

GENE TUNNEY ADMITTED TO GOLDEN RING

Fighter Elected to Membership in Exclusive Sport Club

By Frank Getty
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—A cycle of flusterings, from bare knuckle days on the English turf to $3,000,000 gates and "600 millionaires," was completed today when Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion of the world, was elected a member of the exclusive Madison Square Garden club.

Tunney's election came as a surprise and somewhat of a shock to the boxing world as the Madison Square Garden club is composed largely of those men of finance and society so proudly referred to by Tex Rickard as his "600 millionaires."

The starved white shirt fronts of the Madison Square Garden club gleam from the front row seats of every prize fight these winter nights, and many of the club members are interested in the corporation which, with Rickard as its president and general manager, controls the New Madison Square Garden.

The club was organized when the new $5,000,000 garden was completed and the domination of Rickard in the boxing business was established. Its members obtain the choice seats for all bouts, and count among their number many of the socially as well as financially elect of New York City.

Gene's social qualifications for membership are undisputed while his financial rating is by 150,000,000 quite equal to that of the average member.

LEADING LIGHTS IN GRID WORLD GATHER FOR ANNUAL PARLEY

By George Kirksey
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—The men who run the nation's great gridiron game gathered here for a round of annual sessions today.

Coaches, officials, athletic directors and faculty representatives from all sections of the country were on hand for a series of preliminary meetings preparatory to the 22nd Annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic association on Thursday and the sixth annual meeting of the American football coaches on Friday.

Of the many matters to be taken up by these men the most important is what recommendations will be made to the football rules committee in reference to the playing code for 1928.

Although there have been many astute remarks directed at the 1927 changes—the goal posts, the lateral pass and the muffed punt—the general impression was that the rules seem to be standing up pretty well under the barrage.

Most of the coaches will be satisfied if no further changes are made in the rules.

There seemed to be desire on the part of the officials to have the rules made simpler. With this in mind, the Eastern football officials association talked over the recommendations it plans to make to the rules committee.

The council of the National collegiate athletic association also held a preliminary session to decide on its recommendations to be made to the general assembly on Thursday.

The National amateur athletic federation also held its annual session and voted to return to the American Olympic association from which it withdrew a year ago.

Brigadier General Palmer E. Pierce, president of the N. C. A. A. announced that his organization would take no part in the Army-Navy eligibility dispute.

Tad Wetman, who stepped into Fielding Yost's shoes at Michigan, said that the two team plan suggested by Dr. Herbert Little of Wisconsin involved no radical changes and he expected it to work at Michigan.

"The plan does not call for two teams of equal strength," he said. "Rather, we are to have what amounts to a first and second team. We plan to shift men from one squad to another when the occasion demands it, choosing the squads on each Thursday before the games on Saturday."

Dr. Spears is in favor of three changes in the rules—removal of the goal posts back to the goal line, abolition of the present lateral pass rule and restoration of the muffed punt to its former status.

Knut Ruckna, the wizard of Notre Dame, was conspicuous by his absence. It was reported that Ruckna made a flying trip to Connecticut to be present at a banquet for one of his former players.

Ruckna's talk on "rules," scheduled for Friday, is expected to be one of the high spots of the meetings.

"POP" DRILLING BOYS FOR AERIAL ATTACK JAN. 2ND

PALO ALTO, Calif., Dec. 28. (UP)—"Pop! Pass! Pass!"

At The Pine Tree

For those who have a liking for farce comedy of an especially high order, "Breakfast at Sunrise," at the Pine Tree theatre today with the ever-popular Constance Talmadge in the starring role, is highly recommended.

The director, Mai St. Clair, had an extremely difficult task in making the production. Less adroit handling would have bungled the story.

"Breakfast at Sunrise" fully lives up to the boast of its producers—it is one of the merriest and most humorous of the photoplays made by Miss Talmadge and should set a standard for all farces to come.

The film is exceptionally well acted. Don Alvarado, the leading man opposite the star, is a newcomer worth watching. The hardy perennial, Bryant Washburn, accomplished a sophisticated in his unsympathetic role that should add new laurels to his fourteen years of picture acting. Others in the cast who did notable work are Alice White, Marie Dressler, Paulette Goddard, Burr McIntosh, David Mir and Albert Gran.

The direction and photography are excellent.

The Panthers left in the evening and will stop at Dodge City, Kans. After a workout there, the only practice session of the entire journey, they will continue their trip to the coast late tomorrow.

Captain McEwan was calling on Montgomery when the latter was interviewed.

Widow of Singer Wants To Launch Boozeless Clubs

NEW YORK, Dec. 28. (UP)—With a hammer and a stein as a coat of arms, Mrs. Oscar Hammerstein, widow of the "king of grand opera," plans to open two liquorless night clubs—one in New York and another in Palm Beach.

She is so sure that there is a place for night resorts with a "good, clean, wholesome atmosphere," that she has advertised for a baker. Thus far, however, she hasn't found one.

"The hammer on my coat of arms," said Mrs. Hammerstein, "will be raised over the stein. I don't want any liquor about my places. Liquor must be imbibed behind closed doors ways by those who want to poison themselves, and the clubs I plan will be open and above board, to keep both the wolf and prohibition agent away from my household."

Practically penniless after losing a large share of her husband's estate to her step-children, Mrs. Hammerstein hopes to retrieve her fortune in her new venture.

"The Los Angeles covered 1245 nautical miles on her flight," he said, "and we could see at all times 20 miles on either side of the ship, making 24,000 square miles we could see during daylight during the entire trip."

"The visibility was very good and any flares or rockets had been set off in that area we would have seen."

tendency toward the criminal side of life. He can be violent and he has shown that he can be dangerous."

Despite these opinions, however, Hope said he considered Remus sane. The hearing will be resumed Thursday.

At The Liberty

Something new in western pictures, Bob Steele, in "The Mojave Kid" at the Liberty theatre.

During the 21 years of his life, the new star has been trained to play the part he portrayed last night. As the son of a famous theatrical family, he has been destined for the screen since his birth, and as he has lived the greater part of his life in the west, it is only natural that his introduction should be through the medium of a western picture.

It is apparent from his screen work that he can ride a horse as only a true westerner can ride, and his daring provided many thrills for the audience. Combined with this unusually fine horsemanship is his ability to make the audience feel the emotion called for in many highly dramatic sequences of the story.

The story deals with the love of a dashing young westerner for a girl who has known no other world than the little valley over which her grandfather rules as a bandit king. The desert scenery filmed in the picture is of extreme grandeur and beauty.

Lillian Gilmore, Steele's leading lady, is also a new addition to the ranks of featured western players and gave a fine performance. The cast includes Jay McRiley, Bob Fleming, Buck Connors, Theodore Henderson, Nat Mills, Edith York, and Black Beauty, Bob's horse.

These wives of ours!
WE TOOK them from the shelter of their families, gave them two or three rooms and a share of our salary—then left them sitting there among the wedding presents, a bit bewildered.
BUT they knew how—these wives of ours. They knew how to make rooms into homes, and how to get more merchandise out of a dollar bill than we ever could. We're lucky to have wives. How do they do it?
LOOK through this paper, day after day. You will find advertisements covering almost every human need. They are filled with hints for the household, hints for health, hints for clothing, hints for keeping young. They are virtually little essays on life. No wonder these wives of ours follow them so carefully. As one wise wife said: "It isn't so much that I know housekeeping so well. I know where to learn it!"
Most advertising is prepared especially for women. Read it. It forms an authoritative textbook on good housekeeping.
