astonishment even in the face of disclosures during the recent senate prohibition investigation, but insisted that with proper authority he would make enforcement almost complete in six months.

Comparison of this annual cost of $28,000,000 with the $25,000,000 which Wayne B. Wheeler says was spent to get prohibition, leads some wets to feel that it is not the first cost of prohibition, but the upkeep that demands attention.

Ask More Money
Andrews went before the house committee for $2,600,000 additional funds, and committee members questioned him regarding enforcement conditions. He told them that at least 30,000,000 gallons of illicit whisky are being made out of diverted industrial alcohol every year, that beer is being shipped in (Continued on Page Four)

Klamath Became Coatless Town With Warm Wave

Klamath Falls went coatless and perspired and grumbled yesterday when the thermometer again broke the high record for the year when a sizzling sun at 11 o'clock started it hiking to a maximum register of 97 degrees, the highest point recorded during the day.

The temperature yesterday exceeded Wednesday's maximum by one degree, and now sweltering citizens are beginning to lay wagers with themselves as to what today's mark will be.

Underwood's pharmacy weather indicator points to no immediate relief from the oppressive heat and it is probable that the sultry weather may continue for the remainder of the week.

With the humidity 22 degrees below the danger mark and the forests dry as timber from continued hot weather, concern is felt for timberlands which are now menaced by forest fires south of Klamath Falls.
