

School Board Asks Approval of Bonds

There is urgent need of enlargement at the Mills Addition school, and the directors of school district No. 1, in a statement issued Thursday, urged the voters of the district to give careful consideration to the proposal to issue $55,000 in bonds to take care of these needed additions.

The growth of the entire district is cited, and particularly the growth of the Mills Addition school, where conditions are now so crowded that many Mills Addition pupils are compelled to attend other schools of the city.

Class rooms are now provided in the basement of the Mills Addition school building, and this could be remedied if the voters will authorize this bond issue and permit the pupils to have proper housing facilities in Mills Addition.

Furs of Eskimo Girls are Finest

SEWARD, Alaska, May 26, (AP)—What woman who gets her style from Paris can boast of possessing in her fur chest baby reindeer pelts as soft as velvet, silver fox, seal, mink, ermine and wolverine? All of these enter into the making of Mladay Eskimo's winter clothing.

The Eskimo maiden labors with the same enthusiasm as her white sister in filling her hope chest. And each garment bears some mark expressive of her dreams, woven into the general scheme by deft fingers plying needle and fine thread. Not only must designs be of consistent preconceived scheme, but color blendings must create harmony in intermixture.

The little squares which adorn the flounce of her parka are cut from different colored pelts and the coat is made from many furs, alternating in color, yet harmonizing.

Polar bear and wolverine are the most popular for the hoods.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26, (U P)—California youngsters of less than 18 years must go to school, even if they are married.

Webb of California ruled that boys and girls of the state must continue their studies, regardless of whether or not they are married, until they have received a high school education or passed the age of 18.

ARCHEOLOGISTS FIND AN INDIAN MIRROR

HAZELTON, B. C., May 26, (U P)—A stone mirror, a relic of prehistoric Indian life on the North American continent, has been unearthed by archeologists in the ancient Gitksan Indian village site near here.

The specimen, a thin slab of black stone with a narrow end for a handle and the other end a flat, highly polished surface, was used by the Indians in painting their faces for dances and ceremonies. The stone, when polished and dampened, reflected the face so clearly that even the color of the eyes and individual hairs could be visible.

The specimen has been sent to the National Museum of Canada in Ottawa.

Blaze from Gasser Shoots 800 Feet

SANFORD, Texas, May 26, (AP)—Eighty million cubic feet of gas were aflame in the heart of this oil town following the explosion of a gas well, in which two were killed and at least seven injured. Four men are missing. The town was a scene of turmoil and confusion.

The gasser shot flames 200 feet high and was visible from an extensive area. The terrific roar of the burning gas rocked the entire countryside, adding to the confusion.

Workers with trucks and horses moved large frame buildings from the fire area which claimed the entire center of the business district. What little water was available was played on roofs of buildings which cannot be moved.

Women and children were huddled in structures on the outskirts of the town, where most of the population fled, while the men did their best to fight the fire.

MY KITCHEN NOTEBOOK by Mary Blake

The Art of Second-Day Serving

Why do women apologize for serving leftovers? I consider it rather an evidence of good management. Mashed potatoes, enveloped in a fluffy covering of equal quantities of Carnation Milk and heavy cream beaten together until stiff, into which is stirred grated cheese—and baked until the cheese is melted—makes a welcome change in the menu.

Cooking an extra quantity of peas, string beans or carrots for tomorrow's salad proves a great convenience. Rice can be served first as a cereal and later combined with cheese or made into croquettes.

To my way of thinking, however, there is nothing quite so delicious as the good old-fashioned rice pudding, cooked slowly for hours to bring out all the rich, creamy caramel flavor of the Carnation Milk in which it is baked. I'm giving the recipe for it, and I think you will agree that it is one of the most delightful recipes I've yet offered you.

The Smooth Richness of Carnation Dishes

It is indisputable that dishes made with Carnation Milk have a richness, a smooth creaminess, a fragile fineness of texture that even the best of bottled milk cannot equal. In the first place, Carnation is nothing but the finest of pure, fresh, whole milk, of uniformly high quality. In such immaculate condenseries as the one at Hillsboro, it is evaporated to double richness, so that every drop has a double helping of enriching cream. Then it is sterilized for safekeeping, making it absolutely dependable, no matter what the weather.

Carnation Milk has another vital quality. It is "homogenized"—the cream globules broken up into minute particles and distributed throughout every drop of milk, imparting to foods an unusual smoothness and fineness of texture.

Because of its double portion of cream, Carnation effects a big cooking economy, saving on butter or cream in nearly every dish in which it is used.

Use Carnation Milk for all your cooking. You'll find it in new convenience and economy. "My Hundred Favorite Recipes"—the Carnation Cook Book—will give you many cooking suggestions. It is free. Address Carnation Milk Products Co., 474 Gilman St., Portland.

Carnation Rice Pudding

2 cups Carnation Milk diluted with 2 cups water, grated rind of 1/2 lemon, 1/2 tsp. salt, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 1/2 cup rice. Combine washed rice with other ingredients; pour into buttered baking dish; place in pan of hot water; bake in 300° oven 3 hours, stirring several times during first hour to prevent settling.
