

Sleep Finally Comes To Parents Of Girl Murdered by Kidnaper

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19. (AP)—The sleep which follows after exhaustion came last night to Marian Parker's loved ones—comforted in the knowledge that death had drawn the blinds on any possibility of further mistreatment to the little victim of a kidnaping flend.

Merciful slumber quieted the nerves of the mother, who found rest for the first time since last Wednesday night, ignorant of the gruesome details.

Mrs. Parker was told that Marian died from an overdose of a sleeping potion. The father, however, Perry M. Parker, knew all for it was he who knelt by the stone as kidnaper drove hurriedly away from the rendezvous of death Saturday night and clasped the mutilated body to his breast.

Parker and his son, Perry, Jr., arose shortly after six o'clock, grimly determined to aid the police in the greatest manhunt that has gripped the entire west.

Police men stand guard near the Parker home, in a well-to-do section of the west side. No automobile is permitted to stop on the street and no one is permitted to come near the house on foot.

The formality of a coroner's inquest was gone through with this morning. The father and mother of the little victim were spared the ordeal of testifying.

Inhuman Kidnaper Still At Liberty

through "stalking out" the murder car were given up. The automobile, found 20 minutes after the mutilated body of Marion was turned over to her father, Perry Parker, bank executive, was not claimed at the parking station where police located it and maintained a watch over it.

Howard Unravelling
The offer of the immense reward which it was thought might entice some intimate of the murderer to reveal his identity to officers, had done nothing except renew the frenzy of the search.

The coroner's jury found that "Marion Frances Parker was brutally murdered by a person, or persons, unknown, acting with homicidal intent."

It was brought out at the inquest that it was impossible to determine the exact cause of the girl's death until her stomach had been analyzed.

Body Cremated
Private funeral services were held for the child shortly after conclusion of the inquest. Her almost unrecognizable form was cremated before burial.

Police still admitted themselves puzzled over the motive for the cold-blooded killing. The $1,500 ransom which a hopeful father traded for the body of his lifeless child was generally discarded.

Parker has maintained consistently that he has no enemy who would desire vengeance and accordingly officials have struck a blind trail.

Huge Rewards
Public indignation over the ghastly butchering of the girl was expressed in the reward money offered. In addition to city, county and state rewards, private citizens, newspapers, churches and the general public have raised huge funds to be paid over in case of capture and conviction of "The Fox."

Two new griefs were piled on a badly frayed and extremely tired police force today.

Want Lynching
First, was the openly expressed public desire to see the kidnaper lynched if caught; second, was an attack on conduct of the case by members of city council.

The wide interest in the case has caused a startling number of wild yarns in its connection. Within a period of 20 minutes this afternoon "The Fox" was "authoritatively" reported captured in San Diego, Santa Ana and a jewelry store in Los Angeles.

In the same period it was rumored that Mrs. Parker died of grief, that Perry Parker, Jr., was arrested and that chief of detectives Cline had resigned because of the kidnaping.

City Unraveled
The uncanny ease with which the kidnaper has avoided detection and fiendish glee he appears to take in striking suddenly from an unexpected sector has almost unnerved the city.

Despite the greatest vigilance there has been no trace nor any word of the elusive abductor except when he wished it.

He first appeared representing himself as an employe in the same bank with Parker. That was last Thursday when he persuaded Marion to leave her schoolroom and accompany him on the pretext that her father had been injured in an automobile accident.

This deceit was discovered when Marjorie, twin sister of Marion, returned to her home to find her father well.

Called "The Fox"
A series of telegrams, letters and telephone calls followed, in each instance the sender identified himself as "The Fox." In each he asserted he was desperate. He threatened death to Marion in event his orders were not followed.

He instructed Parker to meet him Friday night and turn over $1,500 for the safe return of Marion. Police set a trap around the meeting place and "The Fox" failed to keep the appointment.

The "last chance" letter followed, demanding the father meet him alone on Saturday night. Parker called off the police and went to meet the kidnaper.

The kidnaper took the ransom money and then drove a short distance away to leave the girl for Parker to pick up.

Father Collapsed
Parker, thinking to find his daughter alive, rushed to the spot only to find the upper por-

Europe Hit By Bitter Weather

Ten Persons Dead
Ten persons died in Great Britain as a result of the first blast of winter, the majority due to exposure. Two were killed in the explosion of frozen boiler pipes, while two boys were drowned while ice skating.

Forty small vessels sought shelter in Plymouth harbor tonight while transatlantic shipping was delayed.

Southwestern England and southern Ireland are covered with snow.

Oldest residents brushed up on the history of bad weather and recalled that the great frost of February 1895 was the worst in their memory, with the present cold wave a close second.

The frost swept from the wave-lashed coasts of England across France, down to Spain, and up to Scandinavia, and across the continent to the Balkans, Italy and Russia.

Ten Below in Paris
At Croydon, near London, the temperature was five degrees above zero. Paris suffered from ten below weather, which was the coldest since 1912.

Two Paris-to-London airplanes were forced to land in France because of fog and cold. Practically all long-distance telephone services were suspended in France.

A biting 50-mile-an-hour "Nor'easter" swept across the English Channel, making navigation extremely difficult and dangerous.

Temperatures in Austria ranged from 10 below at Vienna to 30 below at Sonnblick, in the mountain region. The express from Budapest to London arrived in Vienna four hours late because of a delay near Bunkida, Hungary, due to high snow drifts.

Nearly all Austrian trains were delayed at least two or three hours.

For Rome, the weather was particularly unusual. The thermometer dropped to four degrees below zero. Parts of the city were covered with snow. The cold wave swept the entire country, with a maximum of 25 degrees below zero reported in Alpine towns.

tion of her dismembered and disemboweled body. He collapsed and was taken to his home. The disfigured form of his daughter was removed to the morgue.

Sunday her legs and arms and other sections of her body were found in Elysian park. Later a suitcase with bloody towels and instruments came into police hands.

Find New Note
Shortly before midnight Sunday a fire box was pulled in Hollywood. Firemen answering the alarm found a note addressed to Parker. It threatened the life of the twin sister, Marjorie, and was signed "The Fox."

A police guard accompanied the Parker family as it attended the funeral services of Marion today.
