OREGON COLLEGE NAMED IN SURVEY

Musical training in colleges is 100 per cent more popular today than it was ten years ago.

Approximately one-half of all college student leaders, class presidents, and outstanding students play some sort of a musical instrument.

Band and orchestra work is now included in the curriculum of two-fifths of the American colleges and universities.

These are some of the high lights of a survey on college music just completed by the Conn Music Center, Elkhart, Indiana. Williamette university, at Salem, and Pacific college, at Newberg, are the two Oregon institutions of higher learning who contributed to the survey. Close to 200 colleges furnished the information upon which the results of this survey are based.

Music has become an indispensable part of college life in the opinion of presidents and heads of music departments in the institutions who answered the survey. It is not only of inestimable value to the college itself, but is also of great material and spiritual benefit to the student who takes an active part in it.

Great stress is laid by college heads on the benefits of musical training in character building, the survey reveals. Fully one-fifth of the college executives who contributed to the survey considered this the best argument for music in their college or university. Others mentioned the social and cultural advantage accruing to the music student, music as an aid toward developing clear thinking, music on the campus as an outlet for surplus energy and as a help in getting many youths through school. All but three of the colleges find their musically-trained students more efficient in their studies than those in not so trained.

"Honing one's way through college" compares very favorably with other methods of self-support through the college years, according to the college executives. Despite the comparatively limited opportunities offered in the average college town, fully one-fourth of the students playing in the college bands and orchestras are paying for their education with their instruments. Students' earnings range all the way from board and room, two dollars an hour tuition fee, and up to two thousand dollars a year. Twelve per cent of the college executives in the survey are of the opinion that playing one's way through school pays better than other means, another 12 per cent thought it offered an easier way to make one's way through, while a goodly number of others said that it interfered least with the students' school work, adding that this work also brings them in contact with worthwhile people who can help them get started.

Among those playing their way through college, the violin comes first in the preference of instruments. The saxophone is second choice of college players, but seventh with girl musicians. Piano is the second favorite instrument with the girls, and third with the boys. Cornet comes fourth in the preference of both the young men and women. Organ is next favorite with the boys, and flute with the girls. Other instruments in the order of favor with the young men are the trumpet, the trombone, the horn, drum, banjo and mandolin. With the girls, it is the drum, clarinet, trombone, harp, banjo, trumpet, organ and mandolin.

"THANKSGIVING"

This day of days we consecrate
And on the Lord God meditate
Till voices rise in thankful lays
For care that hedges all our ways;
For love we know that's ever near;
For mercies daily that appear;
For blessings that are daily spread
Around our path and o'er our head;
For grace and peace the heart's desire;
For hope that rises ever high'r;
For glories that upon us shine;
For all things temp'ral and divine.
