

Oregon Staters Lose to U. S. C. in Los Angeles 19-0

COLISEUM, Los Angeles, Oct. 6. (UP)—University of Southern California made the best of the breaks that came its way here today and with the aid of the three Oregon State mis-haps scored a 19 to 0 victory in what was the opening coast conference game for both elevens.

A fumble by Gilmore, O. S. C. fullback, in the first five minutes of play and two blocked kicks in the second half were decisive factors in the Trojan victory.

Williams Groundgainer
Consistent ground gaining in the trenches by Don Williams, U. S. C. quarterback, was almost solely responsible for the two touchdowns which came after the Trojans got possession deep in the Beaver territory.

While Merton and Sherwood made substantial gains through the line for Oregon State, their attacks, unlike those of Wilson, were made entirely on home turf.

When Gilmore fumbled on his own 22-yard line just after the start of the game, and Harragar recovered for U. S. C., the northerners found themselves in early difficulty.

Second Touchdown
Williams made two yards, then fumbled on a pass to Thomas. Williams tried the States' left end on the next play and made 14 yards to the 16-yard mark. He shifted to the right side and added four yards on the next play, then struck the left side again between guard and tackle for 12 yards and a touchdown.

Williams added the point after touchdown, the only extra point he made in three tries.

There was no further scoring in the first half but in the third period the Trojans built up a safe margin at the expense of the O. S. C. punters.

Score in Third
After being driven back from their own 34-yard line by the Trojan offensive, the Beavers made a gallant stand on their own half-yard line, where the ball changed hands when Saunders was held for no gain.

Disaster ensued. Whitlock went back to punt, but McCaslin broke through and blocked the attempt, sending the ball bounding toward the sideline. In the scramble Galloway of U. S. C. covered the oval for a touchdown.

The Orangemen made a brave rally late in the same period after receiving a punt on their own 20-yard line.

Sherwood went around left end for 13 yards and Metten tried for another wing for 13 more. Sherwood and Metten failed, as did a pass by Metten, and Metten went back to punt.

Harragar stepped into the limelight again when he blocked Metten's boot. Metten recovered but it was the Trojans' ball on downs.

After one pass failed, another. Williams to Thomas, was good only for two yards. Williams made four yards and Saunders three before Williams went the remaining 11 yards for the touchdown that brought the score to its final point, 19 to 0.

Cubs Add Another City Series Win

CHICAGO, Oct. 6. (UP)—The Chicago Cubs won their third victory in the city series with the White Sox today by the score of 3 to 2.

The Cubs won the first two games and lost the third, so that the game score is now 3 to 1 in favor of the Cubs.

The score by innings of today's game:

White Sox	2	8	1
Cubs	3	10	0

Batteries—Faber, Connally and Berg; Blake and Hartnett.

Whitman Holds
Washington 7-0

SEATTLE, Oct. 6. (UP)—University of Washington substitutes held down the sidelines today and watched the first string give every bit it had to defeat Whitman college 7 to 0.

The missionaries from Walla Walla outfought and outgamed the Huskies and lost a possible chance to tie the score by inches when Appligate, quarterback, stepped an inch out of bounds while running the length of the field for a touchdown.

WILLAMETTE TEAM WINS
LINFIELD COLLEGE, McMinnville, Ore., Oct. 6. (UP)—The Willamette university Beacrats left the field with a 36 to 0 victory here today in the first northwest conference fracas of the year. The Beacrats took the offensive early in the game and only in the final quarter were the wildcats able to stop the Willamette attack and show an offensive of their own.

Fighting Oregon Team Defeated by Stanford, 26-12

HAYWARD FIELD, EUGENE, Oct. 6. (UP)—The University of Oregon Webfoot made a desperate bid for western football fame today, but fell fighting before the plunging and passing gridiron machine from Stanford by a 26 to 12 score.

Oregon practically started the game with a six-point advantage gained when Wilton for Stanford fumbled the initial kick-off and a Webfoot griddler fell on the ball behind the Cardinal goal.

Oregon Ahead First Quarter
"Pop" Warner's men failed to score the first quarter, but Hoffman, fullback, Wilton and Mueller crossed the goal line for 19 points in the second period. Oregon, by an intercepted pass, and then one of their own, tied again and the score at the half was 19 to 12.

The second half was hard fought. Smalling scoring the only additional points made during the game after a Stanford drive placed the ball in the shadow of the Oregon goal.

Robinson's passing threatened Stanford through most of the contest. He was injured in the final quarter and removed from the field.

COUGARS LICK MONTANA 26-6

DORNBLESER FIELD, Missoula, Mont., Oct. 6. (UP)—Fighting on even terms for the first half of the game, the Cougars of Washington State came back strong against Montana here today early in the second period and clinched the game, which ended 26-6.

Montana's Grizzlies made the first touchdown in the second quarter. Chinsko of Montana had punted 41 yards to Washington's 18-yard line. After one play, Rowher, Cougar captain, fumbled and Feet Lewis, Montana center, picked the ball up for an 18-yard run to the goal. Washington State made a 60-yard march of passes and end runs to a goal. The half ended 6 to 6.

