

Stroudsburg Home Fight Thousand Real Fight Fans

Citizens So Interested in Tunney That They Believe Champion May be Developed There Some Day

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Sept. 15.—(United News)—A decade or so from now there ought to be a heavyweight champion from Stroudsburg. That prediction will assume the aspects of certainty if Gene Tunney beats Jack Dempsey.

Not big enough to become a fight town, Stroudsburg has become a town of 5000 or 6000 fight fans. Never was an atmosphere more favorable for the breeding of fighters.

Stroudsburgers take fight with such untiring enthusiasm that when the average citizen is asked what Stroudsburg talked about before Tunney came, he can't remember. Uppercuts, jabs and right crosses have become topics of the parlor as well as street corner conversation.

Much of the local time is now devoted to confuting the suggestions of the experts that Tunney is likely to lose. One correspondent lost a date with one of the girls in the hotel office for no more than venturing such a suggestion.

Work out day at the Tunney camp is circus day for men, women and boys. The boys, naturally are a bit more goofy over the presence of the challenger than any one else. In other years at this season footballs were being kicked in every other backyard, but now there is a persistent demand on parents for boxing gloves.

Old Golf Master To Tackle Latter Day Fast Player

SHORT HILLS, N. J., Sept. 15.—(United News)—The luck of golf has brought together an old master and a new, and Chick Evans, who was winning national amateur and open championships more than a decade ago, and who came out of the West this year, gunning for Bobby Jones, will meet the present title holder in the quarter finals Thursday.

The veteran Chicago star admits with his familiar cheerful grin that his game is on the wane, but his consummate ambition was to meet Bobby at match play in the present championship.

Tex Rickard Reaps Reward of Genius As Big Promoter

Staging of Dempsey-Tunney Bout Was Fought With Obstacles and All Were Overcome by Master Mind

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 14.—United News—Tex Rickard is reaping the reward of his genius as an organizer as well as a promoter.

If Rickard had not maintained the most efficient organization ever associated with the business of boxing, there would be no heavyweight championship bout this month.

It is axiomatic in fistic circles that a contest for the world's heavyweight title requires three months of intensive preparation. The vacillation of the New York state athletic commission and its kid brother, the license committee, left Tex just one month to get ready for the Dempsey-Tunney bout.

Under some circumstances, the contest could not have been held September 23, probably not at all in an open air arena this year. Bu. Rickard had his men.

In charge of publicity and the press is "Ike" Dorgan, genial zealous of balldom, to whom is left such distressing detail work as advising the editor of the Smith City, Mont., Star-Eagle that his request for six working press tickets unfortunately cannot be granted.

Dorgan judiciously allots the ringside working press seats to boxing writers, and sees that every one of the 1,000 sporting editors who apply are as little dissatisfied as is reasonably possible. "Ike" also maintains headquarters in Philadelphia and New York, has publicity men working at the training camps, and commutes around keeping the pot boiling—so that no one can overlook the fact that there is a heavyweight championship battle in the offing. His familiarity with this difficult and most necessary part of the proceedings relieves Rickard of any anxiety on that score.

Then there is Jess McMahon, the match-maker of Madison Square Garden, who will have a hand in arranging the preliminary bouts on the big fight card, even though such work ostensibly is carried on in the name of some licensed Pennsylvania matchmaker. Jess knows the qualifications of fighters and the wiles of managers better than anyone else in the boxing game.

When it comes to a question of construction of temporary seats such as will cover the infield of the big Sesqui-Centennial stadium, Rickard has Dick Dunn, an expert in the business. Dunn can figure more ways to get paying customers as close as possible to the ringside than Rickard himself, so Tex has a big load off his mind in relying upon Dick for these details.

One matter which Tex attends to himself is the allotting of seats to those who must be "taken care of." It is truly distressing to contemplate the number of persons included in this nebulous category. There are politicians, large and small, and any number of others who are entitled to favors from the promoter. Probably Rickard has to give away more than $50,000 worth of seats in this way alone. Tex also superintends the allotting of tickets to customers who apply by mail, and is never very far from the box office as the day of the fight approaches.

before patent issues, by filing a corroborated affidavit in this office, alleging facts which would defeat the entry.

Reds Continuing Dizzy Pace and Grasping Pennant

Continuing the dizzy pace at the head of the National league, the Reds swept the five game series with the Robins by winning the final one, Wednesday, 7 to 2. At the same time the Cards began pursuit of their last lead, trimming the Phillies 9 to 2, but the Pirates lost to the Giants 6 to 5.

In the American league the Yanks laughed at the "crucial series" with the Indians, taking the first game, 6 to 4, thanks to Coombs vicious hitting. The second game was postponed because of rain, but it appeared that Cleveland's latest pennant aspirations had been washed out by the rain of Yankee hits.

Eppa Rixey made short work of the Brooklyn batters, allowing them seven scattered hits while his team mates were putting runs over the plate in almost every other inning.

Haines, one of the star Cardinal writers, was doing equally well in Philadelphia, however, and the Hornsby crew kept within striking distance of Cincinnati. But ancient Joe Bush could not stem the editor of the Smith City, Mont., Star-Eagle that his request for six working press tickets unfortunately cannot be granted.

The rejuvenated Braves, apparently bent on duplicating last year's performance when they rushed into fifth place in a late season spurt, took two games from the Cubs, 1 to 0 and 3 to 1.

Playing out the junior circuit schedule, Washington and Detroit broke even in a double header, the Tigers winning the first 2 to 1, but dropping the second 9 to 5. The White Sox won from the Red Sox, 5 to 1, Thomas allowing the losers only four hits.

The Yankee victory, a result of excellent real life pitching by Bob Shawkey and hard hitting by Coombs.
