

Dry Officers in Fight Meet With Most Worthy Foe

Pat Hogue, arrested last night by prohibition officers on a charge of "liquor in possession," was taken to the city calaboose only after a warm round of fistcuffs.

Hogue, found on Oregon avenue with the alleged contraband beverage of jected strenuously to the arrest and during the ensuing struggle one gallon of the alleged evidence is reported to have been kicked over and lost.

Hogue is said to have injected several punches in the direction of Officers Swindler and Morgan.

Experimentation Tobacco Growing Proving Success

In the lobby of the Seward hotel hangs a bunch of cured tobacco leaves which have been attracting considerable attention the past week, not because they are tobacco leaves, but because they were grown on a plot of ground near Hubbard, Ore., says the Oregonian. There an elderly man of German extraction has developed a tobacco field on a small tract which those who have seen it predict will be the genesis of a new industry for the Willamette valley. For several years past Edward Becker has been developing his small patch, until now he is credited with some remarkable plants. From the plants cured last year he has begun the manufacture of cigars. Upon learning of the remarkable work Becker has been doing many persons have scoffed at the idea of raising good tobacco in Oregon, according to W. C. Culbertson, proprietor of the Seward hotel. Mr. Culbertson found after some investigation that Wisconsin ranks as one of the leading tobacco-producing states, and, fortified with this information, has been preaching the gospel of a tobacco-growing industry for the Willamette valley. Dr. P. O. Riley, editor of the Hubbard Enterprise, who was at the hotel yesterday afternoon, says that he has visited Becker's field and found the plants standing already six to seven feet in height. Mr. Riley reported that 17 carloads of Evergreen blackberries had been shipped the past week to eastern points from Hubbard.

Dairy Cattle of Klamath County Far Above Par

A new proof of the agricultural supremacy of Klamath county was set up yesterday when records on the completed tests for tuberculosis among dairy cattle of the county, showed only 15 diseased cows out of 2293 tested, or less than one-half of one per cent.

The final results of several weeks' work on the part of W. Wary Lawrence, assistant agricultural agent, and Dr. E. H. Thompson of the U. S. Bureau of Agriculture, was announced yesterday. Following a day of clean-up work in the lower end of the county, this season's tests will be completed tonight, and Dr. Thompson will then leave for Lakeview to continue his testing activities.

"Generally speaking, the region showing most re-actors is in the vicinity of Klamath Falls," Dr. Thompson stated, "but this is to be expected as the territory immediately surrounding cities is always worse than the rural district." This is due to the fact that the larger dairies, which have a larger yearly turn-over of cows, are near the cities, he explained.

"But the record here is exceptionally good," Thompson declared, stating that Klamath county is cleaner than Lane county, which has long been considered outstanding among counties of the state in point of tubercular clarity.

Both Thompson and Lawrence agreed that this is the proper time for this county to become accredited under state regulations. Such action would greatly benefit the hog raisers, as well as dairymen. Thompson pointed out, as hogs shipped from an accredited county bring ten cents more per hundredweight when shipped in carload lots, than do those from counties not accredited for tuberculosis. This results from the fact that a great deal of milk is fed to hogs, and if the cows are diseased, hogs contract the tuberculosis very readily.

Three counties in this state are accredited at present—Tillamook, Clatsop and Josephine.

Hubby Too Fast, Wife Quits and Sues For Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 11.—(United News)—Louise Fazenda's husband was too fast for the well known screen comedian the night he left her never to return.

"He had a faster car than mine and I couldn't follow him," she told Superior Judge Gates today in asking a divorce from Noel M. Smith, film director.

The suit was brought under the film actress' maiden name, Louise M. Smith. She told the court she was married in Santa Ana, Cal., in 1917, and charged that her husband deserted her August 14, 1922.

"He had a habit of leaving for many nights at a time," Miss Fazenda said. "One night he left and never came back."

"Where did he go?" Judge Gates asked.

"His car was a fast one and mine couldn't keep up with it," was the answer.

The divorce was granted. The plaintiff did not ask for alimony, as she stated she had been supporting herself for some time.

CALM MEANS BIG BUSINESS, SAYS JUSTICE

"There's always a calm before a storm," so lookout," said Justice H. A. Emmitt, who has been without the customary rush of business in the justice court for the past week.

There were no cases filed in Emmitt's court yesterday, and even the prohibition officers have failed to make arrests and bring their victims before the justice of the peace.

