President Ready To Approve Bill Of Sen. Stanfield

W. A. West, deputy district attorney, who recently went to Washington, D. C., along with other representatives of the eighteen Oregon counties interested in the O. and C. land grant tax refund bill, early last evening received the following Washington telegram from Senator Robert N. Stanfield, which would tend to show that President Coolidge will sign the Stanfield bill:

"Have received the following message signed Calvin Coolidge: 'The Executive Office, Paul Smith's, N. Y., July 9, 1926. Hon. Robert N. Stanfield, Washington, D. C. The principle of the Oregon Land bill is that the government is required to advance money to the counties before it receives it and without interest. Taxes also continue at the same rate timber is sold. If government keeps the land, money paid without any appropriation by the congress, which is almost unheard of.' If bill is approved will you and your associates help at next session to revise it in these directions? I want to thank you for the support you gave me in the closing days of the session. I hope I can reciprocate some time. Calvin Coolidge."

"And I have made the following reply: 'The President of the United States, Summer White House, Paul Smith's, New York. The Oregon delegation have wired you that we will co-operate with you to amend the Oregon Land Bill to conform with your desires. In approving this bill you will have rendered the greatest service ever given to the State of Oregon. One half of the counties of Oregon and about that proportion of population are in dire distress because of failure of sale of land grant lands and timber to give them a return equal to tax loss. By amending proposed law so as to reimburse federal government with interest on money advanced there can be no loss to the federal treasury. It has been a great pleasure to me to support you and your administration which has given to the United States its greatest era of prosperity. With esteem and kind regards, Robert N. Stanfield, U. S. S.'"
