

Terry Talent's Indictment Not To Prevent Work

PORTLAND, Dec. 12. (UP)—Indictment of Terry Talent on a state charge of involuntary manslaughter is no reason why he should not continue working as a federal prohibition agent, according to W. K. Newell, deputy district prohibition administrator.

Officers Declare Remus Not Insane

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Dec. 12. (AP)—A series of policemen, deputy United States marshals and jurors paraded through the witness box in George Remus' murder trial today, leaving in the record testimony that they regarded the defendant as sane.

Love Triangle Is Blamed For Killing Of Cop

FRESNO, Dec. 12. (UP)—Police tonight attributed a love triangle in the death of Phillip Trau, 42, special patrolman and at one time a stage club dancer.

Mrs. Mollie Trau, 26, wife of the dead man, accused Clifford Burd, 37, as her husband's slayer.

Burd and Mrs. Trau were found in the house when police arrived. Both were intoxicated. Mrs. Trau told police she was resting in bed after a drinking party when she heard a shot emanating from the kitchen.

Burd denies the slaying, insisting Trau committed suicide with his own revolver.

Trau's revolver was found in its holster under a pillow. None of the cartridges had been discharged.

Mrs. Trau, who had been married to Trau but two months, denied assertions made by the police that Burd was her former sweetheart.

Militia Called Out For Solons

Although the net result of another big day in the turbulent history of Oklahoma politics was decidedly in the governor's favor, there were many who hailed the victory as belonging chiefly to Mrs. O. M. Hammonds, his confidential secretary.

Woman's Victory Upon Mrs. Hammonds's shoulders fell the principal responsibility for calling out the militia at 2 a. m. and it was she who quelled the course of the administration's battle for supremacy throughout the day.

With the militia on guard in the corridors of the state house, tonight, no action was contemplated by the legislators before reconvening Tuesday morning.

Their private quarters, however, the insurgents discussed strategy and ways and means of countering the governor's mobilization move.

School Kids To Get Show Party

Coasting Banned By City Council

Rich Men's Sons

Finally attendants at the Thaw home offered her $200 if she would return home and forget all about the millionaire, she said. She declined the money, but left immediately for the Pacific coast.
