Getting up to the rim of Crater lake Saturday, G. E. Hamaker of Portland failed to obtain a good view because of a fog. Mr. Hamaker says that he drove in by the east entrance and had to wait to do a little work shoveling snow he could have reached the rim with his car, but rather than dig through a couple of drifts, he walked. One other car had been in before him, as indicated by tracks in the snow. Inside the park the Portlander saw no one. At the entrance on the east side he found a large crew of men carrying on road construction. Morning Oregonian.

Next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock, the public of this vicinity will have the opportunity of hearing one of the United States most accomplished women, when Dr. Aurelia Hinehardt, president of Mills College will address the Oregon Federated Woman's Convention. The lecture will be given in the Fremont Auditorium to which the public is invited. Miss Betty Ramsby and Howard West will appear upon the musical program during the evening.

Having registered his Ford car at the information booth of the chamber of commerce proved of great assistance to C. D. Hall when he made a report to police headquarters of the theft of his car. It was through checking back on the files at the chamber of commerce he was able to give his license number as well as his engine number to officers. Hall's car was stolen off the street where it had been parked a short time before by the owner. As yet no trace of the car has been found. The car bears a California license.

A bed of strawberries that could compete with any grown in the valley cities is found in the back yard of the Ben-Leon residence on East Main. Planted little more than a year ago the patch which covers a space of 6x25 feet is yielding enough for the family and many of their neighbors. The berries are unusually large and of delicious flavor. It is the morning duty of Mr. Leon to go to the patch before breakfast and secure a large pan of the berries for the family breakfast.

Something different in the way of freak animals has caused considerable attention for the past few days in the window of the A. J. Connolly Brothers store on Main and Tenth. A "White Albino" gopher, known as the digger gopher has been mounted on a stand. A rancher near Olene discovered the freak while attempting to rid his land of the pests. The pink eyes, characteristic of the Albino are noticeable on the animal which has a coat of pure white.
