

Arnold to Keep Fund for Minor Indians

Payment of Funds for Youth of Reservation, to Parents, Will be Discontinued Under Plan

Following out a plan inaugurated four months ago during a per capita payment to Indians of the Klamath Indian reservation, Indian minors will have their funds deposited with L. D. Arnold, reservation superintendent, until they become of age. There are from 500 to 600 Indian boys and girls who will be effected by this ruling.

Leroy D. Arnold, superintendent of Klamath Indian reservation, returned from Washington D. C., early this week where he called, with other reservation heads, to confer with Charles Burke, commissioner of Indian affairs, to outline policies to be made national throughout government reservations.

"All minors' funds will not be paid out to parents as they have in the past, except by special authority," Arnold stated. "This is a continuation of a step taken at the last per capita payment and funds will only be used in case of health, education or relief from destitution."

"The balance of the money will be placed to their credit when the Indian children become of age, to be used in the purchase of homes and to assist in getting an industrial start," the reservation head stated.

With the quarterly payment to the Indians during the coming weeks, checks amounting to $312,500 will be received at Klamath Agency headquarters as well as distributed to Klamath Indians, several of whom are located in Oklahoma, and points on the Pacific coast.

Payment Soon
While at Washington, it was definitely announced that per capita payment, to be made some time next week, will be $250 according to Arnold.

"There are 1250 Indians on the rolls to receive this money," Arnold stated. "This differs from the last payment when checks ranged from $100 to $300 per capita. It is understood among Indian officials, that this money will assist the Indians in farming and it has been derived from the sale of tribal timber. Equal distribution is favored."

Aged Man Goes Mad and Kills 2 Persons

Insane Recluse Barricades Self in Cabin to Stage Wild Shooting Orgy Defying Capture

PETALUMA, Cal., April 20, (U.P.)—An aged recluse, his mind suddenly unhinged, engaged in a wild shooting orgy here today and killed two men before a police bullet snuffed out the murderer's life.

John Falla, 72 year old retired Portuguese rancher, barricaded himself in his home after slaying Mike Pheos, a cook, and R. L. Rasmussen, a deputy sheriff, who sought to arrest the crazed killer.

The house was besieged by officers until Falla, peering through a window, was shot down by Deputy Sheriff P. V. Fuller. After purchasing a rifle at a downtown hardware store early in the day, Falla ran into Petaluma's main business district and started shooting at random. Six persons escaped death by inches, as the bullets sprayed up and down the street.

Pheos, braving the gun fire, attempted to wrest Falla's weapon from him, but the madman poured three bullets into the cook's body, killing him instantly. Falla then ran for his home on the edge of the business district. A posse of 25 men was hastily organized and went in pursuit. An airplane was dispatched to San Francisco for tear gas bombs. Two machine guns were brought up and pumped a hail of lead into the Falls home.

Rasmussen was killed in the first advance on the house. The barricaded man was shooting as rapidly as possible from his windows. Finally Fuller, who was crouching behind a tree, saw Falla at a window. Taking careful aim, the officer shot Falla through the head. The man was dead when officers broke into the house.

Northern Lines Buy Terminal Property

Sale of Klamath Development Lots Believed Traced to Oregon Trunk Representatives

Following close upon the announcement Saturday that the Northern lines had accepted the Southern Pacific contract for common-user entrance into Klamath Falls, interest in the railroad situation was at high pitch here Wednesday when it was revealed that terminal or right-of-way properties had been purchased near Shippington by the incoming railroad.

Only partial confirmation of the report could be obtained here at a late hour Wednesday night from T. P. Henderson, resident manager for the Klamath Development company, from which the block of lots are said to have been purchased.

"The Klamath Development company recently sold approximately 25 or 30 lots in Buena Vista and Klamath Lake additions," Henderson stated, "but so far as I know they were purchased by an individual. I cannot say if the northern lines are behind the purchase."

Added strength, however, was given the report when it was learned by newspaper representatives that Bert Harrington, residing at Shippington, received an offer of $5,000 for his house and lot there by a northern lines representative.

Harrington, it is understood, was offered an alternative of accepting his price or having the property condemned for railroad uses.

Price paid for the lots purchased from the Klamath Development company could not be learned. The lots, located east, south and west of the Pelican Bay school house, are in one bunch and so situated as to give the Northern Lines, should they build a terminal at this point, an excellent opportunity to bid for lumber tonnage originating along Upper Klamath Lake.