America Aids in Revival of Persia

Built on the dust of centuries of decadence, the new Persia is rising as an Occidental rather than an Oriental nation. And America is largely responsible. Reza Khan, Shah of reawakened Persia (left, above), is a firm believer in American methods, particularly as applied to national finance. Persia therefore is financed on the American plan. Too, its internal economy, military and otherwise, is conducted with the United States as the model. As his Administrator General of Finance he has Dr. Arthur C. Millsprugh (right, above). The U. S. Embassy at Teheran, Persia, shown herewith, is an important and integral part of Modern Persia's national life.

WILLARD HOTEL IS GOING UP RAPIDLY

Work on the second story forms for the reinforced concrete structural framework on the new Willard hotel, was begun yesterday, and probably by the first of next week the concrete on this phase of the construction, will be poured, according to statements from officials.

Aside from the framework, which will be of concrete throughout, the new six-story hotel designed by H. R. Perrin and being built by W. L. Miller company, will be of supertile, a Klamath Falls product.

Oregon Day Will Be Observed at "Trail-to-Rail"

EUGENE, Aug. 11.—(United News)—Clyde B. Atchison, of the interstate commerce commission, will be the principal speaker at the Oregon day exercises on the university campus during the Trail to Rail celebration. It was announced Tuesday by E. O. Immel, chairman of the program committee.

August 20 will be Oregon day, while the first day will be pioneer day.

Word has been received from Governor Pierce that he will be present and speak. The program will honor Henry Villard, pioneer railroad builder of the west, who donated the funds for Villard hall at the university. Ezra Meeker will be an honored guest. Word was received from the 91-year-old pioneer from Pocatello that he was coming to Portland by automobile and would be in Eugene for the celebration.

OH, SHOOTER, DID YOU MISS THE QUAIL?

A flock of about 25 quail, feeding on lawns and in back yards of homes in the vicinity of the high school, attracted a great deal of attention from housewives and children yesterday morning. The birds were quite tame, seemingly, and were quite as much at home on city lawns as robins or the ever-present sparrow.

They were first noticed feeding in the vacant lots near the high school building, and later, scolding small boys with rock-throwing ability, invaded private yards and gardens.

ELKS PLAN ON BIG GATHERING TONIGHT

The regular August meeting of the Klamath Falls Lodge of Elks No. 1247 will be held tonight in the Elks Temple at 8:00 o'clock.

This will be the only meeting this month as the lodge is on summer vacation and there will be but one meeting in September. The first of October however, the "Hills" begin meeting every Thursday. It is the custom to vacation three months in the summer.

The Elks Temple has been completely renovated inside and out, and the painters are practically through. Tonight's meeting will be the first since the big building has been painted and repaired.

Exalted Ruler Francis R. Olds stated yesterday that there were a number of applications to receive attention, as well as other business pertaining to Elksdom.

Past Exalted Ruler, Perry O. De Lap, who was elected vice president of the Oregon State Elks association, will speak tonight on the accomplishment and aims for the year of the state organization of Elks.

ELKS MEETING TO BE HELD TONIGHT

The only meeting of the month of August will be called by the Klamath Falls Elks lodge tonight in the Elks temple, according to announcement made last night. This will also be the first meeting since the painters and carpenters have completed the entire renovation of the interior.

Francis R. Olds, exalted ruler, stated last night that a number of applications would receive attention at the meeting.

After six weeks in the eye, ear, nose and throat clinics of the east, Dr. Gass wishes to announce that he is again in his office at 434 Main St.

Hog Raiser May Be Certain That He Is Eligible

City dwellers, encouraged no doubt by the successes of country cousins, are apparently getting the Klamath stock raising urge. A resident of Klamath Falls, identity unknown, yesterday inquired at the police station as to the possibilities of establishing a small hog pen in his backyard for the purpose of producing the winter's pork supply.

The officer at the desk was unable to advise the potential pork magnate as to whether or not city rules and regulations forbid such pursuits within the city limits, but it was later discovered that town folks may keep a few shoats provided no complaint is made by the neighbors.

SAYS OREGON ROADS BEST IN UNIVERSE

"Oregon has better roads than any other state in the country," stated Dr. L. D. Gass, Klamath Falls physician, who returned last night from a two months' visit in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Yellowstone National Park and other places of interest.

While in the East Dr. Gass visited the Dr. Arnold Knapp clinic at the Knapp Memorial hospital and had the occasion to visit other famous institutions and hospitals during his absence.

Dr. Gass' trip was made more interesting by the fact that he purchased a new car in Detroit, and motored from Michigan to Klamath Falls. He spent ten days in Yellowstone touring the park from one end to the other.

"It's good to be back in Klamath Falls," Dr. Gass stated last night, after he had set foot on Klamath soil but ten minutes. "The East looks prosperous, but give me the West and Klamath county any time."
