E. J. Murray to Erect Building On Main Street

J. T. Ward Friday announced that he had just closed a lease with F. W. Woolworth company for a store room in the new building to be erected by E. J. Murray, publisher of the Coos Bay Times of Marshfield, Oregon. The lease covers the westerly thirty-six feet of a lot on Eighth street near Main and is for a period of fifteen years. Mr. Ward also stated that leases for the remainder of the building are about to be closed.

The aggregate rentals represented by this transaction will be close to a quarter of a million dollars, making it the largest leasing project yet handled in the city of Klamath Falls.

Work on the basement of the building started Thursday. The structure will be two stories. Brick, terracotta, reinforced concrete and tile will be used. The estimated cost of the building will run in the neighborhood of $60,000. All the work will be under the direct supervision of A. F. Graham.

E. J. Murray, who with Mrs. Murray returned Friday from San Francisco, stated the building line of the property would be set in ten feet in accordance with a plan of the property owners from Eighth street to Esplanade to widen Main street.

Hospital Fire Is Put Out Quickly By Department

Sparks from the main chimney at the Klamath General hospital set fire to the roof late Friday afternoon, burning through into the attic, causing damage not to exceed $100.

One patient's room on the top floor was slightly damaged by water. The patient had been moved from the room immediately upon word that the roof had caught fire.

The fire department were at the scene of the fire in less than two minutes from the time the call was turned in.

It was necessary to break through the roof to place the fire hose into the burning attic.

Mrs. Lyle, superintendent, while told by Fire Chief Keith Ambrose, that it was not necessary to move patients, took no chances and had patients on the third floor quietly removed to the second floor.

Barnes Describes County Wild Life

The wild life and recreation spots of Klamath county were vividly described to members of the Rotary club at the noon luncheon Friday, when Marion Barnes, district game warden, spoke.

Members of the club, while aware of the many wonderful recreation spots throughout the county, as well as the ideal fishing streams, not to be classed with any other section of the state, left with an even greater appreciation for this section of the state and particularly Klamath county after listening to Mr. Barnes.
