Member Audit Bureau Circulation GAS FOR EVERYBODY

An experiment in Germany is being watched with keen interest not only by engineers, but by economists and labor leaders. Gas generated at coal mines of the Ruhr, and supplied at high pressure to homes as far distant as 450 miles, a single, colossal battery of gas reports for all Germany, local gas companies transformed into mere retailers of centrally produced gas—such is the startling undertaking on which a coal utilization company of Essen is about to embark.

This German project is the first rational plan for the generation of energy at the mine mouth and its distribution over distances as great as any thus far reached by electric transmission lines. Engineers have dismissed as impractical the scheme of generating electric power at the mine mouth for distribution over an area comprising several states. At least up to this time such schemes have encountered insuperable obstacles. But there are no such obstacles in way of long-distance distribution of gas.

There is nothing visionary in the Ruhr scheme. Gas-pipe lines several hundred miles long are already in existence. Two lines, each 300 miles long, already carry West Virginia gas into Ohio and Pennsylvania. Kansas City is soon to be connected with the Texas gas fields by a gas main 450 miles long and capable of delivering 100,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day. Though the public may be under the impression that electricity is taking the place of gas, consumption of gas in the United States has increased 375 per cent in the last two decades, and is expected to increase five-fold in the next twenty years.

Britain Hit By Terrific Winds

crashed to the street in the city, partially wrecking a building nearby. Occupants of a taxicab which it wrecked, escaped injury. Railways suffered, as did inland telegraph and telephone wires. Damage to land lines connecting it with radio stations caused interruption for a time of communications with India and Australia.

Many Injured: Hundreds have been treated for physical injuries. It is believed that property damage will amount to several millions of pounds sterling. Many cattle were drowned along the coast. The majority of the deaths were due to an 80 or 90-mile gale which blew over barns and small houses and toppled walls. Two were killed by being blown under the wheels of automobiles. One man was killed when he was blown off a motorcycle, and a girl bicyclist was blown to her death. Several were drowned in maritime accidents.

Town Is Flooded: The worst disaster of the storm was at Fleetwood, where the gale demolished the sea wall and half the town was inundated. Many caravan homes were overturned and five persons were drowned. Beds were provided in movie theatres in the higher part of the town.

At Lancaster the River Lune flooded and isolated 19 tuberculosis patients in a ward of a hospital. Three of them were drowned before boatsmen reached them.

Big Loss Traced To Poor Scales

questioned by the potato growers vary from 200 to 300 pounds on a load of spuds.

Lose Big Sums: One prominent rancher declared to officials that hundreds of dollars have been lost by the growers because the scales have not been properly adjusted. Blame for the alleged condition has not been placed by the irate growers, who are awaiting investigation before taking concerted action in the case.

Of the scales tested unofficially so far in the investigation, those that have been found maladjusted have in each case "short weighted" the farmer. It is alleged.

Refuse Help: Seeking immediate aid for the potato growers, the county agent's office yesterday telephoned the scale inspector, a Mr. Lawton of Medford, to obtain a recheck of the scales. That official, it is said, advised the agricultural office that he will not return to test the scales until he is scheduled to again come here.

"There are no funds left to provide for a second trip to Klamath Falls," he stated.

Meanwhile officials here are working out a solution to the problem and carrying on an exhaustive probe to ultimately place blame for the inaccurate weighing.

Chevrolet Boss Loses Sales Bet

Showing the stiff Klamath automobile salesmen are made of the force of the Locks Motor Company won a wager from their employer by selling 60 cars so far in October, thus doubling their quota. Eight of the cars were delivered yesterday, making a full and busy day for the whole establishment.

As a reward for their faithfulness Mr. Locks will give every person employed by him a $25 bonus and will act as host at a banquet and dance at the Pelican Cafe Tuesday night.

The Klamath organization stands at the top of the Chevrolet district for southern and eastern Oregon.

Health Books On Library Shelves

The following books have been placed on the shelves of the public library by the educational committee of the Klamath County Public Health association. The books have been chosen with care as to nature and interest: "Health Education Procedure," "Health Training in the Schools," "Food Versus Health," "Health of the Runabout Child," "Jimmie and the Safety Council," "Getting Ready To Be a Mother," "Wholesome Childhood."

Some of the health magazines which may be procured in the library are Hygiene, Children, and the American Journal of Public Health.

Why Have Over Two Hundred People Purchased Land From Us?

And Why did seventy-five people purchase Altamont Acres and Small Farms during October and November last year? Because the fall is the best time to judge land. Take a run out and look over what our tract owners are taking off their land. And another important matter is the condition of the roads during the wet season.

We claim that the part of Altamont Acres (second addition) and Altamont Small Farms (the old Crisler & Stiltz farm) that we are now offering is as high quality land as there is in this country, and when you stop to think that we are offering these acres at the price of a cheap city lot with all city conveniences—city water, electricity, telephone, daily mail, fine modern schools at both ends of the property, and roads that you can travel with ease every day of the year—we claim we are offering the greatest value obtainable in this locality.

Just outside the city and adjacent to that big industrial area owned by the big timber and lumber operators? Where is the man who has not said: "I wish I could be fortunate enough to locate in a section with a real future, where I could get in on the ground floor and get the big increase that always comes in a growing community? You are in that place right now. You will soon see that old expression: "If my foresight was only as good as my hindsight." Most of you have already used the expression a great many times.

Think over what we have said. Come in, let us explain our proposition and show you the plan whereby you can start a real home of your own and on terms that any one that pays rent can afford. Why pay rent when you can put your rent in the best savings bank in the world? A real piece of high class land, well located, in a real growing community.

Wonder why the big timber and mill owners, the Northern and Southern railroads, and other big interests are investing so many millions here? Think it over. Use your head for something besides a place to hang your hat. Go out and talk to Frank Sexton, county club leader, S. E. Emison, Chas. Sacker, Mr. Christensen, C. A. Handy, Cleo Wright, Mrs. Carr, Ted Richards, R. L. Alexander, Walter Sarber, Jack Bermoni and any of the other tract owners. They can speak from experience.

Call and see us or call us up and we will be pleased to take you out and show you our tracts.—adv.