Horan, shifty Cougar back, made W. S. C.'s second touchdown soon after the second half started when he made a tearing, shifting 62-yard run, aided by good interference. From then on Montana crumpled and resorted desperately to passes. One was intercepted a few minutes later by Hein, Cougar fullback, who ran 27 yards for a touchdown. Soon after the next kick-off Washington State started another advance, with Horan, Kohler and Hein all aiding. Hein made the touchdown. The quarter ended 26-6 and no touchdowns were made in the fourth when the two teams, composed almost totally of substitutes, played on even terms.

Heavy Medford
Team Wins 44 to 6

MARSHFIELD, Ore., Oct. 6. (UP)—Medford high school steam-rollered Marshfield's lighter team to the tune of 44 to 6 here today. Seven touchdowns were scored by the invaders, using a mixture of plunges and passes. The first score came in the first two minutes following Marshfield's kick-off.

Cooksey, Melvin and Harrell did most of the ball carrying for Medford. Melvin and Cooksey each made three touchdowns.

Selon, Chapman and Melovich did the most of the ball carrying for Marshfield.

Score	R	H	E
Medford	0	6	0
Marshfield	26	6	6

Idaho, Gonzaga Battle to Tie

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 6. (UP)—Only a preponderance of weight and tenacity saved Charlie Erb's University of Idaho gridders from a beating at the hands of the Gonzaga bulldogs here today, and the game ended in a 6 to 6 tie.

Gonzaga kept the ball in Idaho territory during the first half and had it once on the one-foot line, where Idaho held for downs. Idaho tallied in the third period through the powerful drives of Kershnik, and Gonzaga evened it just before the gun with a combination of end runs and a pass. The game was played in a drizzling rain.

DIEGEL WINS
GOLF CROWN

FIVE FARMS, Baltimore, Md., Oct. 6. (UP)—Leo Diegel, the giant killer from White Plains, N. Y., succeeded Walter Hagen as professional golf champion of America today by eliminating Al Espinosa, Chicago veteran, 6 up and 5 to go in the 36-hole final.

The temperamental little Leo waded through the stiffest sort of competition to win, defeating Walter Hagen in the third round, Gene Sarazen in the fourth and Espinosa, the medalist, today.

When Mayor Wm. F. Broening presented the cup to Leo, all he could stammer was:

"I hope Al Espinosa wins next year."

His wife kissed him during the ceremonies.

A gallery of 4,000 followed the players in the afternoon. The Espinosa partisans had few opportunities to feel encouraged. The Illinois champion had had breaks on the greens throughout. On five holes his putts rimmed the cup.

Diegel was off poorly in the morning round, being 2 down at the end of the 6th hole. However, birdie three on the 7th and 8th and a half on the 9th left them all even at the turn.

On the next nine Diegel won four, the 11th, 13th, 15th and 17th, shooting a par 35, which, with a 38 for the outward nine, gave him a 73, three above par. Espinosa had a 27 and a 39 for a 76.

FOREST LAND OWNERSHIP

The question of forest land ownership and management is of peculiar concern to citizens of Oregon. Our future prosperity depends, to no small degree, on proper use of this class of property. Forest Land area of Oregon is now slightly over 25 million acres, of which nearly 60 percent is in federal ownership, the balance being in state and private ownership.

This constitutes 43 per cent of our entire land area. Some land now in forest should and will eventually be put to other use, but doubtless not less than 8½ million acres of state and private lands and a larger amount of federal holdings, or 37 per cent of our land area, should be permanently devoted to production of forest crops.

The portion of the above which has been deforested through fire and by reason of lumber operations is over 51 million acres, nearly equally divided between federal government and state and private owners. It is these denuded areas, largely unfit for other than forest growing and which are increasing by some 200,000 acres yearly, that bring home most strikingly need for taking thought as to our future timber supplies.

True forest lands, irrespective of ownership, will be a state liability or asset, depending upon whether or not they are kept producing a valuable forest crop. It is the crop and not the land which in this instance has value and to which we must look for public revenue.

In view of the state's interest in land ownership, the following are worthy of careful consideration.

Excerpts from an Annual Report of Chief Forester of United States

"Unstable forest land ownership is today the greatest single obstacle to the rapid spread of timber growing throughout the country. It is represented by the land speculator, or the lumber company which intends to dispose of its holdings when cut over, or the State without a policy of permanent forestry for its timberlands, or the State, county, or town which is anxious to have tax-reverted lands chiefly valuable for timber growing put back on the assessor's rolls. If all or most of the 470,000,000 acres of forest land in the continental United States—close to one-fourth the entire land area—were in the hands of owners whose future returns rested on actual use of the land, the Nation's forest problem would be much nearer solution.

There would still be necessary, of course, the prosecution of research on a large scale and over a long period to learn the best methods of growing timber and of utilizing what the forest produces—just as extensive and continued agricultural research is necessary for better and more profitable farming. In the case of timber growing, research must answer many riddles which now perplex and hold back the landowner. There would be necessary a large amount of educational work to make known the best methods and induce those who would profit by using them to undertake them. There would be necessary public facilitation of timber growing through the removal of obstacles and economic handicaps, such as the risk of fire damage and of higher taxes than this form of land use can support. These are all essentials of an adequate public program of forestry. But so long as those who hold title to forest land are not interested in making or keeping it usable for timber growing, a fundamental obstacle remains."

A fair system of forest taxation, greater public cooperation in protection matters, and extension of markets for wood products will go far toward the desired stability in forest land ownership. Unfair taxation and public indifference to the needs of a great industry can only exaggerate a present day—far from satisfactory situation.
