C. L. Harvey Lands Nine-Pound Trout

It was discovered yesterday that C. L. Harvey, a member of the firm of Roberts and Harvey, has been hiding his ability under a bushel since Sunday. It isn't every fisherman who shrinks like a wood violet from announcing the taking of a levethan.

There can be no other explanation for Harvey's act in not announcing to the world on Monday morning that he hooked, held and landed a nine pound trout while fly fishing in Recreation creek at Rocky Point. The fish which is a record for fly catch put up a fight for 28 minutes according to eye witnesses who sat in their boats with bated breath, thinking every moment that the delicate leader and line would snap, but due to expert handling Harvey brought his 9 pound catch to the edge of the boat and into a net at the end of 28 minutes.
