

No Playing With Law Says Elliott In Popovich Case

A drama of hate and brotherly love has been enacted before the disapproving eyes of District Attorney E. L. Elliott, and the head of that department of law has issued an ultimatum to men who swear out complaints, sign warrants, and then kiss the other cheek and call it square.

This is what happened in the case of Leo Popovich and Frank Bechill, with Bechill as the complaining witness and benefactor.

It came out after little grilling by deputy sheriffs when Popovich admitted slashing the four balloon tires and the spare, on Bechill's car which was making a "business" trip to Klamath Falls from Bieber.

While bondsmen were busy signing Popovich's bond, the alleged tire-cutter walked out of the sheriff's office and was not seen by man nor his attorney until the next morning. In the meantime one of the bondsmen failed to qualify, and it was all up with Popovich's freedom.

In the interim of arrest and the return of Popovich, he visited Frank Bechill and for old-times sake they agreed to patch up the quarrel, though they couldn't patch up the tires, and Popovich agreed to give Bechill $250 for his night's fun, providing the complaint was dismissed.

But if Popovich and Bechill think they can play horse with the district attorney's office and arouse the anger of the law and the state, they have another guess coming, remarked Elliott.

"Bechill filed that information in court and if he doesn't appear and verify it, I will prosecute him for perjury and he will meet with more trouble than he anticipated," stated Elliott last night.

Bechill is now in California feeling secure about the whole business but the Oregon law is waxing strong. No time has been set for Popovich's trial although he has pleaded not guilty before Justice R. A. Emmitt on the charge of "wanton destruction of automobile accessories."

Chiloquin-Modoc Road Is Classed Market Highway

The Chiloquin-Modoc Mill road, that stretch of highway a mile and a quarter in length which runs between Chiloquin and Pine Ridge, was designated as a market road by State Market Road Engineer J. H. Scott of Salem.

Bids on the road, which will be surfaced this winter, have been opened by the county court, although no awards have been made. The contract will be awarded, however, upon the approval of the state highway commission, following the creation of the market road.

That section of the county, although one of the shortest stretches, is under heavy travel conditions and there is a constant caravan of cars and trucks between Chiloquin and Pine Ridge.

According to the county engineer's office yesterday, the market road in time will be extended to Kirk.

Mills Is Charged With Assault With Intent to Murder

Charged with assault with intent to kill, E. A. Mills is held in the county jail in default of bond, as the result of a knife slashing fray at Malin early Sunday morning in which John Thomason was seriously injured and several bystanders wounded and battered.

According to Joe Swindler, deputy sheriff and prohibition officer, two men whose names are unknown, were fighting in front of the Malin dance hall. Thomason, of Malin, stepped in to halt the fight assisted by Deputy Constable Maupin. L. Chandler was also among the bystanders, too close to the fight.

The fight was progressing and all efforts of the peace-makers were in vain when a car suddenly drove into the midst of the battling throng and Mills jumped out. He held a knife and is said to have swung wildly when he dashed from the car.

His first attack, said Swindler, was against Chandler, but the knife failed to reach its mark. He then continued slashing toward Thomason and stabbed him twice, once in the forearm and again on the wrist. The third effort, which would have proved fatal had not Thomason averted his head, barely slit Thomason's shirt above the heart and drew but little blood.

Mills apparently vanished during the fracas but Swindler and Deputy Sheriff Stevenson continued a search of the dance hall and premises and arrested him an hour later.

Mills has retained D. E. Vandenberg as attorney and will have his preliminary hearing Saturday at 2 o'clock, October 30, before Justice of the Peace R. A. Emmitt.

Campbell-Towle To Build Private Dam on Sprague

Several thousand feet of logs belonging to the Campbell-Towle Lumber company at Sprague River, are high and dry on the banks of the Sprague stream, as the result of open gates in the Louis Pankey dam several miles below the Campbell-Towle mill.

This is according to a report received yesterday which stated that the lumber company plans to start work at once upon its own private dam in order to form a mill pond and raise the river sufficiently high to float the logs on down to the mill.

No reasons were stated for gates in the Pankey dam being lifted. While it will take several weeks to complete the new Campbell-Towle dam in the Sprague, there is no impending log shortage for the mill which is supplied both by water and rail.
