Salvation Army Drive to Start

Members of the Salvation Army advisory board met at the Veterans Memorial building campaign headquarters Tuesday afternoon in the interests of the $5,999 "Heart Fund" campaign commencing next Tuesday.

The plan of organization adopted is to go ahead in a systematic manner, following the "Heart Fund" send-off meeting next Tuesday, each civic organization participating with their respective assignment and in three days raise the sum required.

Thorough organization, declared members of the board, is what will put the drive over. "We are expecting sufficient workers from the civic organizations of Klamath Falls to thoroughly cover every part of the city—not requiring each team to work longer than three hours each," they said.

"Thursday is the reporting day for teams, and we are asking each organization to turn in the names of their helpers then."

The initial step taken in organization of plans was to choose 500 names of the city's ablest prospects to be called on by selected committees. The city's industries were also outlined and general solicitation plans completed for the entire city.

"Recent statements of the work accomplished by the Klamath Salvation Army are convincing, and we have no doubt that a spirit of 'I Will' is going to be predominant when Heart Fund salesmen call in Klamath citizens," said Dr. G. A. Massey, chairman.
