

Library Gets in Many New Books

The City Library has received a gift of six books from Mr. O. R. Moeller, owner of the Klamath Flower Shop, on the subject of gardening. These books have an added appreciation since they have come at a time when the citizens of Klamath Falls are interested in beautifying their homes and making the town attractive. The books are all inspiring and full of information.

They are "Culture of Perennials" by Cloud, "Design of Small Properties" by Bottumley, "Landscape Gardening" by Cridland, "Book of Landscape Gardening" by Waugh, "1921 Garden Questions Answered" by Hotten, and "Shrubs" by Rockwell.

Following is a list of other new books which have recently arrived: "Personal Record," Conrad; "Main Street and Wall Street," Ripley; "Royal Road to Romance," Halliburton; "Revolt of Asia," Close; "Why We Behave Like Human Beings," Dorsey; "Book of Marriage," Keyserling; "Christ of the Indian Road," Jones; "Old Goddess," Sedgwick; "Joanna Godden," Kaye-Smith; "Joanna Godden Marries," Kaye-Smith; "Social Life in the Insect World," Fabra; "Ariel," Maurols; "Education and the Good Life," Russell.

FORESTERS FEAR NEW FIRE SERIES

(Continued from Page One) The Klamath forests, are not in Klamath county but in northern California along the lower reaches of the Klamath river, McLean stated.

Fire Under Control. SAN FRANCISCO, July 30.—(AP)—Forest fires which were started by lightning and have spread during the last two days through the forest preserves from northern California to Crater Lake, Ore., was reported under control tonight, but still in a menacing stage unless they are extinguished by heavy rains. One fire, a 26-acre conflagration at Needle Rock, Ore., was causing the most trouble, forest reserve officials in Medford, announced.

The government has been asked for airplanes to fly over the burning areas and report the status of the various fires so that a serious situation may be averted. Volunteers in the Lassen, Shasta, Trinity and Klamath districts have been mustered to fight the blazes and rangers have sent out calls for individual fire fighters.

DELEGATES TO BIG CONCLAVE ARRIVE

(Continued from Page One) James J. Gorman. The greeting took place at Multnomah Falls. At Portland the visitors were met by a large group including Frank S. Grant, city attorney, representing Mayor Baker; Frank J. Loneragan, general chairman and chief of police Jenkins. During the afternoon several of the officers headed by Supreme Knight Flaherty paid their respects to the most Rev. Edward D. Howard, DD, archbishop of the arch diocese of Oregon City, and to the most Rev. Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, papal delegate to the United States, who is attending the Portland convention as a representative of the vatican.

Army Heart Fund Drive Prepared

The Salvation Army $5,000 Heart Fund campaign is moving forward with big strides. It was announced from campaign headquarters in the Veterans Memorial building. Several of the city's civic organizations have announced their committees to campaign headquarters, and many are working to get their captains and workers confirmed before Monday. "A full roster of workers will be available on Monday," according to Norman A. Borgen, campaign director. "Those who have reported to date, have shown a full quota of workers and a splendid spirit of 'I Will,'" he said. Salvation Army campaign leaders today expressed confidence that this year's fund would "go over with a bang." The goal sought is $5,000.

At the Pine Tree

Two beggars, seeking alms at a fashionable wedding in a Venetian cathedral, and exposed as the most feared pair of crooks in the city of canals, through a ruse, in which the bridegroom and the bride's father are robbed, and the dignified ceremony is converted into a bedlam! Such is the situation at beginning of Constance Talmadge's new comedy drama, "Venus of Venice," showing at the Pine Tree theatre for Sunday and Monday.

"Venus of Venice" presents Antonio Moreno in the leading male role of the artist, opposite Miss Talmadge. It is the first time Miss Talmadge and Moreno, who began their motion picture careers almost simultaneously at the old Vitagraph studio in New York, have appeared together on the screen. Monday night, the second Charleston contest will be presented. Many new faces—or feet—will be seen and from the outcome of the first, held on Friday night, an even larger ensemble of dancers are to be entered, so be sure to be there to boost your favorites—to win.

Seeks Leniency For Doomed Men

SALEM, July 30.—(AP)—Bradley Ewers, Portland attorney, today requested a conference with Governor Patterson with a view to getting the sentence of James Willos, convict, commuted from death on the gallows to life imprisonment. Willos played a part in the slaying of Milton Holman and John Sweeney, guards, during a break at the prison in August, 1925.

Mr. Ewers declared in a letter to the governor that Willos should not have been tried jointly with Ellsworth Kelley, also implicated. Errors were committed in the lower court, he said, which would have caused reversal of the decree had the errors been excepted to and presented with the record at the time the case was appealed to the supreme court.

Governor Patterson has indicated that he would not interfere in the sentence imposed by the court, despite the avalanche of letters arriving at his office seeking commutation of sentence on the two men.

FCRD'S BIRTHDAY WON'T STOP WORK

(Continued from Page One) what a good car should be in this day. He said he had been amused by many of the rumors about his new car, particularly those involving the price. "We did not build this new Ford to fit a price," he explained, "but we certainly are not quitting the low price field."

SQUABBLE NOT SO BAD IN TEMPLE

(Continued from Page One) misunderstanding can be attributed to misquoting of the principals in the case, and have every reason to believe that the organization will be re-established on a basis as firm, if not firmer, than that which preceded the present difficulties. It was presumed that the meeting had gone ahead later with Lester W. Roth, attorney representing Mrs. McPherson. Mrs. McPherson tonight denied any knowledge of a report that she had been publicly snubbed outside Angelus temple by her mother.

Earlier today Mrs. McPherson announced that the temple funds kept in several banks have been tied up by her mother.

Mayor Fighting Recall Movement

RAINIER, Ore., July 30.—(AP)—Stirred by the fight over the proposed recall of Mayor A. E. Veatch and two councilmen, residents of this city were discussing today the assertion of the editor-mayor that the movement against him was really directed against City Marshal T. W. Finley. G. O. Lement, merchant, expressing the general opinion among those favoring the recall said today "Finley's pernicious and unwarranted actions are hurting this town. It is not a wet and dry fight."

Finley today said he was "an absolutely dry man in every respect."

"I've done my best to enforce the law here in every case, and intend to do so as long as I'm here," said Finley. "I take them as they come and treat everyone alike. I will admit that there are some men here who bear the reputation of handling liquor we haven't got yet."

State Bank Head Will Resign Job

PORTLAND, July 30, (AP)—The Oregonian will say tomorrow that Frank C. Bramwell, state superintendent of banks, will submit his resignation of the state banking board during the coming week. The designation will take effect September 1, the paper says, adding that "Superintendent Bramwell has so advised his friends."

"It had been at first suggested by the advisors of the superintendent," the article says, "that the resignation be made effective October 1, but the date has been advanced a month. This period will give Bramwell time to check up on the various receivers throughout the state, and to place his house in order before stepping out and turning the department over to his successor."

Ben Olcott, former governor of Oregon, "is known to be considered" as Bramwell's successor, the Oregonian says, adding that "State Treasurer Kay favors, as does Governor Patterson."

The paper continues, that inasmuch as Sam Koser, secretary of state and third member of the banking board, was elevated to his position by Olcott when the latter was governor, Koser is expected not to oppose the appointment.
