LOCAL FANS TO SEE FAST HOOP TEAM IN CITY

Ted Gillenwaters, Ex-Oregon Guard, Is Developing Five

With Ted Gillenwaters, veteran hoopster from the University of Oregon squad and now practicing law in this city, at the helm, Klamath Falls' basketball hopesthis season are declared exceedingly bright and a number of players are now turning out for practice three times weekly.

The team, sponsored by the American Legion but made up of court talent outside Legion mem-bership rolls, has its first tilt of the season Wednesday night at Legion hall when it meets a quintet from Modoc Peint for a practice game.

County league schedules are now being mapped out by Fred Brooke of relican City and league play is expected to get underway in the near future. Gillenwaters, who is coaching the local basketeers, stated last night.

That some fact basketball is to be seen here this winter, is evident from Gillenwaters' unnouncement that his squad wild play the frosh teams from both O. A. C. and Oregon university when the latter come south on a barnstorming tour. Gillenwaters, who was a stellar guard with Oregon for three years and who last season was assistant basketball coach at the managing the local team. Men now on the squad are
