Reduced round trip excursion fares from all points on its lines, including Klamath Falls, to Portland, will be put into effect by the Southern Pacific Railway company for the Pacific International Livestock exposition to be held there Oct. 30 to Nov. 6.

In making this announcement yesterday, J. J. Miller, district freight and passenger agent for the company here, stated that livestock breeders from all parts of the west are expected to take part in the show which is hailed as the livestock classic of the Pacific coast.

Numerous inquiries from livestock growers of this county indicate that many from here will attend the exposition, Miller stated.

Chiloquin Grows Fast as Building Contracts Given

W. J. Steinmetz, local builder and contractor, is contemplating the construction of a one-story brick building on his property on Chiloquin's main street, according to advices received from there yesterday.

The new structure will house a pool hall and barber shops in keeping with the old buildings which were burned in the fire two weeks ago. It is understood the estimated cost of the brick building will be in the neighborhood of $10,000 and will have one of the most advantageous sites of any building in the busy little reservation city.

Steinmetz' property is located between the land owned by George Bell and Tom Stergios.

Keno Stages Big Meeting For All County Nominees

An evening of royal entertainment and a general good time is the report which local candidates brought back from Keno last night, following a meeting of candidates and Keno community residents in the school house there yesterday morning.

All county candidates except Kirkpatrick, republican nominee for county assessor, were reported to be present, and each addressed the Keno residents briefly.

The feature of the evening's entertainment was given by Keno school children under the direction of the teachers, when they sang three songs to the same tune. Had they had a piano, the children advised the audience, they might have learned extra tunes for their verses.

The supper which followed the evening's festivities was extremely good, it was stated, and the proceeds are to get to a fund for a piano for the school.

"I have always wanted to become a member of this civic organization," he stated, "and if you will not let me join, then I'll join anyway. ### Darnell to Build Brick Building in Town of Chiloquin

An up-to-the-minute brick building, fireproof and coming up to the building restrictions laid down by the city council of Chiloquin more than two months ago, will soon be under way in the newly incorporated city by Charles Darnell of Sugarman & Darrell, merchants.

The building will rise on the site where the old Darnell building stood before the fire that a fortnight ago destroyed the frame structure.

Darnell's property has a 25-foot frontage, 110 feet deep. The building will be built for speculation purposes because Darnell, like the majority of Chiloquin residents, believes in the future of the reservation community, to the full.
