

National Guards To Hold Conclave

PORTLAND, Ore., June 13. (A. P.)—Days when the troops of the nation were being rushed to the old world to check sweeping armies will be recalled Tuesday night when the national guard of the state assembles here en route to the annual encampment at Camp Clatsop near the mouth of the Columbia river.

The troops, 3,000 strong, are scheduled to leave Portland Wednesday morning in eight special trains. The first train will get away at six o'clock and there will then be a departure every 15 minutes. Included in the troop movement will be units of the 162nd and 186th infantry regiments and attached units and the 249th coast artillery.

The infantry regiments and attached units will spend the two weeks of intensive training at Camp Clatsop and the coast artillery regiment will train at Fort Stevens. Units of the guard will begin assembling here from all sections of the state Tuesday night. Others will arrive Wednesday morning.

The entire movement will be in accordance with detailed orders issued by Brigadier General George A. White, commander of the state guard. Mr. White will be here to oversee the entraining of the units.

An advance detachment of 16 officers and 145 enlisted men will leave for Camp Clatsop early Monday morning under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Baker, assistant chief of staff of the 41st division. The advance detail will set up regimental headquarters, distribute supplies and baggage and prepare generally for the main body of troops.

PERPETUAL MOTION INVENTOR INDICTED

PORTLAND, June 13. (A. P.)—Homer D. Brown, inventor of a "perpetual motion" machine and head of a religious cult known as the Brotherhood of Divine Revelation, was indicted by the county grand jury on a charge of unlawfully offering corporate securities for sale.

Brown, officers say, organized the Brown-Estro Power & Manufacturing company and equipped a plant in the St. John's district to manufacture the "perpetual motion" machine, which, he said, had been revealed to him by the Scriptures. He organized the religious society and members of the cult were given stock in the power and manufacturing company in return for their membership fees. He said he consulted an attorney before carrying out his plan.

BEES SEND YOUTHS TO COLLEGE

Bees, the kind that make life miserable for some folks are responsible for the college careers of two Abilene, Kas., youths, Clayton L. and Milton Farrar. When their father decided to dispose of a bee stand that had multiplied too rapidly for him to keep, the boys persuaded him to give them the swarm and they were soon making sizable profits. Their college careers finished, Clayton is now instructor in Amberst college, teaching entomology and bee keeping and Milton teaches the same subjects in the State Agricultural college in Brookings, S.
